$2,652,000 Bonds Signed To Meet State Road Payroll

Far into the night Secretary of State John B. Wilson, center, signed his name to 2,652 highway bonds while O. E. Roquemore, left, and Arthur Hardy, right, blotted the signature. The bonds when signed by Governor Rivers and Treasurer Hamilton will be rushed to New York to be sold to replenish State Highway Department funds.

$400,000 Taken Out of Highway Funds To Pay Salaries of School Teachers for November.

OFFICIALS WORK FAR INTO MORNING

Each Certificate Rushed to Vault, as Signing Made Them Negotiable.

Between taking $400,000 out of state highway funds yesterday to pay school teachers their November salaries and working into the night signing his name to several hundred of a total of 2,652 bonds valued at $1,000 each so that money could be borrowed from New York banks to meet the state highway payroll by Saturday, Governor Rivers yesterday spent a hectic day.

The capitol was in a turmoil throughout the day with signing and blotting of signatures by Rivers, Treasurer George B. Hamilton and Secretary of State John B. Wilson, and the rushing by air mail to the Chase National Bank in New York of one $1,000 bond so its printing could be checked for accuracy and money be made available as soon as the other bonds are rushed off today.

Rivers Secretive. The Governor was secretive about the signing of the bonds and last night sent word through his secretary, Marvin Griffin, that he did not think working into the night signing $2,652,000 worth of highway bonds was newsworthy and declined to have his photograph taken.

While the Governor kept signing the bonds until about 9 o'clock last night his secretary solicited bent over him, carefully blotting each Rivers signature, and Treasurer George B. Hamilton kept his office open with Assistant Treasurer Horace Hixon and other officials remaining on duty carefully placing each bond in the state vaults as it was signed. But when Rivers quit signing Hamilton closed his office.

However, Secretary Wilson kept on signing through the night until the entire 2,652 bonds had his name attached. Keeping the treasury open was necessary because as Governor Rivers added his name to the bonds, which also were signed by Hamilton and Wilson, the bonds became negotiable and therefore like cash.

Vaults Kept Open. The activity in keeping the state vaults open last night recalled to many observers at the capitol the condition in 1935, when it was impossible to open the state vaults without a blowtorch just before Treasurer Hamilton had been ejected from his office by national guards.

German reconnaissance planes made flights over southeastern England and northern Scotland for the second successive day. The ministry announced one craft was shot down by British pursuit planes over the east coast.

Guntfire was heard at an undisclosed town on the northeast coast of Britain tonight, and air raid warnings were sounded in the district about Humber, in the center of Britain's east coast.

Chamberlain's announcement was in answer to a question by opposition Labor Leader Clement Attlee on whether the government would take action as a result of the report.

Glass declared he saw no chance of American participation in the European war "unless Germany sinks our ships in contravention of international law."

The recently proposed transfer of American ships to Panamanian registry "would have been a disgraceful evasion of the neutrality act," Glass asserted.

Discussing other issues, he said in response to questions that expenses of the army "are high enough now" but that "we ought to have a navy that can't be licked."

Advocates Strong Navy. "I think it is well for a nation of this magnitude to have a strong navy," the senator said. "I don't think there is any danger of any-

Ruptured Spleen Is Gone, But Smile Sticks

Smiling at Miss Hilma Heflin, student nurse at the Georgia Baptist hospital, is four-year-old Robert Kenneth Bullock, who underwent an operation to remove his spleen 10 days ago, and disposes the ancients who said the spleen is the source of laughter. Kenneth, without his spleen, laughs about the whole thing.

BOY LOSES SPLEEN BUT NOT LAUGHTER

Lawrenceville Lad Hurt When Thrown From Wagon Near His Home.

The spleen, according to Webster's International Dictionary, was "formerly believed to be the seat of emotions or passions, as ill humor, anger, etc., and to be the source of laughter."

But it's not the source of laughter in little Robert Kenneth Bullock, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bullock, of Lawrenceville, for Kenneth is recovering from an operation in which his spleen was removed, and he's laughing about the whole thing.

Ten days ago, Kenneth and his father, who bought a farm with his soldier's bonus, were riding across a field in a wagon. The mule swerved suddenly, the wagon tilted and jolted over the rough ground, and caused Kenneth to lose his balance. He fell under the wheel and it rolled over his body, rupturing his spleen, as well as causing other serious internal injuries.

He was rushed to the Georgia

Roosevelt, First Lady Due in Georgia Today

Scheduled to Make Brief Stop Here This Morning on Way to Warm Springs, Where They Will Carve Turkey Tomorrow With Paralysis Victims.

President Roosevelt's special train sped southward last night to the "red old hills of Georgia" bearing the chief executive and first lady to their part-time home in Warm Springs, where tomorrow they will carve Thanksgiving turkey with infantile paralysis victims—incidentally, a week earlier than usual.

The train is scheduled to make a brief stop in Atlanta at 7 o'clock this morning and proceed immediately to the Georgia resort.

Down in Warm Springs 400 anxious residents waited patiently for Neighbor Roosevelt to arrive, but none was more excited than beaming, seven-year-old Ann Smith, of Frankfort, Ky., who will have the honor of sitting by the President at Thanksgiving dinner.

Coveted Privilege. She won this coveted privilege by drawing names from a hat with other patients at the foundation. She has been a patient there for five months and only recently was placed in a wheelchair.

Because of his proclamation setting Thanksgiving up a week, President Roosevelt will be able to view a Georgia dressed in the gaudy, festive colors of autumn, whereas he usually makes his annual southern journey after cold weather has stripped the state of some of its beauty and left a drab shade to the hillsides.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be accompanied by the usual contingent of White House secretaries, aides and secret service men.

After a week's stay in Georgia, President Roosevelt will leave next Tuesday for Asheville, N. C., for a brief visit with Marvin McIntyre, of the White House secretariat, before returning to Washington. McIntyre has been ill for several months.

Fort Benning Trip. During his vacation in the state, Mr. Roosevelt plans to make a trip to Fort Benning near Columbus one day for an inspection of the army's mechanized unit.

There has been no definite announcement as to whether he will accept an invitation to motor to Atlanta over the improved Roosevelt highway. The invitation was extended by Courtland S. Gilbert, secretary of the Fulton county planning and zoning commission, who pointed out that the highway has now been stripped of the numerous unsightly signs which previously obscured the scenery.

Conferences with state leaders also will occupy part of the President's time while he is in Georgia.

COMMUNITY FUND GRANTED $50,000; HOSPITALS PROFIT

$250,000, Largest Single Present, Goes to Medical School To Endow Surgery Professorship.

Atlanta hospitals, orphanages, educational and charitable institutions will be given a $450,000 Christmas gift by the Joseph B. Whitehead Foundation, Conkey P. Whitehead, chairman of the foundation's board of trustees, announced last night.

The largest single grant, $250,000, will go to Emory University School of Medicine to endow a professorship to be known as the "Joseph B. Whitehead Chair of Surgery."

The Atlanta Community Fund, approximately $200,000 below its quota yesterday, was given $50,000 by the trustees.

Five Hospitals.

Five hospitals, Georgia Baptist, Emory University, Henrietta Eggleston Memorial Hospital for Children, Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, and St. Joseph's infirmary, were granted sums ranging from $15,000 to $25,000, on condition that the money be used for hospitalization of the poor and needy. Exemption was made for hospitals caring for motherless and fatherless children, which were requested to use part of the grants to buy the children Christmas gifts which they would not otherwise be able to enjoy.

Georgia Baptist hospital is to receive $15,000; Emory and Scottish Rite, $10,000 each; Eggleston, $5,000, and St. Joseph's, $2,500.

Grady hospital will be given $4,205 to buy stainless steel equipment and furnishings for the children's clinic.

Represent Interest.

The grants represent interest from the estate of the late Joseph B. Whitehead, brother of the chairman of the foundation trustees. At his death, he left the bulk of his fortune in trust for the use of Atlanta charitable and educational institutions.

A generous benefactor of orphans during his life, his will directed that much of the income from the trust be used for their benefit.

Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home was granted a total of $40,000. The trustees directed that $10,000 be allotted to the operation of the home; and $30,000 be used to buy equipment, renovate the present property, and for permanent improvements.

The Methodist Children's Home at Decatur will be given $10,000 to complete the Joseph B. Whitehead Memorial school. Any excess will be used for the operation of the home.

Southern Christian Home was granted $2,000; and the Carrie Steel Pitts Home, $1,000. Half of the latter sum is to be used for paying the balance owing on re-

Bomb Plot Solved, Say Nazis; British To Avenge Mine Losses

Gestapo Says Man Admits Making Seven-Day Time Explosive.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—German secret police tonight announced the arrest of a man charged with the November 8 beer cellar bombing attempt on Adolf Hitler's life and the capture of two British intelligence agents accused of plotting German revolution from Netherlands soil.

While the official announcements of Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Gestapo, did not connect the arrest and the capture, they did charge Otto Strasser, one-time Hitler lieutenant but now a leader in the dissident "black front," with organizing the bombing plot, and the British intelligence service with furnishing the money.

The man charged with the bombing was named as Georg Elser, 36, of Munich, who was said by the Gestapo to have confessed.

Aides Reported Held. He was said to have been arrested November 11—three days after the Munich explosion which took eight lives and injured 62 persons—while attempting to escape into Switzerland, and to have confessed on November 14. Several of his accomplices also were declared to have been arrested.

The two British agents were named as "Best" and "Captain Stevens," and were declared to Japanese Luxury Liner Is Latest Victim of War of the Waves.

By The Associated Press. The war on the waters took a more drastic turn yesterday as five more ships went to the bottom and Britain announced her intention of seizing all exports of German origin which she might waylay at sea.

England also told the United States she would establish a system to speed up contraband search of American ships dealing with neutral nations—to have British consuls examine cargoes in American ports and issue "passports" which would permit naval officials to pass United States vessels without delay.

The highlight of the day was the sinking of the 11,930-ton speedy Japanese liner Terukuni Maru by a mine near the east coast of England. Her 206 passengers and crew members escaped before the liner went down.

It was Japan's first loss in the European war. The ship's owners said she was making her last intended voyage in dangerous waters.

Four small British ships went down, raising the known English toll to 76.

The admiralty said the Sea Sweeper, 329 gross tons, and the Thomas Hankins, 276 tons, and England Will Resort To Tactics of 'Unrestricted' Search of All Boats.

By EDWIN STOUT. LONDON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Great Britain, accusing Germany of "ruthless brutality" and illegal mine warfare, today proclaimed in reprisal an unrestricted high seas blockade of German trade.

Chamberlain said the government had decided to "subject to seizure on the high seas" all "exports of German origin or ownership."

He said this practice had been followed during the World War "as a means of justified reprisals for submarine attacks on merchant ships," and it was to be put into effect now because of "many violations of international law and the ruthless brutality of German methods."

The measure, to be put into effect "shortly" by an order in council, calls for seizure of all German exports on the high seas, regardless of whether they are carried under neutral flags, in order to throttle Germany's supply of currency to buy war materials.

German reconnaissance planes made flights over southeastern England and northern Scotland for the second successive day. The ministry announced one craft was shot down by British pursuit planes over the east coast.

Guntfire was heard at an undisclosed town on the northeast coast of Britain tonight, and air raid warnings were sounded in the district about Humber, in the center of Britain's east coast.

Final Meeting of Divided Methodists Set for Today

Special Unification Service at Wesley Memorial Tomorrow Will Mark the End of Three Branches of the Church; Bishop Decell in Charge.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT. After 73 years of vigorous growth, the North Georgia Methodist annual conference assemblies at 2 o'clock today at Wesley Memorial church for its final session as a unit of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and loses its identity as such, and becomes the North Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist church.

Special services, in connection with the recognition of union with the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Protestant church, will be held at Wesley Memorial tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Today, the conference is to clear all necessary work before the unification of the three Methodist bodies Thursday. Special attention will be given reports of boards and committees, admission of new ministers, and receiving into full connection the two-year undergraduates.

Bishop J. L. Decell, of Birmingham, president of the conference for the second year, will preside

New Neutrality 'Disgrace', Declares Senator Glass

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Senator Carter Glass said today that the new neutrality law "is disgraceful" and should be repealed when congress convenes in January.

The Virginia Democrat, granting an interview at his Washington apartment, declared that no neutrality legislation was necessary because, in the absence of a statute, the executive branch would direct foreign policy within the framework of international law.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if congress repeals the act," Glass declared. "It certainly ought to. The United States is saying, 'Please, Mr. Hitler, where do you want our ships to go and where shouldn't they go?'"

The 81-year-old senator, here for a visit to his dentist, said he believed the people and the congress would be convinced of the

Ask Militia To Aid Patrol of Large Premiere Crowd

They're calling out the National Guard to help the police department patrol downtown Atlanta during the "Gone With the Wind" festivities, December 14-15. That large a crowd is expected.

The request for National Guard reinforcements was made by the motion picture officials and civic leaders as assistance to city police, Fulton and DeKalb police and state troopers.

Tremendous demands made by Atlantans to buy tickets to the Junior League ball and the premiere of the film indicated to the film officials that extraordinary steps must be taken to protect the crowds as well as players.

They're afraid their stars might be mobbed by fans in typical New York manner, so great is the interest already shown by Atlantans over the "Gone With the Wind" festivities.

HAILEY OFFERS MERIT SYSTEM FOR COUNTY JOBS

Plan Would Make for More Efficiency Among Workers, Serve as Protection for Employees.

A move to eliminate the paying of political debts in the hiring and firing of county employees and the substitution of a merit system with department heads responsible for their respective divisions, is in progress in Fulton county, it was learned yesterday.

The new system, advocated by Commissioner Gloor Hailey, chairman of the alms and juveniles committee of the commission, will be applied in much the same manner that Ira Dodd was placed in "complete and unrestricted charge of the newly organized juvenile farm at Hapeville," according to reports.

Free Hand Given.
Dodd was given a free hand in the selection of the personnel at the institution, a condition he insisted upon before he agreed to take over the institution.

Hailey, it was learned, has held preliminary discussions with Dr. Charles Ross Adams, chairman of the police committee, and Troy G. Chastain, chairman of the parks committee. He is planning conferences with J. A. Ragsdale, chairman of the important public works committee, and Ed L. Almand, chairman of the commission.

Several weeks ago, the commission decided to "permit department heads to select the personnel" for their various departments, but nothing was done about it other than to pass the resolution.

"Job Insurance."
Hailey said the plan is to "spread the benefits of such a system to add to the efficiency of the service the county provides the public and also to give a sort of job insurance to those who are doing their jobs, but who just happen to incur the disfavor of a commissioner."

Under the reported program, department heads will make all recommendations for filling vacancies, and the commissioners will vote in open session as to whether or not the department head will be followed in the dismissal of any employee.

Although the system will not give civil service protection to employees, it will be the nearest approach "this side of actual legislation establishing civil service."

WAGE HEARING SET FOR SHOE INDUSTRY

35-Cent Minimum Comes Up December 11.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The wage-hour division announced tonight that a public hearing will be held here December 11 on the proposed 35-cent an hour minimum wage in the shoe industry.

Approval of the proposed minimum wage-hour officials said, would raise wage rates of approximately 60,000 of the industry's 237,000 workers.

The 35-cent rate was recommended last August by the industry committee headed by Monsignor Francis J. Haas, dean of the school of social science of the Catholic University of America.

RUSSIA TELLS FINNS SHE RULES BALTIC

Says 'Red-Bannered Fleet Ready at a Minute' To Remove 'Obstacles.'

MOSCOW, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Soviet Russia today coupled a declaration of her supremacy in the Baltic with a strongly worded warning to Finland to refrain from putting any obstacles in the way of this position.

The advice to Finland came from Admiral V. Tributz, commander of the Soviet Baltic fleet, who expressed "The regret of Soviet Baltic sailors" at the Finns' refusal of Russia's demands for territorial and military concessions.

"In Finland we hear but the rattling of arms and the call to war with the U. S. S. R.," the admiral said in an article in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Communist Youth League.

"The dark game of Finnish ruling circles favors incendiaries of war who aim to use Finland as a base for hostile plots."

"No obstacle will ever break our decision to establish a strong peace over the Finnish gulf to safeguard Soviet borders, the great city of Leningrad and friendly Baltic countries. The Red-bannered fleet is ready at any minute."

His statement that the Baltic fleet acquired command of the Baltic through newly gained bases in Estonia and Latvia was accompanied by the disclosure that the fleet was engaged in large-scale maneuvers there.

Through the Latvian and Estonian concessions Admiral Tributz said, the Baltic fleet, previously landlocked in the Gulf of Finland by winter ice, now could navigate the year round.

ness upturn and congressional re-writing of White House recommendations have improved the outlook.

Economies Seen.
Officials said that economies might be effected in appropriations for relief, public works, farm aid, and administrative expenses.

Confirmation of the reported reduction came from Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, and Harold D. Smith, budget director. Early said reports were "pretty close" and Smith told reporters there would be "some cuts."

Actual estimates of the budget Mr. Roosevelt will submit to congress in January were lacking. Officials said it had not been completed, adding that present expectations might be upset by legislation business and military conditions.

The budget makers are starting with the ideas that national defense spending must grow because of the cost of neutrality enforcement and preparedness, and that revenues should increase as a result of better business.

Compared with the $5,669,000,000 preliminary revenue estimate for this year, guesses on next year range from $6,300,000,000 to $7,000,000,000. The actual figure will depend both on business trends and on possible new tax legislation.

However, Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, said after a White House meeting yesterday that business improvement might forestall any tax legislation.

Neutrality Deficit.
This year's spending total may reach a maximum of $9,500,000,000, but congress has not finished appropriating for it. At least $275,000,000 will be needed from the next session to pay neutrality costs until June 30.

Persons close to the White House are guessing that next year's expenditures will total roughly $9,250,000,000.

Of this sum, which would rank next to this year's record total for peacetime, approximately $2,000,000,000 would be for national defense, a about $500,000,000 more than this year.

However, if the business upturn continues to increase the number of private jobs, the government might save about $400,000,000 of the estimated $1,400,000,000 to be spent for relief this year.

Additional savings are looked for in agricultural costs, since some experts believe the war might boost farm prices to a point where benefit payments could be reduced.

Railways of India are adding air-conditioned cars.

The announcement of the second night's dance is expected to draw many hundreds of additional visitors to the city who though they can't attend the premiere, will line Peachtree street to see the arrival of stars and socialites at the theater and will then move down to the auditorium to dance to Professor Kyser's music.

City council has appropriated $5,000 to be used in decorating the city for the festival. Mayor Harrisfield believes the celebration is the city's greatest opportunity to obtain national publicity, pointing out that the premiere and the ball will attract newspaper feature writers, national magazine writers and photographers and newsmen, and that much of the celebration will be broadcast.

cent repairs to the home and the remainder for repairs to the heating plant, or other necessary improvements to the institution's property.

A grant of $2,500 was made to the DeKalb County Clinic. Trustees set aside $1,000 for the Hebrew Orphans' Home with directions that the sum be used to buy Christmas and other appropriate gifts for the children.

Atlanta Nursery Schools were granted $2,400 to buy food for children in their care, while the Particular Council of St. Vincent de Paul Society will be given $2,500 for the relief of the poor in their charge.

Approximately $42,000 was set aside to be distributed a group of agencies whose chief aim is caring for children, the aged and the indigent sick, with the express stipulation on the part of the trustees that "such grants and gifts as may be made to these agencies will be for purposes other than those included in the Community Fund budget of these agencies."

Possible Recipients.
Named as possible recipients of the gift were the Atlanta Child's Home, Child Welfare Association, Florence Crittenton Home, Gate City Nursery, Hillside Cottages, Home for Old Women, Sheltering Arms, Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, Home for Incurables, Atlanta Community Shop, plus "other agencies or such of them as may be selected as in need of gifts and grants."

The trustees further requested that the agencies named and other worthy groups needing assistance are to be surveyed by the Social Planning Council, "in order that their work may be inquired into, and the grant equitably distributed according to the deserving nature of the work being done by them."

The council was asked to submit its recommendations to the foundation by December 15 so that grants may be made before the Christmas holidays.

Trustees in addition to Conkey Whitehead, the chairman, are his mother, Mrs. Lettie P. Evans, and Dr. F. Philizy Calhoun.

Rivers Hopes Scarlett's Cleverness Will Help Freight Rate Campaign

Governor Has Tried and Tried To Get Dixie Executives Together Without Avail—So He Plays Trump Card.

By L. A. FARRELL.
For months Governor Rivers has labored long and hard under the impression that if he ever could get his fellow chief executives of the south together they could compose minor differences over freight rates, present a united front before the Interstate Commerce Commission and bring about some adjustment of the 27 per cent discrimination now operating against the section.

The governors have been sort of balky. Each has let it be known that he felt he might be out-conferred if he got around the table with the others. Some states want the adjustments made in class rates. Others think the commodity schedules work the severest hardships.

As chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, Rivers has called numerous meetings, but at no time has he been able to get more than half of the 10 governors to attend. When one group showed up another failed to appear.

Late in the summer, Rivers struck on the idea of touring the states himself and seeking to work out a settlement as he went along. On his return to Atlanta he made encouraging reports but no united front developed.

Then he struck on the idea of getting the Governors here on the day of the Georgia Tech-Vanderbilt football game, a traditional classic what with Tech and Vandy always in the van on southern gridirons. But lo and behold, Vandy pulled up with the worst team it has had in years and Tech came up with one of its best. The result of the Tech-Vandy game was a foregone conclusion and the governors didn't even show a mild interest. Governor Clyde Hoey came down from North Carolina and stayed here a few hours Friday but he had to hurry home to see his crack North Carolina eleven do its stuff the next day. Governor Frank Dixon came from Alabama and Governor Prentice Cooper barged down from Tennessee but that was the week end and unbeaten Tennessee and previously unbeaten Alabama were putting on the nation's greatest football show at Knoxville and Governors Dixon and Cooper just had to be there. Governor Cooper said he had to pass up the Vandy game just like the rest.

A Trump Card.
So yesterday the still determined Rivers got a new and, he thinks, a better idea. He invited the governors here to a conference on the afternoon of December 14. Yes, it is the day of the big "Gone With the Wind" ball and the eve of the big "Gone With the Wind" premiere.

"If the boys won't gather here this time I will just have to try something else," Rivers commented.

In addition to the regular members of the conference Governors James H. Price, of Virginia, and Keen Johnson, of Kentucky, were included in the bids.

Regular members "summoned" included in addition to Chief Executives Hoey, Cooper and Dixon, Governors Maybank, of South Carolina; Cone, of Florida; White, of Mississippi; Long, of Louisiana; Bailey, of Arkansas; O'Daniel, of Texas, and Phillips, of Oklahoma.

RIVERSIDE STORES DESTROYED BY FIRE

Five Companies Fight Blaze That Started in Theater.

Five shops in a single building in Riverside, on the Bolton road, near the Hollywood cemetery in Fulton county, were destroyed in a fire last midnight which four companies of the county fire department fought for more than an hour and a half.

The building, reportedly owned by O. J. McCravy, who lives on Elizabeth place in Grove Park but who could not be reached last night, was gutted by the flames. The building was occupied by a beauty parlor, lunch stand, ice cream parlor, an ice house, shoe shop, bowling alley and theater.

The blaze was discovered in the projection room of the theater shortly after the last show was dismissed. Flames shot high into the sky and the entire western part of the county along the Chattahoochee river was lighted by the flames.

There were no persons in the building at the time the fire broke out, according to firemen.

Anti-Loan Shark Meeting Just Doesn't Work Out

By CARY WILMER.
Representatives of several of Atlanta's so-called "loan sharks" and one or two of their more outspoken opponents had a frank talk about the situation last night and the impromptu debate was termed a "draw" by observers.

The meeting was called by Dan Wexler, president of the newly formed Anti-Loan Shark League of Georgia, ostensibly for the purpose of launching a state-wide campaign against illegal money lenders.

Just Didn't Work.
But for one reason and another, it just didn't work out that way. Of approximately 30 persons present, one identified himself as a "victim," one was representing an unnamed labor organization and two or three just dropped in to see what was going on.

The remainder were there, or so it was charged, because they were either directly or indirectly connected with one type of loan business or another. And they were anxious to see what Brother Wexler had on the ball.

Heckling began almost as soon as he had called the gathering to a semblance of order and he soon yielded the floor to Victor K. Meador, Atlanta attorney, who has waged what amounts to a one-man battle against "loan sharks" for the past 10 years.

"This is just a lot of unnecessary conversation," was Meador's opening comment. "As I look around this room I can see that about 25 or 30 persons present have an active interest in the money lending business. I know and you know why you are here."

"You are here because you want to see what, if anything, is going to be done about the existing situation. I'm here because if there is anything I can do to help run you out of business I'm more than willing to do it."

Meador, after his short speech, was forced to leave the meeting, due to another engagement. This was the cue for a vigorous counter attack on behalf of "legitimate loan companies" by L. F. Turner.

state, told the gathering Anderson and the Macon newspapers "have performed a real service for the state and nation," and observed the publisher was endowed especially "with one of the simple human virtues—that of courage."

A. O. B. Sparks, Macon attorney and toastmaster, presented Mr. Anderson with gifts of appreciation and reviewed the high lights of the careers of both the publisher and the Telegraph.

another Atlanta attorney, who declared that licensed salary assignment companies "are not only legal, but fill a definite economic need in the community."

ACCORD REACHED BY BARBER SHOPS
Resolution Setting Forth New Scales Adopted.

Members of the city barber board sponsored a public mass meeting at the Ansley hotel last night at which representatives of 18 shops who previously had appealed for a repeal of the barber ordinance agreed to adopt a 35-cent minimum for haircuts, beginning Saturday.

J. W. Vandhitch, secretary of the board, said all differences had been amicably adjusted by general discussion and that the resolution setting up the new scale had been adopted unanimously.

NORTHSTAR SAILS IN SNOWSTORM FOR ANTARCTIC

Flagship Will Pick Up
Byrd at Panama; New Zealand Last Stop Before Leaving Civilization

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—(P)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd's anti-arctic flagship, the North Star, bid the United States a snowy farewell today.

With a cold north wind driving big flakes across her decks, the 1,494-ton wooden craft headed down the Delaware river toward the Atlantic on the second leg of her voyage to Little America.

She arrived here last week from Boston to take on planes and weather instruments.

Admiral Byrd will board the North Star at Panama where she is expected to meet her sister expedition ship, the old barkentine
Bear, at the end of the month.

The ships will make last contact with civilization about Christmas in New Zealand, where they will refuel.

GEORGIAN DETAILED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(P)—The navy announced today Lieutenant (junior grade) Lewis S.
Sims, of Waynesboro, Ga., a member of the medical corps, had been detailed to accompany the antarctic expedition headed by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, retired.

Kuhn Declares He Had Right To Use Funds as He Chose

Bund Leader Testifies He Sent Blond Divorcee Amorous
Telegrams Because He 'Liked' Her; Said She Paid Organization 'Some $700.'

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(P)—Fritz Kuhn swore today that he had stolen nothing from his German-American Bund, insisted that as Bundsfuehrer he could spend its money as he chose, and im-passively explained that he had sent amorous telegrams to a blonde divorcee because he "liked" her.

Acknowledging he had used Bund funds in transporting the furniture of this friend, Mrs.
Florence Camp, about the country, he said that this, too, was because "we personally liked each other." But he added that she had given him sufficient money—some $700—to repay the treasury, and he had done so.

Testifying as his larceny trial neared the end, he sat watchfully at ease, a middle-aged, heavygirted man who gave no impression of emotional excitement, and at one point he thoughtfully chewed a piece of candy.

Wife Is Absent.
He defended himself in the absence of his small, shy wife, Elsa, although she had appeared yesterday at the courthouse in a manifestation of loyalty to him.

At last, having denied point by point the prosecution accusations that he had misappropriated about $1,800 from his fellow Bundsmen, he thus summed up his denial, under the questioning of his attorney,

Peter L. F. Sabatino:

"Did you ever steal a single cent of the defense fund (a source into which the prosecution claimed he dipped)?"

"I did not."

Defends Actions.

"Did you use every cent that came into your possession for purposes that you thought you had a right to use them?"

"Yes, I did," Kuhn answered, turning toward the jury, his eyeglasses gleaming under the lights.
He told in detail of the Bund's early days—before 1937—in Detroit, how "nobody" but him had functioned at his headquarters and how he alone had signed all the checks, both then and after headquarters had been moved here.

"As you understand the leadership principle," his counsel asked,
"what did you consider your authority over the funds?"

"That I had a right to use the funds," he answered.

Mayor Urges Atlanta Merchants To Help Decorate Shopping Area

Asks Full Co-operation Be Given Junior Chamber of Commerce; Cites Returns to Stores From 'Gone With Wind' Plans Next Month.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday urged Atlanta merchants to cooperate with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in decorating the city with holiday finery, both as an advance dress for the Christmas holidays, as well as the festivities attendant upon Atlanta's gala "Gone With the Wind" program next month.

His message follows:
"I am making this personal appeal to you to join with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in decorating downtown Atlanta for the Christmas holidays.

"This whole idea was originated for the benefit of the merchants in the central zone area, and since it involved only a small contribution from each one, surely all of us should show the proper civic spirit by joining in with this splendid idea.

"For your information, the 'Gone
With the Wind' celebration is going to bring thousands of money-spending people into Atlanta and all of the expense of arranging the civic participation in this particular celebration is being borne by the city government itself.

"Incidentally, the city government is also furnishing the lighting current for the holiday decorations in which you are asked to join.

"I sincerely trust that each and every merchant will join with the
making this Christmas holiday lighting project a huge success.

"Very truly yours,
"WILLIAM B. HARTSFIELD,
"Mayor, City of Atlanta, Ga."

PRISON INSPECTION JOB HELD OPTIONAL

Arnall Rules Law Permits
But Doesn't Require Their Being Hired.

The State Board of Penal Corrections can use its own discretion about hiring prison inspectors, Attorney General Ellis Ar-nall said yesterday.

Replying to a request for a ruling made by Board Member John R. Lewis, Arnall said Georgia law permits the hiring of prison inspectors but does not require it.

The penal board said the ruling was not requested in any connection with the case of Chief Inspector Royal K. Mann, who resigned just before a scheduled hearing into the escape of Richard G. Gal-logly, Atlanta life term. The board has not yet acted on the resignation.

Arnall said the opinion was requested by Lewis and that he did not know in what connection it had been sought. Chairman Grover Byers indicated no action would be taken on Mann's resignation until after the regular December meeting of the board.

Gallogly is in a Dallas, Texas, jail awaiting hearing on a habeas corpus petition. A hearing for bail will be held today in Dallas at which Assistant Attorney General Herschel Smith, of Georgia, will appear to oppose the prisoners' petition.

GALLOGLY'S BOND HEARING SET TODAY

Case Will Be Argued Before Texas Court of Appeals.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 21.—(P)—Whether Richard Gray Gallogly is entitled to bail pending final disposition of his legal fight to avoid return to Georgia, where he is under a life sentence for murder, will be argued in the state court of criminal appeals here tomorrow.

The scion of a socially prominent Georgia family thus far has been defeated in every move to escape serving out his sentence.
The court of criminal appeals perhaps will not take final action, however, until in 1940 and Gal-logly contends that in the meantime he should be given his freedom on bail.

Herschel Smith, representative of the Georgia attorney general's department; Lloyd Davidson, state's attorney before the court of criminal appeals, and a representative of the Dallas district attorney's office, will argue that Gallogly is not eligible for bail.
The case is on appeal from a ruling by District Judge Grover
Adams, of Dallas, denying bail.

Gallogly is in jail at Dallas, where he surrendered after escaping from custody in Georgia.

PENDERGAST'S PLEA FOR PAROLE LOST

Issuance Held 'Incompatible With Public Interest.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(P)—The federal parole board refused today to grant a parole to Tom Pendergast, erstwhile Democratic boss of Kansas City, who is serving a 15-month term in Leavenworth prison for evading the income tax law.

The decision meant that Pen-dergast probably will stay in the penitentiary until May 30, 1940, which would be a year and a day from his entry. Good behavior would cut his sentence to that length despite the board's decision today.

"The board," a statement said,
"is constrained by the conviction that parole issuance in the case of Thomas J. Pendergast would be unjustifiable and incompatible with the public interest."

DON'T GIVE YOUR CHILD a "Bargain" Remedy You Don't Know All About

Ask Your Doctor before giving your child any remedy you aren't sure of. No family need take this chance today.

Wait. Think first. Are you absolutely sure you should give a single dose of that drug to your child? Internally, remember. You don't know anything about it, do you? It was sold, you recall, as "something just as good" and it cost you, perhaps, a few pennies less.

A very dear purchase it could be!
For your own peace of mind alone, give no home remedy you're not quite certain about without getting your own doctor's opinion. And never go against it.

Even in the case of the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, ask your doctor what he approves. And when he says "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia," see that you get exactly that by asking expressly for "Phillips'" when you buy... never ask for just "milk of magnesia".

If your child prefers Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermintflavored tablets scarcely larger than an aspirin tablet that children chew like candy, give it this way. For each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid
Phillips', and a big box costs only 25c at your drugstore.

PHILOSOPHY OF U. S. LAUDED BY ABIT NIX

Guard Against Political Creeds That Cut Off News,
He Urges.

Abit Nix, Athens attorney, warned Georgians last night to guard against "political philosophies that cut off the news of the world and taint the minds of people with manufactured propaganda."

"In many other sections of the world we have seen political philosophies develop which make serfs and servants of people; philosophies which teach that truth is meaningless and that God is a mockery," Nix said in a talk prepared for a citizenship rally.

"Americanism stands as a bulwark against these foreign philosophies which would destroy our individual and our personal freedom."

Reviewing then some of the American liberties as guaranteed in the constitution, Nix concluded with an appeal to "our citizens to make it their business to sell our growing boys and girls upon the greatness of our American form of government."

Joseph C. Greenfield Masonic lodge sponsored the rally.

Governor Labors Late in Sequestered Capitol Office

Behind the lighted windows of his office in the state capitol last night, Governor Rivers signed his name to hundreds of highway bonds. About 9 o'clock the Governor quit signing and left his office, but not until after he sent word to photographers that he didn't want his photograph taken while he was signing the bonds.

guardsmen under orders of the then Governor Talmadge. Hamilton had set the timelock on the vault for 80 hours, the maximum for keeping it locked. After two days of burning on the doors of the vault, it was opened. At that time

Hamilton had been ousted for refusing to pay out funds without an appropriation bill.

Governor Rivers yesterday took $400,000 from impounded highway funds and turned the money over to the payment of teachers' November salaries. This $400,000 brings to $2,167,000 the amount of highway funds which the governor has taken this year to use for schools, in addition to $500,000 in surplus revenue from the cigar and cigarette tax.

After the $2,652,000 in bonds are signed by the Governor they are to be rushed to New York to

Young Skipper Plans To Sail Kaiser's Yacht

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The big schooner yacht, Aldebaran built for the former Kaiser and launched here in 1902 when Alice Roosevelt broke a champagne bottle on its prow, may sail the seven seas with 24-year-old Captain Sterling Hayden at the helm.

Hayden, who has been wind-jamming around the world much of his life, announced he had purchased the 161-foot steel vessel from Francis Taylor, of Newport, and would bring it here from Panama.

the banks for purchase and this money will be replaced. In addition to the pay roll to be met Saturday, the bond money, it is said, will be used also for carrying on highway construction work.

First of Three.
The bonds which the officials were busy signing is the first of three annual issues of bonds to reimburse the highway department for payments it makes to counties to retire refunding certificates on March 25 of each year.

It was said at the capitol yesterday that the impounding probably would be the last of the year inasmuch as general property taxes are due December 20 and the state expects to receive more than enough from this source to pay the $1,300,000 worth of teachers' salaries to become due during the month.

Marvin Griffin, secretary to Governor Rivers, when asked about the activity at the capitol last night, said, "The Governor doesn't think that the signing of the bonds is worth a photograph and therefore he will not pose. It is the Governor's opinion that it is just a routine matter and as such there is no reason why he should have his picture taken. That is the Governor's wish in the matter."

INJURED GRID PLAYER BATTLES FOR LIFE

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Sunshine struck Room 12 in Marietta hospital today despite a dreary, misty day outside.

Sixteen-year-old Albert Brawner Jr., who is fighting a stiffer battle than he knew on the football field, spent a comfortable day on his march to recovery following a major operation for an internal injury.

Young Brawner received a severe blow in the left side when he attempted a block on an opponent during the early minutes of Friday's football game against North Fulton High. He underwent the operation Saturday.

Physicians as well as members of his family felt encouraged to-night. Hospital attendants informed Brawner's friends and teammates that his day was "comfortable" and his condition more promising.

Yesterday, things looked entirely different. Physicians gave him an even chance to recover unless complications developed.

Brawner, in his first football year, was varsity left end on the Marietta Blue Devils squad. After spending a year at Boys' High, Atlanta, he decided to take up football and chose Marietta High to begin his grid "career." At end, he showed ability in early practices and in a short time was marked a first stringer. His chance came when a mate was knocked out of the lineup with a leg injury.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Brawner Sr., of Smyrna, were watching his battle with even greater interest than when he took the field for the opening kickoff.

Making a rope of blankets knotted together, two white prisoners escaped from a second-floor cell in the Clayton county jail at Jonesboro last night, after sawing a bag from the window.

They were listed as Robert Harris, 17, who Monday was sentenced by Judge James C. Davis to a five-year term for robbery, and Harold Johnson, who was awaiting trial for robbery, having been arrested on charges of burglarizing several homes in Clayton county.

AMERICA GIVES THANKS

In 1621 a brave little band of Pilgrims gathered to give thanks for an abundant harvest after long suffering and privation.

For over 200 years America has celebrated a day of Thanksgiving with feasting and family reunions. Today, as never before, America should give thanks. For with half the world seething in a misery of oppression and restraint, we in America still hold aloft the torch of human liberty.

Under the "American way" this country has produced a higher standard of living than is enjoyed in any other country in the world.

No "black bread"... no "thin soup"... no synthetic foods will grace our Thanksgiving board. Instead roast turkey, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings of a holiday feast.

As one of America's great distillers, the House of Seagram takes this occasion to express its confidence in the "American way."

We wish you and yours a bountiful Thanksgiving—celebrated in the traditional manner—with the finest of food and drink—but observed with the wisdom of moderation.

THE HOUSE OF SEAGRAM

Fine Whiskies Since 1857

SEAGRAM'S "V.O." CANADIAN, the most delicate of all whiskies, is lighter and finer-tasting, we believe, than any Scotch, Rye or Bourbon of any age. Every drop 6 years old. Mixes superbly with soda. Delicious straight. "Canada's Finest" Blended Canadian Whisky. 86.8 Proof. A Seagram masterpiece.

Seagram-Distillers Corp., New York

SEAGRAM'S 7 CROWN, "America's Finest" rich whiskey. A hearty, mellow-flavored whiskey—yet pleasingly light-bodied. Specially recommended for mixed drinks. Try it in an old-fashioned, a Manhattan or a whiskey-sour. 60% grain neutral spirits. 90 Proof.

SEAGRAM'S 5 CROWN, "America's Finest" mild whiskey. Delicate flavor—with a very light body. Delicious in highballs, straight or in cocktails. The perfect all-purpose whiskey. Moderately priced. 72½% grain neutral spirits. 90 Proof.

CHURCH PLANNED TO HONOR SHARP AT YOUNG HARRIS

Proposed Drive To Erect Memorial Edifice Is Outlined as Board of Trustees Meets Here.

Preliminary plans for a campaign to erect a church at Young Harris College, Young Harris, Ga., as a memorial to Joseph Sharp, who served as president of the institution for 30 years, were outlined here yesterday at a meeting of the board of trustees.

Bishop William T. Watkins, a former student at the school, will head the drive for funds, and the Rev. L. M. Twigg will serve as chairman of the building committee.

Vice chairmen are Zach Arnold, Mrs. A. G. Maxwell, Dr. Z. V. Johnston, the Rev. J. W. O. McEachern and the Rev. H. T. Freeman. A. G. Maxwell is treasurer and J. H. Pittard is secretary.

The advisory committee is composed of Bishop Watkins, chairman; Governor Rivers, Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, Dr. J. T. Lance, the Rev. Claude Hendrix, Charles T. Winship, Mrs. J. N. McEachern, the Rev. W. T. Hamby and John N. Holden.

Ralph M. Moore, business manager of the college, reported to the trustees that the farm, run on a co-operative basis with 60 students participating, showed a net profit of $2,539 for the 12 months just ending.

Working under the supervision of Farm Superintendent J. W. Miles, the group produced 45 different articles for the college dining hall with a total value of $11,474. This was accomplished with an expenditure of $8,938, of which $4,328 was paid for labor.

The students do all the work on the farm and are paid $1 a day and given their board. The money is applied to their college expenses.

Articles produced included butter beans, green beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, collards, roasting ears, cucumbers, English peas, field peas, lettuce, okra, onions, radishes, spinach, squash, tomatoes, turnip greens, backbone and ribs, hogs' feet, cured hams, sausage, pork chops, beef, syrup, corn meal, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, milk, hay, silage and calves.

The college owns 1,200 acres of land, of which 300 acres are in pasture and under cultivation. This makes possible the "live-at-home" policy of the college which has enabled hundreds of students to pay for their own college education.

The program of farm work is expected to be enlarged as a result of the near completion of the Rich building which soon will be ready for occupancy. It will house classes in agriculture and home economics. Plans are being formulated for a dedication program.

Report on Work.
A report on the general work of the college was given by T. J. Lance, president, who also reported to the recent session of the North Georgia Conference Board of Education.

Many improvements were listed both in the report of the president and the business manager, and the attendance record for the present quarter was described as "excellent." A map was displayed showing the student representation from a large number of counties throughout the state.

Scholarships listed at the college this year include those donated by the St. Mark Bible Class, the Druid Hills Bible Class, the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, radio station WSB, Walter H. Rich, and a number of others.

The board of trustees is made up of 30 Georgians with Dr. W. T. Hamby as chairman and Chief Justice Reid as secretary.

PASTOR TO RETIRE.
EATONTON, Ga., Nov. 21.—Dr. James Thomas, for more than 22 years pastor of Eatonton Presbyterian church, will resign his pastorate Sunday and retire to his former home at New Bern, N. C., it was announced here today.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS
3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with a burning or itching sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ALABAMA SCHOOLS GET MILLION LOAN

Will Enable Them To Meet Obligations.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Alabama Public Schools Corporation today borrowed $1,000,000 for distribution among local school boards to enable them to meet obligations before their principal revenues accrue in December and January.

A. R. Forsyth, state finance director and corporation president, said $600,000 was obtained from the Birmingham Trust and Savings Company, and $400,000 from the First National Bank of Birmingham.

The loan was made at the suggestion of Dr. A. H. Collins, state superintendent of education, who also proposed that $1,000,000 be borrowed April 23, 1940, and an additional $500,000 be obtained May 23, 1940, all to be repaid as regular revenues accrue.

TWO BRITISH AIRMEN DIE BY OWN BALLOON

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A British civil aircraft inadvertently flew into London's own balloon barrage yesterday, the air ministry announced today, and was brought to the ground. Both occupants of the plane were killed.

The plane was the first announced victim of the huge British system of protective blimps over London's industrial areas.

NEVADA KILLER DIES IN GAS CHAMBER

CARSON CITY, Nev., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Burton F. Williamson, 43, a gambling game dealer who killed his wife and two other persons, was executed in the prison's gas chamber today. Williamson shot his wife, Pauline; her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Waddell, and the latter's husband, Waldo Waddell, near Fallon last August 27 during a family quarrel.

Talking Crow Takes to Trees, Calls for 'Papa'

MACON, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—John D. Spencer's talking crow, "Jim," was shouting "starvation" in the tall pines of Shirley Hills here this morning.

Then he changed to "Want my papa?"

Spencer ventured outdoors long enough to shout a return, "Here's your papa!"

But Jim wouldn't come down. Spencer is columnist on the Macon Telegraph.

The Spencers were given the crow 15 years ago, and taught it to talk. Then it got away today just as the hunting season opened. And they are afraid some one will shoot the pet.

This afternoon the crow was shouting lustily, "Some one start a fire," but he still wouldn't come down to "papa."

FIRST HEAVY SNOW STRIKES PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The first heavy snow of the season struck here shortly before noon today, but the weather bureau said it was "not expected to measure up to anything."

One victim was reported in the storm. He was John Starr, 65, of Gloucester, N. J., who, blinded by the snow, walked into the path of a heavy truck. He was taken to Cooper hospital, Camden, where his condition was said to be critical.

P. G. DEVAUGHN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Former I.C.C. Examiner,
Resident Here 20 Years,
Will Be Buried Today.

P. G. DeVaughn, of 1175 University drive, N. E., retired examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission and a resident here for 20 years, died yesterday morning at his home after an illness of several months.

A native of Mount Hope, Kan., Mr. DeVaughn moved to Atlanta when he joined the I. C. C. 20 years ago and had made this his headquarters since, traveling throughout the southeast. He retired from active duty in December of last year.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Anthony G. DeVaughn, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur McCormick, of Mount Hope.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill by the Rev. Robert W. Burns. Burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 22, 1939.

"The Gravest Problem"

Governor Rivers, in a radio address delivered Monday night, declared, unless new financial provision is made in the meantime, most of the common schools of the state will have to close their doors for the present term in January.

He described this situation as presenting "the gravest problem to the state government."

There can be no argument with the Governor's estimate of the comparative gravity of such a situation. His only omission is in limiting the problem as one for the state government. It is a problem for the entire state and everyone in it. It is a problem of seriousness so intense it affects not only present day Georgians but those of more than one future generation. It bears directly upon the entire future of this state and its people. It contains potentialities which make it a problem of vital concern to the whole nation.

The Governor blames the house of representatives for failure to approve sources of new revenue. Opponents of the present state administration insist that, with proper handling of the funds, there is already sufficient revenue. Thus the stalemate in state affairs.

Logic appears to be on the side of the Governor in the difference of opinion. Certainly, the Rivers administration has sought to give to the people of the state greater services than have ever been provided by a state government before.

It has been the aim of this administration to see that every child in Georgia may have a minimum of seven months of schooling every year. This was never attempted before. Old age pensions and other forms of social security have been launched. A greatly expanded program for public health has been put under way.

All these things are good, and utterly desirable. Yet it is self-evident to anyone they cannot be provided without cost. Enlarged state services inevitably involve greater revenue, increased taxation. The one is impossible without the other.

If, as Governor Rivers stated, most of Georgia's common schools will be forced to close in January for lack of funds, the legislators who failed to provide those funds, or the administrative officers who failed to make best and most efficient use of the funds already at their disposal, will have to bear the onus of blame, for many years to come, for a sabotaging of educational opportunity so serious it is cruel.

Those responsible must bear the blame for thousands of Georgia boys and girls, seeking education, denied the simple rudiments of training without which decent, civilized life cannot continue.

They must bear the blame for a retardation of Georgia progress the effect of which will be felt for decades to come.

They must bear the blame for deeds of folly and of crime, perpetrated in later life by those same children who today are to be denied the first essential of good citizenship, education.

They must bear the blame of young lives turned into evil channels because the source of civilized understanding and sound social behavior has been barred to them with the closing of the schools.

Governor Rivers has been guilty, perhaps, of ill-adviced actions in the past. Recently, when the senator for Fulton county suggested the grand jury might profitably investigate affairs at the state capitol, the Governor's only reply was a retort that the Fulton solon was an official of an oil company. Which had precisely nothing to do with the point at issue.

However, if January brings with it closed schools as proof of the Governor's alarming prediction of Monday night, all rivalries, all political jealousies, all differences of opinion, must be forgotten. Georgians—government officials, legislators and private citizens—must unite to remedy a condition which would constitute the worst disgrace and the worst possible blow against their own state.

If Georgians do not solve this problem, they can never, in the future, properly resent outside criticism on any feature of life within this state. Closing of the common schools of the state would do more to justify "Georgia Jangle,"

"Tobacco Road" and "the national problem number one," than any other possible development.

College Park Bonds

On December 4 the voters of College Park will decide whether or not that community is to issue $65,000 in bonds for the creation of parks, playgrounds and a recreation center and for the erection of a city auditorium.

Under the plan adopted, the property of the former Cox College, located in the heart of College Park, would be acquired. It has already been arranged by the Fulton County Board of Education to defray one-third of the cost of one-third of this property, as a site for a new high school. The purpose of the proposed bond issue is to purchase the other two-thirds of the property for the uses outlined above.

Communities can often finance improvements through bond issues in such a way that the deal involved represents wise and good business practice. Such appears to be the situation facing College Park.

It is stated that the proposed bonds, totalling $65,000, can be retired, and all interest payments met, without any increase in taxes. The present bonded indebtedness of the city is only $48,000. Money is cheap today. The bonds will carry only 3 per cent interest and, even at this low rate, it is expected they will sell at a premium.

The property to be acquired is excellent from the investment standpoint, irrespective of the improvements proposed and the civic benefits to be derived. It is in the heart of College Park and has approximately 1,000 feet of frontage on the Roosevelt Highway. From the real estate valuation alone it appears certain the property will increase in value rapidly as time passes.

The College Park bond proposal seems sound both from the business and the public standpoint and there should be little doubt it will be approved by the requisite majority of the registered voters when they go to the polls on December 4.

Japan Looks Southward

Nearly every time a European nation, with holdings in the Far East or in the East Indies, becomes hard pressed elsewhere, the Japanese take advantage of it to improve their position, diplomatically or otherwise. Last week, during the Dutch-German border crisis, it was the Netherlands' turn for attention.

This came in the form of a somewhat jingoistic blast in the pages of the "Pacific," the official organ of a well-known pseudo-liberal organization in Japan. It is not to be doubted, however, it also represents the views of most of the militarist-expansionist class now in control of the government.

"We possess the strongest navy and air force in the Far East and dominate the south sea markets," it read. "The south seas belong to the Far East and Japan is entitled to share the wealth of these regions, which Europe snatched while Japan was self-isolated."

There is a strange similarity in the wording of this statement to the oft-quoted that have come from Germany since Hitler discovered Great Britain snatched all the available land while the Germans were producing operas and beer. Seemingly the only fault to be found with the "snatching," by either Japan or Germany, is that other nations managed to find something to snatch before Japan and Germany thought of doing it.

"The wealth of these regions is necessary to rectify Japan's economic position," continues the "Pacific," "and now is the psychological moment, while European powers with interests in the south seas are preoccupied. It has been proposed that Dutch oil be forcibly seized, but other methods can be tried first. We do not expect Great Britain, France and Holland readily to accept our demands, but the longer the war lasts, the more certain it becomes that our ideas will materialize."

Presumably the "incident" in China, which was to last only a few weeks, has not rectified Japan's economic position, as was expected. A long war is now hoped for in Europe so economic rectification may be found in the south seas.

From points in northern Europe come cheering reports of unusually low temperatures. Who knows—maybe civilization will have some thick ice.

Borah said there would be no war this year. But there are six weeks left in which the great Idahoan can be wrong.

Hearing that relatives were coming, a Woodside, L. I., resident blew up the house. In Holland, we are told, they open the dikes.

Editorial of the Day

FOR A NEW INDUSTRY.
(From the Boston Herald.)

A long war means a great increase in the demand for American commodities. With the end of the fighting, America will need some way to cushion the inevitable let-down. After the World War the automobile industry and the boom in the middle class housing were shock-absorbers. With the end of the present war, we should have in view a new industry to fulfill that same function. What is the answer?

Professor Sumner H. Schlichter of the Harvard Business School is ready with a reasoned suggestion. Cheap housing, he proposes. What is wanted is a house of four or five rooms, selling for $3,000, costing to carry, taxes included, $30 a month. In effect he holds that this would be "an important new product, quite the equivalent of the automobile."

For the creation of this industry many problems must be solved. New materials and methods must be designed. Real estate taxes must be reduced. Materials and labor must cost less. There is no reason to suppose that any insuperable difficulties would be encountered in solving the problems of design. But what of taxes and labor?

Building labor for decades has been notoriously indifferent to the throttling results which are produced by the rules and rates which it imposes on the industry. Massachusetts and other states have been wrestling for years with the burden of real estate taxation. Every alternative for raising revenue is opposed strenuously by some group that demands the shifting of the burden elsewhere. The new cigarette tax must now go to the people on referendum.

Nothing could benefit the country more than a housing boom. On the basis of its social implications alone it is immensely to be desired. The diagnosis made by Professor Schlichter, Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold and others shows clearly what ought to be done.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

DEFENSE MONEY NEEDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The President is not the man to imitate Wilson's early policy of pretending that a world war did not exist except as something to write notes about. The country should be thankful, if only because he will certainly ask the next session of congress for huge national defense appropriations. They are badly needed—how astonishingly badly, the hard facts and figures can alone suggest.

An example neatly summing up the situation is provided by the state of American air defense. American fighting planes are the best in the world, as recent trials of old army models on the western front have amply proved. American anti-aircraft guns are acknowledged to share the same superiority, and are anxiously sought after by England and France. The air force is rapidly being built up to reasonable strength. Of the anti-aircraft guns, however, the army scarcely possesses more than a few samples.

Of three-inch fixed anti-aircraft guns, 86 are available in the continental United States, and 88 in our island possessions. Of the three-inch mobile guns, 232 are on hand and 312 are on order. This may seem like a considerable supply of artillery, until you realize that upwards of 900 anti-aircraft guns are now in use in the defense of the single metropolitan area of London. The truth is that, although our guns are the finest yet devised, we probably have not quite enough of them to defend the city of New York.

HARD FIGURES

Because of natural presidential sentiment the navy is in considerably better shape than the army. While other army deficiencies are not so dramatic as that in anti-aircraft, the War Department has shortages all along the line. It has already been disclosed in this space that, of the nine corps of which our full-strength army is supposed to consist, only one is equipped to take the field tomorrow. It was also disclosed that an appropriation of $850,000,000 would be required to bring the full-strength army up to requirements. The nature of the army's needs is best explained by breaking down this $850,000,000 figure.

First on the list are what the army calls "critical items." These are goods not commercially produced, such as the new semi-automatic rifle, anti-tank guns, tanks, armoured cars, gas masks and artillery and ammunition. They are especially important, since most of them take a long time to manufacture in quantity. To buy full supplies of these critical items, the army needs in the neighborhood of $300,000,000.

Next after the critical items come army facilities—arsenals, storage places and other foci of the army's work. About $50,000,000 is needed to be spent on these. Then there is the cost of paying, rationing, housing and caring for additional troops, which will be well over $100,000,000. And there are so-called "essential" items. These are different from critical items in that they are obtainable from regular factories, being motors for transport, trench and road-work tools, medical supplies and the like. They will cost close to $320,000,000. Finally, about $75,000,000 ought to be spent on educational orders to factories which will turn out future army supplies, and on accustoming the troops to the modern mass maneuvers in which they have had no real practice.

The total is approximately $850,000,000. It does not include an additional $150,000,000 or so, required to bring the air force up to 6,000 planes. But, even if special army appropriations and authorizations for the next two fiscal years, totaling $1,000,000,000, does not seem a great price to pay for an effective defensive force. It must be remembered, as all these disagreeable figures are pondered, that the sums are calculated on the strict basis of minimum defense needs. Even though the War Department gets every penny listed, the army will not be fitted to take the offensive beyond our continental borders.

NEW MOOD

The army has been allowed to run down, from the standpoint of quantity of equipment, because the country has been so busy with other things. It is a tribute to the army's professionals that there has been no running down from the standpoint of quality. Whatever divisions may exist in the War Department, everyone is now fortunately determined to remedy the army's deficiencies. It is hard to believe that the country, shocked out of its complacency by events abroad, will not fully approve.

In Real Life, You'd Scream.

One of the worst features of the writing which provides dialogue for screen use, is the utter artificiality of the effect. It is the rarest experience to sit through a picture and hear conversation by the players which even approximates the natural conversation of people of like circumstance and like type in real life.

If you doubt this try, sometime, to listen to the so-called bright dialogue between a young couple in a love-making scene. It is the rarest experience to sit through a picture and hear conversation by the players which even approximates the natural conversation of people of like circumstance and like type in real life.

If you doubt this try, sometime, to listen to the so-called bright dialogue between a young couple in a love-making scene. It is the rarest experience to sit through a picture and hear conversation by the players which even approximates the natural conversation of people of like circumstance and like type in real life.

They Must Be In Love.

You sit in a theater and listen to the manderings of a couple of beautiful young things, one female, one male, and you discover, from the development of the plot, that these two are supposed to be in love. They provide the "romantic interest" of the story. And they ogle each other and she smiles archly while he shows his best profile to the camera man. They talk and you listen, aghast. Of course, they are suitably matched, but you feel as though the romance of the picture is a farce.

You listen to her, for a while, and you grow wilder and wilder. You know, if it was real life and any girl talked to you like that, you'd either walk rudely away or slap her down.

Then you listen to him. And you stare with disbelief. How on earth could any woman with the intelligence of a moron find anything attractive about a man such as this?

Any picture with semi-intelligent dialogue and halfway natural talking characters is certain to be a success. It is a miraculous piece of genius. Sure to win the coveted Oscar of the Academy and likely to be placed in the archives for future generations to admire.

For, by comparison, semi-intelligence in film reappears souls like the wit of a Wilde and the wisdom of the ages, rolled into one.

Happy Medium. Of course, exact duplication of the conversation of the average family around the dinner table, or of the average young couple alone together, and in love, would be as insane and boring as anything the most hollywooden of scenarists could concoct. There'd be too many "uhs," and "uh, huhs," sighs and "I-ees" and "she ses."

But the artist should be able to hit the happy medium, retaining enough of the real life stuff to make dialogue sound natural, and injecting sufficient smartness to make heaters a trifle envious of the gift of repartee inspired.

The trouble with screen dialogue writers, save for a few outstanding exceptions, has been they have forgotten the natural touch in their pop-eyed astonishment at their own wit.

A photographed reproduction of normal love-making would be laughably dumb. But it would be better than the goggle-eyed stuff that passes for love-making on the screen.

For romance, do one thing or the other. Give me either Minnie and Mack, parked on Lovers' Lane, or give me Romeo and Juliet talking truce poetry, balcony and all.

Second thoughts, maybe all the blame should not be laid at the foot of the scenarists. Maybe modern fashions have something to do with it.

For how could you think any girl other than a sub-morose when your eye is outraged, all the time, by the thing on her head she calls a hat?

Maybe they sound more idiotic than they would, because millinery of today looks so idiotic.

Had Wrong Idea.

Applying for citizenship papers in federal court, at Lexington, Ky., Wenzel William Rosenauer, 77, admitted that although he never had been a legal citizen of the United States he had voted for the past 51 years.

A native of Austria, Rosenauer said he didn't know until recently that he was not a United States citizen. He said he thought he was a citizen through naturalization of his father, but learned his father was not naturalized until after his son was 21.

Rosenauer became aware he was not a citizen when he applied for an old-age pension.

He may work during the day-time but he must spend his nights in jail until he has brought his alimony payments up to date."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Not Legal KANSAS, CITY, Evidence.

Nov. 21.—Maurice Milligan, the federal district attorney, began the official investigation of the fraudulent voting system maintained by the Pendergast gang in December, 1936, which was shortly after the presidential election. The reporters of the Star had turned up thousands of fake registrations, but this material was of no use to Milligan except as information. It was useless as legal evidence because the only law on which Milligan could proceed was one concerning the alteration of ballots, intimidation of voters or fraud by other means of the individual's right to vote in a federal election and to have his vote counted as cast. The registration stuff might have been useful in the local courts, but they were part of the machine, and in a subsequent attempt to convict a Pendergast man of spending $10,000 of public money to improve private property it was discovered that the gang had packed the jury list with officeholders and other politicians.

So in the early stages the federal courts presented the only hope, and Milligan soon found frauds which were actionable under the federal law. He found that Republican ballots had been altered and added to the overwhelming Democratic totals, and that was a federal offense. His work showed results in February, 1937, and there have been 259 convictions to date. This just about settles the job. The registration has dropped about 60,000, the margin of fakery, and the machine is dying of starvation now.

Did Not Have To Steal. The gang never did have to steal to win an election in Kansas City, and it is sometimes said that the boys and girls—and the ladies were as larcenous as the gentlemen—stole for pure love of the sport, but that is a romantic explanation, not the practical one. The responsibility in the gang went down to the precinct captain, whose political job, his living, depended on his showing on election day.

The machine wanted to keep a big margin in Kansas City to offset any pluralities that rival candidates might amass elsewhere in Missouri, and the precinct captains were under pressure from above to swell this advantage.

The game really wasn't worth much to them. They got cheap little political sinecures, not the live, and the more nimble operators worked up to fairly decent salaries, but they were always paying out money to the organization in assessments, contributing to petty neighborhood collections for the destitute or buying flowers for funerals or weddings.

To keep their positions they stole names from other precinct rolls, registered dead men and, to avoid embarrassment with the boss, switched Republican votes over to the Democratic column. So it wasn't true sporting love of larceny that motivated them. It was a political and thus an economic necessity, and each Republican vote in his precinct was a grave reflection on the efficiency of a captain. Corresponding obligations goaded them in the primaries.

People Didn't Care. Still the people of Kansas City gave no evidence of caring. They realized that an organization so tight and efficient, so obliging and kind to the small individual in a hundred ways during the year and so malicious to ingrate voters, could always win in Kansas City and figured that a little overage, or a lot of it, was worth the mark of zeal and nothing to be laughed at, not resented.

Neither did they mind the low open gambling and the prostitution, which were immoral, to be sure, but were excused on the ground that with these industries to be worked for revenue the underworld would not rob or murder to excess in the nice parts of town.

There was a superstition—and probably nothing more—that a code existed whereby the underworld, out of gratitude for these opportunities and loyalty to Mr. Pendergast, from whom these blessings flowed, would police itself and refrain from uncouth conduct. The police department, which was crooked from the top down, bolstered this belief with its own statistics, indicating that crime was rare. A crooked police force can do this easily by ditching complaints or, for example, reducing a burglary charge to one of petty larceny.

The people didn't know much about their town, and if they resented anything it was the constant harping on corruption which was giving Kansas City a bad name. Businessmen were especially sensitive to this bad-name thing, but the fact was that businessmen, too, were beholden for favors or trying to win favors from Pendergast or afraid to approve bad publicity lest Pendergast raise their taxes or harass them otherwise.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

THE SCOTTISH RITE GAME There really is not much need to make an appeal for the Scottish Rite football game on Thursday. A record crowd is assured. The hospital for crippled children will receive a substantial sum of money.

Yet, there are many tickets left to be sold and I would like to write something about the game in the hope there may be those who will mail in checks even if they cannot come to the game.

I think I would like to write some stories about the hospital for crippled children which the Scottish Rite maintains. The stories I would write are old ones. They are stories I saw there at the hospital. One which I must have thought about more than a thousand times was of the small girl who was having her first pair of shoes fitted.

Her club feet had been corrected. She had never walked. I recall her face and the eyes, very much alive, following the lacing of the shoes. Then they put her down so that she stood between two parallel bars. She could hold to them.

She stood looking down at those very miraculous shoes. She put one foot ahead of the other. She looked up, her face radiant with a look of which, insofar as description was concerned, was quite ineffable. She put forward the other foot.

Someone asked, in a voice slightly strained: "How does it feel to walk?" Her face went solemn as she lifted it up and said a very profound truth:

"That is just one of the stories. The tickets to the game annually are translated into something like that."

TANGIBLE HOPE I remember, too, the mothers and fathers sitting there waiting for an examination to be done. Hope, and its constant associate, Despair, may be seen being examined, probed, X-rayed.

I have seen their faces light up when the doctor said: "Leave him here. We can repair that leg."

The slogan of the game is "Strong Legs Will Run That Weak Legs May Walk."

They do that. They literally do just that. The strong legs of the Georgia and Georgia Tech freshmen teams are translated into operations and into food. Because of them twisted legs become straight; deformed feet become whole. Operations are done which literally restore children to a normal life.

"Strong Legs Will Run That Weak Legs May Walk."

There is no telling how much the hospital has meant; how much happiness and hope and good it has done. This game means more than just a game. It means, as I have said before, all the things that are there—food, surgeons' knives, ether, dressings, beds, sheets, nurses, cooks, and all the thousand and one items which go into the cost of operating a hospital for children.

So go to the game. If you cannot go, send in the money for tickets. Every cent of this game goes to the hospital. There is no overhead. Every cent of every dollar received for tickets goes directly to the hospital.

THE GAME AND THE BALL The game will make the path easier for the Scottish Rite hospital for children. The "Gone With the Wind" ball will make things easier for the Junior League wards at the Henrietta Eggleston hospital for children. They, too, do a great job for children.

I wish the Junior League might have an annual ball with some movie stars in attendance so that the sound of dancing and of music might resound every year and be translated into bandages and medicines and the care of nurses and the relief of pain and suffering by children.

The real charities, after all, are those which touch the lives of the very young and the old who are helpless and who cannot care for themselves.

It is difficult to discuss them without becoming perhaps a bit too emotional. Yet, we may know that in the year ahead there will be mothers and fathers who will thank God for those strong legs that run at Grant field tomorrow, and for those merry, dancing feet at the "Gone With the Wind" ball next month.

There will be lives saved and lives soothed; there will be crippled limbs made straight and miraculous and wonderful things done. I wonder how many of those who stood in line for tickets to the "Gone With the Wind" ball—only to have all tickets sold before they reached the window—would be willing to mail in their checks just the same.

They will make some mother's face more radiant than Miss Vivien Leigh's; some father's eyes shine more than Clark Gable's in his greatest love scene.

"Grandpa Sacrificed His Timber Land Because It Was Eighty Miles From Home"

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When Dewey stood on the bridge of his flagship at the entrance of Manila Bay and gave his famous command, "Fire when you are ready, Gridley," few Americans were even aware that Spain owned the Philippines. In fact, a navy officer mopping up other Spanish properties in the Pacific a little later, seized one island of a group, thinking it the only lost available, and left the rest to make trouble for his country later.

But other governments knew all about the Philippines. They knew the underpopulated islands were an empire, and they knew that whoever owned them could control the Pacific. That was only 41 years ago, remember.

The German emperor, knowing Dewey would be instructed to take the islands, tried to buy them from Spain before it happened. Failing in that, he sent a squadron to grab what it could during the excitement. After Manila was captured, he had the nerve to ask England's help in "neutralizing" the islands until they could be properly divided among the great nations.

England had a squadron there, too, and France and Japan had sent war vessels to "observe" whatever happened. In the light of subsequent events, it is interesting to note that Japan also offered to help America occupy and rule the islands.

The Germans seemed determined to get something or save the islands for their friends, the Spaniards. When Dewey had circled Manila bay, destroying the Spanish fleet and silencing the forts en route, he came back in and anchored his ships in

Two More Allies Advance

GOOD MORNING
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"UNWEARIED ENERGY."

The late Dr. Alexander MacLaren, of Manchester, England, used a phrase which I bring you this morning. Said he, "Given a man full of faith, you will have a man tenacious in purpose, absorbed in one grand object, simple in his motives, and in whom selfishness has been driven out by the power of a mightier love, and in whom indolence is stirred into unwearied energy."

"Unwearied energy!" We are tempted to reduce the phrase to mere physical implications, but Mr. MacLaren, of course, is basing his thesis upon spiritual commitments. Observe that he begins with the proposition that a man must be full of faith. And if you will accept this basis, you can travel with Dr. MacLaren in the belief that we may attain to "unwearied energy."

Paul lays down the same principle in the sixth chapter of Galatians, concluding, "And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." In the preceding verse he says, "He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

It is only when we accept the Lordship of Christ that we can walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit—only then that we can present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto the Lord, which is our reasonable (spiritual) service. It is only then that we can be full of faith—only then that we can become absorbed in the one grand object—only then that selfishness can be driven out by the power of a mightier love and indolence be stirred into unwearied energy.

I believe the psychologists will agree that this is a sound principle.

We become good not by dreading evil, but overcoming evil with good—putting something good in the place of something evil. We give expression to impression. But I try always to remember that I dare not rely upon myself for this inward urge, but look to Him in faith and trust to bear me up lest I dash my foot against a stone.

And now as we come nearer and nearer to the stress and strain of the Christmas rush, is it not a good thing for us to pause for a moment each morning on the window sill of Heaven and renew that inward sense of strength and poise? If we are to possess unwearied energy in the days immediately ahead, we shall need daily to renew our strength in the Lord.

"Teach me all Thy steps to trace, Strong to follow in Thy grace; Learning how to love from Thee, Loving Him who first loved me."

LOST SINCE SUNDAYSub-Freezing Weather
Brings Fear for Life.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Wearily and with scant hope, 1,500 men searched for 4-year-old Irwin Jack Maxwell, lost since Sunday in the foothills. Possession feared the youngster had not survived two night of sub-freezing weather. Police dogs lost the trail.

Searchers were divided into small groups, beating carefully over designated strips of ground. The boy disappeared after apparently straying from the yard of his mother, Mrs. Wayne Maxwell, of Klamath Falls.

Police said the possibility the boy had fallen into a government irrigation ditch near his home had been eliminated.

Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the state congressional delegation, already has made an appointment for a house members and two United States senators, Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell, to call upon the chief executive in a body Friday morning.

Governor Rivers also is expected to call at the "Little White House" before the President's visit is over.

Another "Must." Another "must" on the Roosevelt schedule will be a little chat with Otis Moore, the soft-spoken manager of the Roosevelt plantation at nearby Pine Mountain, who will want to give a report on how things are doing.

Farmer Roosevelt will learn that the grapes were hurt by the blight and the long dry spell wasn't so good on the hay crops and pastures. But on the optimistic side, Manager Moore can report that he is milling about 1,000,000 feet of lumber and is curbing a little cattle raising to make room for more timber.

Included in the presidential party to Georgia are Brigadier General Edwin M. Watson, former White House military aide, now serving as a member of the secretariat; Admiral Ross T. McIntyre, the White House physician; William D. Hassett, of the White House secretariat; Captain Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aide, and Miss Marguerite Lehman, personal secretary to the chief executive.

Secret Operatives. Upward of a score of newspapermen, secret service operatives and camera men also are making the trip.

President Roosevelt left Washington in the midst of growing indications that he will temper spending and other New Deal policies at the next session of congress in a move to achieve Democratic harmony before the 1940 election.

Legislative leaders, who are forecasting a short session, expect the administration program to be brief and not as controversial as those of the past six years, correspondents pointed out. It probably will be topped by an expanded national defense measure and a proposal to widen benefits under the social security law, they said.

ROOSEVELT'S SONS
TO FEAST TWICEMost of Family Will Observe
Two Thanksgiving Holidays.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's advance of the Thanksgiving date will mean a double celebration and extra turkey for his children.

James Roosevelt, motion picture official and eldest son of the chief executive, said in New York today that this week he would "celebrate the Thanksgiving declared by the President of the United States and the Governor of New York state."

"Then I'm going up to Massachusetts," he added, "where I understand the Governor has proclaimed the 30th."

To Feast Twice. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., third-year law student at the University of Virginia, and his wife, the former Ethel duPont, will eat turkey this week in accordance with his father's proclamation but they will feast again next week during the university's Thanksgiving holidays. They have invited guests for that week-end.

Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, wife of the President's second son, said in Fort Worth that since the time of Elliott's return from a trip to New York was uncertain, they would observe both Thanksgivings at their ranch to be sure that he has at least one celebration.

Free Turkey. Texas is observing both Thanksgiving dates. Employees of the Texas State Network, the Elliott Roosevelt radio chain, are being given a turkey each for November 30.

Mrs. John Boettiger, of Seattle, the former Anna Roosevelt, and her family will have a "quiet observance" on November 23, proclaimed by the Governor of Washington. They will attend the Washington-Oregon football game, then have dinner at home with a few friends as guests. Boettiger is publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

John Roosevelt, the President's youngest son, who is employed by a Boston department store, will be away from home on a business trip on the Thanksgiving Day his father proclaimed and will celebrate the Massachusetts Thanksgiving November 30 with his wife at Nahant.

Japanese Overtures to U. S.
Are Met by Cool ReceptionWelles Has No Comment on Statement by Tokyo Envoy
That His Government Is Prepared To Discuss Arrangement To Prevent Trade Rupture.

By GERRY ROCHAU.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Fresh Japanese overtures both here and in Tokyo for readjustment of stormy United States-Japanese relations met with an indifferent reception at the State Department today.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles had, as he put it, nothing new on the situation despite word from Tokyo that Premier Abe personally had expressed hope that relations might be restored to an even keel before expiration of the commerce treaty between the two nations.

The United States served notice on Japan recently that it would end the pact January 26, ostensibly in protest against the harassment of Americans in China by Japanese military authorities.

Has No Comment. Likewise, Welles had no comment on the statement by Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese ambassador here, that his government is prepared to discuss some arrangement to prevent a rupture in trade relations when the treaty terminates.

The official silence on the two developments reinforced what Welles said in effect yesterday—that the Japanese cannot expect to gain this nation's favor until they stop interfering with American citizens and American trade in the Far East.

In an interview Horinouchi said that the Tokyo foreign office plans to discuss the trade relations question at some length with American officials. He would not say whether some makeshift agreement would be sought if negotiations for a permanent pact bogged down.

It was believed, however, that his reference to "some arrangement" might indicate that Japan is willing to accept stop-gap measures pending a readjustment of the entire American-Japanese picture. But there is little likelihood the United States would agree to such a proposal.

Talks With Russia.

Horinouchi also said that trade negotiations between Japan and Soviet Russia would be carried on concurrently with the American talks. Another foreign affairs problem facing the Tokyo government, he added, is renewal of the Russo-Japanese fisheries agreement which likewise expires in January.

He emphatically denied statements previously attributed to him that Japan is willing to make concessions in its "new order in Asia" stand to the United States in order to smooth the way for a new commerce treaty. After a lull of several weeks following outbreak of the European war, the Japanese problem again came to the fore yesterday when Hull made public an official report that Americans in Tientsin, China, are facing privation and cold as result of the difficulties of transporting goods through Japanese barriers.

goods found are of foreign origin and dutiable. He said an agent would leave Tampa today for the east coast to check the articles found and assess duty.

The first wreckage was found November 3 near Jupiter and almost every day additional material was thrown up on the sand. Some of the wreckage bore German inscriptions.

Beach combers found hog lard, butter, whisky and from 23 to 35 barrels of oil, some of which a customs agent reported to be lubricating oil.

Little was reported of the loss of the Emmy Friedrich, except that the British admiralty said the tanker carrying 40,000 barrels of oil, had been scuttled.

Twelve-year-old David Kohlstead, of Colville, Wash., won the envy of many a veteran nimrod when he bagged a four-point buck deer.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Wreckage, barrels of oil and other cargo thrown up on the east coast of Florida during the past several weeks is believed by United States customs agents here to be from the German tanker Emmy Friedrich, overhauled in the Caribbean by a British cruiser October 24 and scuttled by its crew.

Edward A. Gleason, supervising customs agent, said here today it appeared fairly evident that the

FOREIGN POLICIES DEFINED BY TOKYOAbe Explains Attitude Toward China, Britain,
U. S., Russia.

By H. O. THOMPSON.

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 22.—(UP)—Premier General Nobuyuki Abe defined Japan's attitude toward China, Great Britain and the United States and Russia in an unusually frank interview with newspapermen last night.

He said that North China and Inner Mongolia will be "placed in special relationship" with Japan and Manchukuo in the new China to be created after proclamation of the Japan-sponsored central government in Nanking headed by former Premier Wang Ching-wei.

Pressure from the United States, he indicated, will not deter Japan's determination to launch the new Nanking regime in the near future.

The premier made these points: The formula for settlement of the China war is based, with some modifications, on the declaration made by Prince Fumimaro Konoye, then premier, on December 22, 1938.

Japan will demand no territory and no indemnities. The rights of third powers will be respected. Japan will respect the sovereignty of China and will not attempt to exercise an economic monopoly. Japanese troops will remain in China so long as necessary to assure order and stability.

President Roosevelt has abrogated the Japanese-American treaty of 1911, the basic agreement between the two powers, effective January 26 next. Japan hopes this situation can be adjusted to avoid a no-treaty period. But if the Japanese-American treaty lapses "it cannot be helped."

The government now is attempting to solve all differences with Russia "one after another." A commission, meeting at Chita, Siberia, November 29, has been agreed on to delimit the borders between Japan's Manchukuoan dependency and Russia's outer Mongolia protectorate.

At the outbreak of the European war Japan announced a policy of non-intervention "which leaves the government in a free position. The government will continue to watch developments vigilantly. Readjustment of relations with Britain is desired and diplomatic efforts will be continued."

The Big Kick's in Not Being Rich

YES, it's nice to have a lot of money to spend. But don't forget there's also plenty of fun to be had "on the way up" to affluence.

There's the satisfaction of achieving something better than you're used to—stepping up, for instance, to this smart, swift, solid Buick after you've been driving run-of-the-mill cars.

Just you feel the silk-smooth surge of its great 107 horsepower micropoise-balanced straight-eight engine—and you know that all that went before was only preliminary to this big thrill.

You flip the firm, easy gearshift—and the click of its action under your hands says here's the real thing in precision-made mechanisms, not just a stopgap to tide you over.

You roll your steady, even-going, firm-riding way, and the taut, staunch, everywhere-substantial feel of this fine carriage brings a sense of "getting somewhere" as thoroughly satisfying as owning your first gilt-edged bond.

You've got action in this honey. You've got style. You've got value, and everybody knows it. You've got life—you'll romp up hills and tame the wide-open spaces and doff your cap to no one on the way.

And there's nothing light, or loose, or tinny, or labored about it anywhere. Here's the sure, steady, take-it-in-stride demeanor of a car that's competent-plus.

Suppose you have to stretch a bit to buy this Buick—well, you'll find that will only make you prize this great eight all the more!

So go look at the car that can mark a milestone in your life. It doesn't cost a thing to find out how little a really good car will stand you delivered.

PLANS LAUNCHED FOR NEW AIRPORT AT CAMP GORDON

Additional Field Would Relieve Candler Crowded Conditions, Provide Room for Private Planes

Heavy air traffic and the limited facilities at Candler field for private fliers have made it necessary that Atlanta have another airport and yesterday a movement got under way to construct an additional airport at the site of old Camp Gordon on the north side of the city.

Although the proposed new airport would be in DeKalb county, it would accommodate the growing number of private fliers in the Atlanta area.

Engineers are now at work making a survey of the proposed new airport, and a survey is expected to be completed within the next 10 days, Jesse Draper, chairman of the aviation committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said.

WPA Would Aid.
The airport would be constructed with the aid of WPA funds, it was said. DeKalb county officials are known to be interested in the project, although Commissioner Scott Candler said yesterday no application for funds or definite commitments had been made.

Commissioner Candler said the field would have to be approved by the Civil Aeronautics Authority following completion of the survey. The federal authority is said to be vitally interested in the proposed project.

If the airport materializes, Draper said several airplane factories are expected to set up branches in Atlanta or move here. He added that already more than 40 planes had been signed up for the field and that hangar facilities are provided.

Proposed plans for the field contemplate three runways, each in excess of 3,000 feet in length with a landing width of 500 feet.

Candler Crowded.
"Private fliers finding that the big air lines and regular traffic at Candler field are taking up most of the facilities," Draper pointed out. "Candler field is really becoming one of the nation's big airports and it is hoped that the new airport will give the private fliers an opportunity to continue the promotion of aviation."

Other activities, which he termed "miscellaneous flying," also could be removed to the new field, Draper said. As an example, he pointed to the Georgia Tech student flying program, which he said should be taken away from busy Candler field.

Atlanta rapidly is growing into one of the aviation centers of the southeast, it was pointed out. Experiments are now being made at Georgia Tech with a helicopter, a ship which, if perfected, will be particularly adapted to private flying, since it could be landed in any back yard.

Other members of the aviation committee of the Atlanta Chamber, which is pushing the project, are E. Smythe Gambrell, P. L. Higgins, David Marx Jr., Ed Nielson, Frank K. Shaw, secretary, Oscar Bergstrom, Jack Gray, Harry Wilensky, William Robertson and Armin Maier.

12 PLANES BOUGHT, MAY BE USED HERE

Reportedly Purchased for Proposed Atlanta-Pittsburgh Route.

Twelve palatial planes for use on the proposed Atlanta-Pittsburgh air route were purchased yesterday by the Pennsylvania Central Air Lines, at a cost of $1,500,000, it was reported yesterday from Hollywood, Cal.

Dispatches from the west coast said the Douglas Aircraft Corporation had been awarded the contract for 10 DC-3 transport planes for use on the proposed route. Six of the planes are to be delivered soon and the remainder in March.

The Atlanta-Pittsburgh route was one of six proposed routes affecting Atlanta which were submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Authority for approval. Frank Shaw, secretary of the aviation committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and other Atlantans have been in Washington attending hearings before the federal authority.

Meanwhile, hearings continued in Washington yesterday on application of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., for permission to inaugurate air service from St. Louis to Nashville, which would give Atlanta direct service to St. Louis.

MOVIE CONTEST PUP AWAITS NEW HOME

Theater Adds 25 Double Passes to Runners-Up in Competition.

Attention, boys and girls! If you haven't already entered the novel new contest The Constitution is conducting just for you, you'd better do so right now. First prize is a friendly, pedigreed, wire-haired fox terrier, just like Mr. Asta, the famous dog of the Thin Man.

Many of you may have seen him on display in his pen in the lobby of Loew's Grand theater where he has already made friends with hundreds of theatergoers. In case you haven't yet seen him, he'll be at the theater until next Sunday, when he's going to be given away to some lucky boy or girl not more than 15 years old.

All you have to do to win him is tell The Constitution which of the many comics it publishes daily and Sunday you like the best. Maybe it's Smitty, or The Gumps, or perhaps it's Jane Arden, or one of the many others; we don't know, but we'd like to find out.

With your letter telling which comic you like the best, write a short essay of not more than 50 words on why you made your choice. That's all there is to it: the boy or girl submitting the best letter will be given Atlanta's Mr. Asta absolutely free of charge.

And in addition, Loew's Grand theater has decided to give the 25 runners-up the opportunity to see the real Mr. Asta on the screen. So the boys and girls submitting the 25 next best letters will receive a pair of passes to see William Powell, Myrna Loy and Asta in "Another Thin Man," which opens tomorrow at Loew's Grand.

The deadline in the contest is midnight Saturday, so don't delay in sending in your entries. Just mail them to the Contest Editor, Atlanta Constitution.

ARTIE SHAW QUITS HIS BAND FOR GOOD

Maestro Sick; Will Go to Mexico for Rest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Artie Shaw is a sick man—so sick that he is leaving his band for good and going to Mexico to rest for several months.

His orchestra, which is estimated to have earned from $250,000 to $400,000 in the last year from records, radio, movie and dance engagements, will continue playing under leadership of Tony Pastor, first saxophonist. When Shaw returns to New York he will organize a new band, he disclosed through press agents today.

Shaw has suffered from a nervous ailment since April. In an interview late in the summer he voiced the opinion that "the music business stinks." That, he added, went for the jitterbugs, who were always seeking his autograph.

DEKALB POLICE PROBE BURGLARY

$50 Reported Taken by Prowler Monday.

DeKalb county police yesterday investigated the theft of $50 from the home of Dr. H. Z. Miller, 1669 North Decatur road, taken from Mrs. Miller's purse while the family was eating dinner Monday.

Boss Hayes, negro cook, reported to Dr. Miller that he had seen a negro prowler in Mrs. Miller's room and had chased him from the house. The purse was found under the bed with a few dollars left in it.

Police questioned members of the domestic staff and sought fingerprints on a first-floor window which appeared to be jimmied.

PEACHTREE STREET PROPERTY IS SOLD

Semi-Central Real Estate Deal Involves $58,500.

The triangular-shaped property at the intersection of Peachtree, West Peachtree and Baker streets, occupied by business firms, including a liquor store on the ground floor, was sold Tuesday at a trading price of $58,500.

The two-story building was sold by Consolidated Realty Investments, Inc., to Rolyat, Inc., a local corporation, the sale being negotiated by J. L. Morrison, local real estate dealer. The seller received as part payment a garage building at 22 Baker street, valued at about $20,000, and the buyer assumed a mortgage loan of $31,000.

The lot on which the business property stands once was occupied by the Willis Ragan home. Later a hotel was operated on it. It measures 35 feet at the apex, or on Baker street, 111 feet each on Peachtree and West Peachtree, and 86 feet on the north line. The sale is one of the first recorded on semi-central property in some time.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT BY GENERAL MOTORS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—General Motors Corporation last week of violating the federal trust act filed a motion in federal court today for a new trial. The filing was a mere formality, though, as special Judge Walter C. Lindsey had overruled the motion when it was presented in court last Friday.

General Motors' counsel has indicated the case will be taken to the United States circuit court of appeals at Chicago.

U. S. Will Not Condone Neutral Trade Interference

England Is Notified That All Rights Under International Law Are Reserved; Britain Establishes 'Commercial Passports' for American Shippers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Great Britain has been notified that the United States does not indorse any principle involving interference with genuinely neutral trade on the high seas.

Summer Welles, acting secretary of state, told reporters today that this word had gone out along with the assertion that this country naturally was reserving all its rights under international law.

Welles' disclosure followed closely an announcement by the British embassy that Great Britain had established a sort of commercial passport system for American shippers. Under this system an American desiring to ship goods to European neutrals may "apply to the nearest British consulate on special forms obtainable from any British consulate in the United States." If the consulate considers the consignment "unobjectionable" it will issue a document called a "navicert."

Fee Is Charged.
Later, if the ship master is threatened with search or seizure by British warships he can display his navicert and be allowed to proceed. A fee will be charged for the navicerts to cover the cost of necessary telegraphic inquiries, the British embassy announced. It said the purpose of the navicert system was to reduce "to a minimum the interference with neutral trade inevitably occasioned" by the exercise of legitimate belligerent rights.

Commenting on the navicert plan, Welles told his press conference he saw no reason at present to regard it as an interference with this country's neutral rights.

Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, called on Welles today and said afterward that the navicert program was not discussed. Welles told reporters the program was a matter between the British government and American exporters and did not involve the United States officially. It was pointed out at the State Department that the system was purely voluntary and that American exporters did not have to use it.

Announcing the new program, the British embassy said that for the present it would apply only to United States' shipments to 10 neutral countries—Italy, Belgium,

Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Iceland, Latvia, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden. Although the neutrality act and President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation prohibit American ships from visiting some of the countries designated, an American exporter could obtain a navicert covering a cargo shipped on the vessel of some other neutral nation. The embassy said the system would be expanded to include other countries "as opportunity offers."

FUND WORKERS TO MAKE FINAL REPORT TODAY

Success in Attempt To Raise $541,408 Will Be Determined at Final Luncheon Meeting.

Today is the day in the Greater Atlanta Community Fund appeal when success or failure will be written on the blackboards at the Atlanta Athletic Club as solicitors gather for their final report meeting at 12:30 o'clock.

Just how near the goal of $541,408 workers have been able to show receipts in the closing days of the appeal will be seen when all divisions have been heard from at the luncheon.

Fund headquarters at 11 Pryor street reported late Tuesday that many firms and individuals who made pledges in previous years still had not been heard from this year. It was thought, however, that some of the business or persons had been contacted by solicitors over the week end and reports on gifts are being held up until the meeting today.

The outstanding combined gift tabulated by auditors late yesterday came from the officials and employees of Rogers Grocery Stores in Greater Atlanta.

Another large contribution came in late yesterday from cab drivers with individual gifts of the men indicating they had adopted some uniform system of contribution, possibly basing their gifts on the widely publicized "minute-a-day" program.

A total of 73 cab drivers contributed $138.95 to the fund, in addition to a healthy gift by A. L. Belle Isle, president of Atlanta Baggage & Cab Company.

Besides the cash donations, the firm gave space on 150 taxicabs for display of Community Fund posters during the early part of the appeal.

YES-THIS IS INFORMATION. GLAD TO TELL YOU FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE IS FINE FOR COLDS-USE IT AT HOME- YOU WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is to find the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such as one as cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

A Three Days' Cough is Your Danger Signal

Even if other medicines have failed you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Coughs and colds can develop if your chest cold is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. See that the name Creomulsion is on the bottle and you will get the genuine product and the relief you want.

RIDING THE CIRCUIT AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

BY THOS. M. ELLIOTT

"Here's That Man Again." "O mamma, here's that Circuit Rider Man Again! Wonder if he thinks he must be like Tennyson's brook, and go on and on forever."

Sorry, folks. But you see I can't break the habit I got into 31 years and more ago. Then there is the expressed wish of the late Clark Howell, that I might live to write these circuit-riding stories for 100 years at least. And "my public," all the way from New Jersey to Florida, won't let me stop, for they send in their subscriptions each fall just to get these more-or-less interesting jottings.

Then, again, like the soldier in a hospital surrounded by beautiful nurses, "I'm having a wonderful time," and don't want to stop. So far I have picked and pecked on this typewriter just 25,782,411 times, as I put together the letters spelling out the words for 22 columns each year for 31 years already gone over the dam.

The Constitution has been mighty liberal with us heretofore in the matter of space, and we Methodist folk must play ball with them, and give them news that is worth while and fit to print.

Come on, Pegasus; let's ride 'em, cowboy!

Old man Bill Turner, down in the pressroom, is the only man now connected with The Constitution that was here when I started 31 years ago. He and I are neck and neck in our terms of service. We are neck and neck, but his neck is the longer, since he has been with The Constitution 62 years. I wonder how it feels to be that old.

Listen, Typewriter People.

Wouldn't it be a good advertisement for the typewriter I am using, if I should mention the machine that has responded to my picking and pecking during these 31 years as I spelled out the 25,782,411 letters to make all the words? And to think that I haven't spent a dime for repairs.

Maybe, if they'd give me a brand-new typewriter, free-of-charge, I'd just casually, incidentally, inadvertently, without premeditation make mention of the make of machine that has stood by me so nobly in this work as well as in a similar amount of private work at home.

All I have to say to 'em is, "Barkis is willin'!"

Welcome for Sister Jabesh Gilead.

We regular attendants at annual conference this year give more than a cordial welcome to a newcomer, who promises to be a regular fixture henceforth—Mrs. Ketrushia Gilead.

Sister Gilead is the lifetime companion and wife of our well-known and esteemed Jabesh Gilead, who has attended conference sessions during recent years. Like her husband she has had varied experiences in church affairs, and has engaged in all forms of work connected with the church, all the way from scrubbing the kitchen getting ready for the new preacher to being president of the parsonage aid society.

Sister Gilead comes as the representative of the Little Red Church in the Piney Woods, of the Skyline circuit, out in the Rural district. Her husband, Jabesh Gilead, is the delegate-at-large from the Rural district. Their preacher is named the Rev. Jeremiah Goodman.

For the first time in history each church this year is entitled to a delegate in the conference, and Sister Gilead was unanimously elected to be that delegate. She insists that she is glad to be here, so she can keep an eye on Uncle Jabesh. During previous years, when he was here alone, she was fearful of his welfare in the big town, where there are so many bright lights, and so many allurements. She says she will now rest easier.

"You know, I rather like this conference affair. I didn't know there are so many Methodists in Georgia. I just thought," said she, "that because the Methodists are not everlastingly blowing their horns about themselves they were small potatoes. But, shucks, this meeting is well attended and attended by a whole lot of bally-hoo."

Continuing her remarks, Sister Gilead said: "And I have seen so many of our old preachers. There's old Brother Plumblin, who was our preacher 34 years ago, and old Brother Zeke Chisellon, who baptized our baby Nathaniel."

Sister Gilead is concerned for the bishop's welfare. "Land sakes, I don't see how he stands it. No wonder his hair is getting thin, having to contend with all those preachers and some cantankerous laymen. Wait till we women get to be preachers, we'll make it easier for the bishops."

Death Rides Again.

As the North Georgia Conference assembles its plans are again interrupted by the death of a minister designated to take a prominent part in the program of the week. Bishop Wallace E. Brown, of the Methodist Episcopal church, was to take part in the Thursday recognition of union service. Illness forced him to ask Bishop Charles W. Flint, of Syracuse, N. Y., to take his place. Bishop Brown died Saturday at Portland, Ore., and Bishop Flint, his substitute, is to leave Atlanta tonight for Syracuse, to conduct Bishop Brown's funeral.

Mrs. Ketrushia Gilead, wife of well-known Jabesh Gilead, conference delegate representing the Little Red Church in the Piney Woods, in the rural district.

For the past 26 years, with only two exceptions, there has occurred at conference time the death of one or more ministers connected with the conference, or some member of a preacher's family. The series of conference deaths started in 1913, when the conference was in session at Elberton.

Odds and Ends Found Here and There.

Rev. J. E. Russell, a conference member for 50 years, living at McDonough, is to be present Wednesday afternoon, and answer to roll call for the fiftieth time. Although Mr. Russell is afflicted and confined to a rolling chair, he has not to miss the roll call.

The Rev. L. M. Twigg, district superintendent of the Augusta district, says he has had 52 quarterly meetings this year with dinner served on the grounds, and that bad weather interfered only twice.

The Rev. Claude Hendrick, district superintendent of the Gainesville district, within the bounds of which is the Dahleonega gold field, says he conducted quarterly meetings at Dahleonega last Sunday, and found the gold enthusiasm running at high temperature. Methodists up in that region plan to do right by their preacher, he says, and increase his salary next year.

Monday when I reached Atlanta I found a line of people four blocks long, waiting for a chance to buy tickets to that "Gone With the Wind" affair. I asked 213 of them if they went to church the day before. They said they didn't get to go, as they didn't have time.

Nineteen Deaths This Year.

During this twelfth month death has taken a heavy toll among conference members and widows of deceased ministers. Twelve ministers have passed away, while seven widows of deceased ministers have died. This is an all-time high record for ministerial deaths in one year. The year 1891 had 11 deaths, and several years recorded as many as 10. Ten of the 12 dying this year were supernuaries. The total number of years given the ministry by the 12 deceased ministers is 523. It is to be noted that four of them died in June this year, and within nine days of each other. Two died in January within 10 days of each other, and two passed away in October within six days of each other, as did two others who died in April.

The full list of ministers dying this year, together with the number of years in the ministry, is: Rev. J. B. Allen, of Atlanta, died January 3, after a ministry of 50 years; Dr. W. B. Dillard, of Atlanta, died October 14, after 50 years in the conference; Rev. A. D. Echols, of Woodstock, died on January 21; Rev. A. L. Hale, of Atlanta, served as a minister 19 years prior to his death last November 24; Dr. J. W. Johnson, of Newnan, had served 39 years in the Methodist ministry before his death on October 8.

Rev. P. A. Kellett, of Oxford, was a conference member 35 years prior to his death on March 5; Rev. J. H. Little, of Atlanta, had been conference member 55 years when he died on June 18; Rev. John G. Logan, of Elberton, had given 42 years to the Methodist ministry before his death on April 27; Rev. Henry B. Mays, of Norcross, passed away on April 21, after a conference membership of 44 years; Rev. B. P. Read served 38 years as a minister before he died on June 26 at his home in Atlanta; Rev. A. G. Shankle died June 21 at his Oxford home, after serving 42 years; and Rev. W. W. Simmons, of Hapeville, died on June 18, after being a conference member 45 years.

Other deaths this year connected with the conference are of seven widows of deceased ministers who were members of this church body. They were Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mrs. J. A. Timmerman, Mrs. Ford McRee, Mrs. J. R. King, Mrs. W. D. Anderson, Mrs. Julius Magath and Mrs. F. D. Cantrell. Next Sunday afternoon at Wesley Memorial church a special memorial session of the conference will be held in honor of the ministers and widows who have passed away during the year.

changing lines of charges throughout the conference territory. The transfer of men from other conferences, and the transfer of men from this to outside conferences, also was considered at length. The Rev. L. P. Huckaby, of the Dalton Hamilton Street church, is the only conference member planning to superannuate this week, so far announced. He has been a conference member for 33 years, and now retires on account of ill health.

To Read Appointments.

The Revs. E. C. Dewey and E. D. Carr, of the M. E. church; the Rev. W. M. Hinton, of the M. P. church; Dr. W. G. Henry, Atlanta; the Rev. C. L. Middlebrook, Athens-Elberton; the Rev. L. M. Twigg, Augusta; the Rev. J. S. Sullivan, Decatur-Oxford; the Rev. Claude Hendrick, Gainesville; the Rev. W. M. Twigg, Griffin; the Rev. J. W. Veatch, LaGrange; the Rev. Augustus Ernest, Marietta; and the Rev. H. C. Holland, Rome.

Reading of the new appointments is announced for Sunday afternoon immediately following the memorial service by Bishop Decell.

A class of 10 young men is applying for admission on trial into the traveling ministry, having passed approved examinations and having been recommended by their various district conferences. Should they be admitted on trial, they will be assigned pastoral work under the supervision of district superintendents, and continue their study course four years more, with annual examinations.

Members of the class seeking admission on trial are:

The Rev. John Thompson Adams, of Emory University; the Rev. Henry North, of Norwood; the Rev. Charles Thompson Gray, of LaFayette; the Rev. Charles Williams, of Dunwoody; the Rev. Julian Thompson, of LaGrange; the Rev. J. H. Pittner, of Austell; the Rev. Lewis Charles Johnson, of Dunwoody; the Rev. Ernest Martin, of Atlanta; the Rev. A. M. Sibley, of Dahleonega; and the Rev. Ray H. Firth, of Decatur.

Requirements Told.

Young Methodist ministers who seek admission into the Methodist itinerancy must undergo rigorous examinations, all the way up from their local church quarterly conference and district conference, and then pass what is almost equivalent to a third-degree test when they finally reach the annual conference. Not only are moral standards looked into, but also the gifts and graces of the candidate, as well as health, doctrinal soundness, general acceptability. Then, before the conference will take notice of his application, he must have had four years of college work. Upon admission on trial, he assumes an additional course of study requiring four years to complete.

Since 1918, all ministers admitted to trial into the Methodist conference are required to take a vow to abstain from all use of tobacco in all forms. Little difficulty has been encountered relative to the anti-tobacco law, and nearly all young ministers are faithful and true to their vow, it is said.

Laying Groundwork for Methodist Church Merger

Gathered at the conference table at the Henry Grady hotel yesterday, members of the Georgia Conference of the Methodist church made final plans for unification. Working on the changes are (left to right) Dr. E. C. Dewey, of the Methodist Episcopal church, of Atlanta; Bishop J. L. Decell, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of Birmingham; and Rev. W. M. Hinton, of the Methodist Protestant church, of Atlanta. The three branches of Methodists will be joined into one church, the Methodist Church, by the conference.

One of the very first inquiries to be made at the opening session of the conference today will be, "Who are admitted on trial?" Committees on applicants and admissions will present the names of such men as have passed the regular requirements outlined above. Ministers who compose the two committees are:

The Revs. G. M. Acree, D. S. Patterson, J. W. Stephens, W. H. LaPrade, Paul Turner, J. F. Varbrugh, J. W. O. McElhenny, G. F. Venable, W. M. Jones, W. H. Clark, R. P. Ethridge, John Tate and G. W. Hamilton.

Part of the advance work of the conference session to be done today will be the examination of undergraduates of the first, second, third and fourth-year classes. As members of the classes pass their tests, they will be advanced. Members of the second-year class will be voted into full connection and to deacons' orders, and members of the fourth-year class will be voted elders' orders. Ordination of deacons and elders will be Sunday afternoon.

Deaths Reach Record.

Young ministers who have been on trial two years, and who will be admitted into full connection this afternoon, and ordained deacons Sunday afternoon, are the Revs. Louie Stanford Baugh, Thomas Coleman Ford, Tim Woodrow Holbrook, Ernest Pope Kendall and John Deen Maxwell. Announcement is made that the number of deaths occurring this year among conference members reaches the all-time high record. Twelve ministers have died during the year, and seven widows of deceased ministers also have passed away during this twelve-month period.

Ministers who have died are as follows, with names and number of years they served the church given:

The Rev. J. B. Allen, of Atlanta, 57 years; Dr. W. B. Dillard, of Atlanta, 50 years; the Rev. A. D. Echols, of Woodstock, 53 years; the Rev. A. L. Hale, of Atlanta, 19 years; Dr. J. W. Johnson, of Newnan, 39 years; the Rev. P. A. Kellett, of Oxford, 35 years; the Rev. J. H. Little, of Atlanta, 55 years; the Rev. J. G. Logan, of Elberton, 43 years; the Rev. Henry B. Mays, of Norcross, 44 years; the Rev. B. P. Read, of Atlanta, 38 years; the Rev. A. G. Shankle, of Oxford, 42 years; and the Rev. W. A. Simmons, of Hapeville, 45 years.

Total number of years given the church by the 12 deceased ministers is 523 years.

In addition to the 12 deaths of ministers this year, there have also occurred seven deaths among widows of deceased ministers who were former members of the conference body. They were Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mrs. J. H. Timmerman, Mrs. Ford McRee, Mrs. J. R. King, Mrs. W. D. Anderson, Mrs. Julius Magath and Mrs. F. D. Cantrell.

Bishop Wallace E. Brown, of the Methodist Episcopal church, was designated to attend this conference, and take part in the union recognition services. His

IRVIN S. COBB SAYS:

"Thanks for the memories"

"WHEN you Pabst people put the silk Blue Ribbon back on the Pabst bottle, you did millions of us old-timers a mighty fine turn.

"Because you call to our minds a whole stream of golden memories—memories of the good times we used to enjoy over glasses of as satisfying a beer as ever was brewed or, I reckon, ever will be brewed.

"You make us think of happy hours at fish fries and barbecues and picnics and in the home, where your most delectable and always dependable product was the favorite refreshment; and we think of glamorous evenings at Rector's and Delmonico's—of oyster suppers and bubbling welsh rarebits and silver chafing dishes and mugs of cold, clear Pabst.

"Accordingly we have welcomed the news that again the silk Blue Ribbon, like a badge of honor, is on the Pabst bottle, to remind us of those pleasant by-gone days, and to be a renewed guarantee of solace and comfort through the years and generations to come—THE BEER OF GOOD CHEER.

"So once more, thanks for the memories. And thanks, too, for the certainty that the silk Blue Ribbon will continue to be a proof and a pledge of high excellence in the quality; a symbol to show that when we call for Pabst we'll know exactly what we're getting—a BREW WITH A GREAT PAST, A BREW WITH A GREAT FUTURE."

Gratefully yours,

Irvin S. Cobb.

KISS AFTER MIDNIGHT

Astrid Sees In Faith Answer to Her Problem of Ridding Herself of Walter

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

SYNOPSIS. Faith Gardner, orphaned as a child, is raised by a cross old aunt in a New Hampshire village. She is a stenographer in a factory and when her aunt dies she goes to New York. Lonely, jobless sometimes, after two years she and Gretchen Cole furnish a small apartment. Faith is then a secretary in the firm of which Walter Edmonds is vice president. Gretchen, who left an Ohio town after a shattered romance, is a stylist in a big store. Greg Heath, employed by the Edmonds firm, takes her to a cocktail party given by Edmonds' wife Astrid. She greets Faith graciously but Faith feels she has met an enemy as dangerous as she is beautiful. Walter presents her to Franz Braggonier, musician and composer, whom Astrid met in Hawaii. She loves Franz and secretly plans to divorce Walter. Even before Faith meets Carl Edmonds, Walter's brother and a famous aviator and engineer, she is in love with him. As she leaves, the Edmonds' pretty, headstrong, 16-year-old daughter Sue meets her, saying she has run away from school again. Sue likes Faith and at her suggestion Walter makes her his secretary. He asks her to win Sue's confidence so she can suggest how to deal with her. Philip Turner, who drinks too much but is charming when sober, becomes interested in Gretchen. Faith and Sue, and looking confused and embarrassed when it was over. Faith had recognized the voice that asked for Sue as Michael Britton. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII

And Walter, looking down at the delicately sculptured profile framed by the soft black hair, was thinking how easy it was to talk to his new secretary and how much, since Miss Hillis had been apt to giggle or look confused when they discussed anything except business, he admired Faith Gardner's poise. Moreover, Sue liked her. It went beyond that, in fact. It was not just one of those schoolgirl "crushes"; it had given Sue a friend with a steady influence. It amused him that Astrid did not object to their daughter's friendship with his secretary. And there were people who thought Astrid a snob.

Everyone stood when the familiar strains of "Lohengrin" began. Then Ann, preceded by a tall blond girl in blue, Ann incredibly lovely on her wedding day, her gown a white sheath, her sheer veil voluminous, walked slowly down the carpeted aisle on the arm of her father. It was over so quickly and when Faith and Walter came out into the cold sunlight, he said, "Why, you're crying."

She gave a broken, embarrassed little laugh. "Yes, I always get emotional at weddings."

He smiled. "Just so you don't get emotional at your own which, by the way, I hope you don't attend for some time. Or am I being selfish?"

It was Astrid's car, a sleek, yellow thing, that he was driving today.

Driving back through the snarling early afternoon traffic he said, "Miss Hillis has been with me for years and now until today did I know she had a mother and father and brothers and sisters. Odd, isn't it, that you spend more time with your business associates than you do with your family and know so little about them. Often I've wondered where they go after 5 o'clock and if they're happy. You . . . he glanced at her, "I do know something about you. Sue has told me and in very glowing terms, I assure you."

(But, Walter, you do not know that I'm in love with you, brother!)

It occurred to him then to ask her to have luncheon with him. There was no harm in it, surely. Yet if he were seen with this unusually attractive girl, harm would be made of it by some people and perhaps a distorted version would reach Astrid.

At the office he paused as Faith was removing her coat and said, smiling, "I was going to ask you to have luncheon with me, Miss Gardner, but unfortunately some people get the wrong impression when a man is seen outside the office with his secretary."

"Thank you for the thought." Your wife has tea in out-of-the-way places with Franz Braggonier. . . . She was almost afraid to think it.

Another week passed. Strange, that busy days could pass so slowly. Gretchen asked no questions but Faith was certain that Gretchen saw hope meet instant death when the telephone rang and it was either Greg or Katharine or Philip. But never Carl, asking for her.

She came one evening for dinner and Gretchen was delighted with her. Sue insisted on helping with the dishes, saying as she dried them awkwardly, "This is fun!" They had listened to the radio, Gretchen told Sue about her work, saying if she got the promotion she expected she would go to Paris, and Faith described Ann's wedding. When the telephone rang, Gretchen did not move and Faith knew, going toward it, that Gretchen hoped the call was for her. But the call was for Sue who sprang out of her chair. The conversation was brief, Sue saying guardedly, "I'll be there . . . Yes, it's all right . . . I'm . . . Good-bye." Everything in Gretchen's face, and looking confused and embarrassed when it was over. Faith had recognized the voice that asked for Sue as Michael Britton.

"Obviously she told him to call her here," Faith said to Gretchen after they had sent Sue home in a taxi.

Gretchen yawned. "The poor little rich girl who thought it was fun to dry dishes. Poor kid. She has a lot of good in her. She's sweet and generous and dear but some of the good has been smothered by too much money and a mother too busy with other things. She's headed for rough seas, I'm afraid."

Faith said, rising, running her fingers through her hair, "and I'm on the raft with her, Gretchen. She's Carl's niece."

The morning that Walter did not come to the office Faith was so deluged with telephone calls from department heads and particularly from the legal department that she was nearly frantic. Later that morning Astrid called her.

"Mr. Edmonds is ill," Astrid said in her soft voice. "Oh, nothing serious. A cold. We, the doctor and I, prevailed upon him to stay in today. However, he insists upon seeing you. Some report he began yesterday and didn't finish. I believe. You probably know about it. So will you come up this afternoon? I really don't think he will rest until that is off his mind."

"I understand, Mrs. Edmonds. I'm glad it isn't serious."

"Thank you. He'll expect you." At noon she went out into the sharp November wind to meet Gretchen and Philip for luncheon. It was a gay luncheon; Philip drank nothing. More and more Faith liked him and more and more she saw how deeply he cared for Gretchen. Somehow you knew by a mere glance and a mere word. Wisely he was biding his time but he did not know that Gretchen, like Carl, had barred marriage. She thought, "Philip you and I love the wrong person."

She said at last, "I'll have to leave you two to your merchandising. Mr. Edmonds is ill and I'm going up to his apartment to finish a report."

When she left, Philip said, "She's a dear."

Gretchen flicked an ash from her cigarette. "Yes, but dear fool, Philip. It's only a matter of time before I'll help her pick up the pieces of her heart which Carl Edmonds has used and finished with. I'll begin to function truly as her friend then."

A portfolio under her arm, Faith said, "Penthouse" to the elevator operator. In a few moments the wide white doors, which had opened some weeks ago to admit Carl into her life and into her heart, would open again.

Astrid, wearing an afternoon frock of the deep warm shade of blue she liked, came out of her bedroom and opened the door of her husband's room, a man's room, furnished with massive mahogany pieces which had come to him through his family and about which he had been stubbornly but gently insistent on keeping for his own when they furnished this new and elaborate apartment. The decorator, with startling ideas, had looked askance but Walter said he preferred to live more with the old than the new, that he preferred comfort to fashion and that she, the decorator, could give full vent to her ideas in any room except his. Thus his room had become an incongruous bit of New England in a setting as modern as tomorrow.

Later Astrid stood unnoticed for a few moments on the threshold of the room, seeing Walter, his face somewhat pale against his dark dressing gown, sitting in a deep green chair which faced the window with Faith beside him, reading a report in her clear, throaty young voice. Astrid's expression, that of the perfect hostess always, altered suddenly. Walter and this girl of whom Sue was so fond. . . . Why hadn't she thought of it before? Why had she been so stupid not to see that Faith Gardner was her solution? She did not know anything about her except that she was lovely and looked well born—even if she were not.

Only yesterday Franz had said with growing impatience, "You see, my dear, it is impossible. You cannot leave your husband and your daughter." But she could not relinquish what she had found in Hawaii and now the answer to a divorce, which would open the way to a quiet marriage with Franz some where in Europe, was in this room. Faith. . . .

Of course, people would talk about Walter and his pretentious secretary but the tarnish did not linger on a man as it lingered on a woman. And Walter was too successful, too thoroughly likable to be scorned. And Faith Gardner, who was nothing, who had nothing, should be forever grateful to her. Astrid thought, for the first time, of the past. Her husband, her daughter, her home—all for Faith. For her Astrid? To be near Franz and his music—anywhere.

"Am I intruding?" she came forward, smiling at Faith. "Hello Miss Gardner. I thought perhaps you might like some tea to break the monotony."

"Good idea," Walter said hoarsely. "There's really nothing wrong with me except a slight cold, but Mrs. Edmonds pampers me. Is Sue in? If she knew Miss Gardner was here, she would be, I'm sure."

Astrid shook her softly waving blond head. "No, dear, she isn't. I'll ring for tea." She must be careful, so careful and so clever. "But she'll be with you tonight."

"Sorry I have to miss the Braggonier concert."

When Astrid left, he said, "I've been trying to persuade Mrs. Edmonds to go south with me, and Sue, too. But I seem to be the only member of the family who wants a winter holiday."

Astrid would not be persuaded because of Franz Braggonier and Sue because of Michael Britton, Faith thought.

"It isn't a conference! It's a party," she cried from the doorway. "How are you, Daddy? May I have some tea, Faith?" It's getting awfully cold. . . . How's Gretchen? She has the loveliest red hair. . . .

Basis of Next Peace Treaty Outlined by British Expert

Sir Walter Layton Says Germans Must Realize Boundaries of Neighbors Must Not Be Altered by Force; Poland, Czechoslovakia Restored.

"The Allied War Aims—a Plan for European Peace." Under this heading the London News Chronicle has published an article by its chairman, Sir Walter Layton, eminent British economist, giving in detail his suggestions for a fuller statement of Allied aims. This is the third of a series presenting the major portion of his article.

By SIR WALTER LAYTON, For North American Newspaper Alliance, Incorporated.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The terms which follow are such as could be accepted by Germany tomorrow without humiliation, without sacrificing her legitimate ambitions, and without detriment to material advancement. They offer her the opportunity of sharing in the rebuilding of world prosperity and an honorable place in a new community of nations. In such a setting there will be ample outlet for her energies and her genius. But they require that she shall recognize the equal rights of other peoples and abandon the hope of domination by force.

Three main principles must be accepted before we sheathe the sword:

1. The restoration of a free Poland and a free Czechoslovakia must be assured.
2. It must be laid down that in the absence of agreement between the disputants new boundaries of other specific matters in dispute shall be settled by the judgment of disinterested parties, and that the contesting parties shall agree to accept this judgment in advance. This shall apply to the boundaries of Czechoslovakia and Poland and to the repair of damage done.
3. There must be guarantees that the present situation shall not recur. This means, negatively, removing the possibility of aggression and, positively, insuring a situation in which the legitimate desire to live peacefully, to trade and develop material prosperity, may be satisfied.

Hitler Convinced Self. It may be that insistence on the independence of Czechoslovakia will postpone peace indefinitely, for Hitler has declared that Bohemia is a dangerous salient aimed at the heart of Germany, while the restoration of Poland—or at all events, the Poland of last August—is impossible owing to the action of Russia.

But the basic fact remains that the freedom of two independent nations has been stolen from them. The theft cannot be condoned. Again and again Herr Hitler himself has recognized the justice of the right of these two nations to independence. If their freedom is not restored, there can be no confidence or sense of security in Europe.

We should, therefore, require that Germany should withdraw from these countries to an agreed line before any discussion takes place and that order should be kept by neutral troops. This would apply a method which Herr Hitler himself proposed but did not carry

VEENDAM REMOVED FROM 'PIRATE' LIST

Nazis Say Ship Not Among Those To Be 'Sunk on Sight.'

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(UP)—A navy spokesman said last night that the Holland-America liner Veendam had been placed "by mistake" on a list of 58 British and French vessels subject to be sunk without warning because they allegedly have been armed as "pirate" ships.

The Veendam is on the Atlantic bound for Rotterdam from New York with 123 passengers including six Americans.

The navy spokesman said that the Veendam had been withdrawn from the list and stood in no danger whatsoever from German naval forces.

It was explained that the Veendam possibly had been confused with some British or French ship, perhaps the 4,000-ton French ship Vendome.

"Anyway," the spokesman added, "the published list was compiled by newspapers and not by the admiralty or the high command and therefore it does not constitute the list supplied to German warship commanders of ships to be sunk on sight."

ARMED VESSELS' NAMES LISTED

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The following 58 British passenger ships and freighters are listed by German newspapers as being armed against submarines:

Alumina, Alcantara, Almanara, Almada, Alcantara, Anselmi, Baltrover, Britannia, Cameronia, Capetown Castle, Dilwara, Dunvegan Castle, Dynamo, Empress of Russia, Georgic, Highland Bridge, Haig Rose, Kanibla, Leawson, Mauretania, Queen Mary, Rajputana, Rawalpindi, Staffordshire, St. Lindsay, Scythia, Seaford, Talma, Asturias, Avelona Star, Britannic, Boroda, Brisbane Star, Caledonia, Celtic Star, City of Capetown, Daymouth (not listed in Lloyd's), Denbighshire, Dundin Star, Duchess of Bedford, Highland Patriot, Highland Princess, Karama, Lasseus Malanca, Melrose Abbey, Pacific President, Rafat, Reliant, Samaria, Silveray, Silverpalm, Talthybius, Transylvania, Umtata, Viking Star and the Lusitania.

BOMB PLOT SOLVED, GESTAPO ASSERTS

have been captured on November 9 while attempting to escape across the border into the Netherlands at Venloo.

The Nazi report said that "contradictory" claims whether they were captured while still in Holland or when in Germany are at present being examined."

(Netherlands reports of November 9 said that occupants of a German automobile, which crossed the frontier on foot and engaged in gunplay with occupants of a Netherlands automobile near the Venloo border customs station. One report said two persons were killed, another that only one was injured, but all accounts agreed that several occupants of the Netherlands car were carried into Germany.)

Plotting Charges Told. The Nazi communiqué charged that The Hague, Netherlands capital, was headquarters of the British intelligence service for western Europe.

It charged further that those headquarters attempted to "organize plots" in Germany, and sought to "establish contact with what were surmised to be revolutionary organizations."

On the basis of German emigrants' stories, it went on to say, the British believed that "opposition existed in the (German) state party and army with the aim of causing revolution in the Reich."

Officers in the security service of the black-shirted elite guard were assigned to establish contact with the British headquarters at The Hague, it recounted, adding:

"In the belief that the British were dealing with revolutionary German officers, representatives of the British intelligence service revealed their aims and plans."

"In order to be able to keep continual connection with these supposed German officers they delivered certain English radio sending and receiving apparatus through which the German secret state police had maintained connection with the British government until today."

Elser was caught, Himmler said, when he attempted to flee "illegally" into Switzerland.

The border had been closed temporarily after the attempt on Hitler, in which the Nazi Fuehrer escaped by only 11 minutes from a blast which wrecked the interior of the famed Burgerbrau cellar.

Prominent Nazis had heard Hitler speak on the 16th anniversary of the abortive 1923 beer cellar putsch and had just left when the bomb let loose, bringing down the ceiling.

Here is how the case shaped up, as outlined by Himmler: After laying plans for the plot in September and October, 1938, Elser began putting them together in August, 1939.

During several weeks of tinkering "in a manner unique in criminal history" he built a bomb attached to a six-day clock and hid it in a pillar of the cellar.

Latest Victim of the Sea Mines Off British Coast

The Japanese luxury liner, Terukuni Maru, which was blown up off the east coast of England yesterday, presumably by a German mine. Twenty-six passengers and a crew of 180 were aboard and all were saved, press reports revealed. The Terukuni Maru, a 11,930-ton vessel, was the largest—and latest—victim of mines and U-boats over the week end. Germany denies that the mines are hers.

body coming over here and whipping the army we're already got. The latest mine casualty in the English channel is a 54-foot whale. It collided with a mine during a severe storm. The explosion tore a huge hole in the mammoth's side and it was swept ashore dead on a Belgian beach.

In July, 1930, when he raised the slogan "Socialists break with the National Socialist German Workers' party."

With others, Strasser then formed the Black Front in opposition to the Hitler movement. When Hitler came to power in 1933 he fled.

Gregor Strasser, like his brother, once stood high in Hitler's councils as a Nazi organizer but lost out in his ambitions to become vice chancellor, in the face of the Fuehrer's opposition.

That was early in 1933 and little was heard from him until a government press official acknowledged on July 2, 1934, that he had been executed along with Captain Ernst Roehm and scores of other Nazis and officials.

ENGLAND DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF PLOT

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(P)—The British foreign office said tonight neither the British government nor any agent of it "had any knowledge" of the German citizen "described as having placed a bomb in the Munich cellar" November 8.

It was stated that official quarters considered the German government statement "quite incomprehensible."

The foreign office communiqué said there was "no connection" between the Munich bombing and the "kidnapping of two British subjects on the German-Dutch frontier."

Nazi get-together the explosive was carried into the building. After two failures—on November 2 and 3—he succeeded in placing the device into the closing chamber of a bomb during the night of November 4-5.

Returns for "Check-Up." Thereupon Elser left for Switzerland to join his employer, but instead returned to Munich November 7 to convince himself that everything was set, that the "clock was ticking" and to deaden its sound.

On the morning of the explosion he departed by way of Ulm for the border and was arrested early the next day when the closing restrictions were clamped on.

Himmler appealed to the nation for information regarding persons seen with Elser, in order to gain further details of his recent activities and movements.

Although Elser confessed a week ago the information was kept secret in order to expedite the seizure of others.

(In Paris, Strasser told the newspaper, Le Soir, Monday that he was forced to flee from Switzerland to avoid extradition to Germany in connection with the explosion. He said he had only four hours to leave Zurich when the Nazi government asked the Swiss to extradite him for trial as its "instigator.")

Blames Gestapo. (Strasser, whose brother, Gregor, was killed in the 1934 Nazi "blood purge," said his first opinion was that the blast was the work of his underground units in Germany, but that he now was convinced it was staged by the Gestapo itself.)

(The Black Front leader who fled Germany after he was deprived of his citizenship in 1934, expressed the belief that Germany was ready for a revolution by next spring. He asserted that a majority of the majors and colonels in the German army were opposed to Hitler and that many members of the Nazi labor front were working secretly for his organization.)

(Since fleeing Germany, Strasser has directed his activities from various European countries. In 1935 he was sentenced to five months' imprisonment for abetting the erection of a secret radio station at Zahori, Czechoslovakia, which carried on anti-Nazi propaganda. That same year he was expelled from Greece as an undesirable.

U. S. Man Held. (In February, 1936, Charles Nisselbeck, a naturalized United States citizen, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment at Munich for bringing Strasser's writings into Germany. Nisselbeck, who was charged with "attempted high treason," was accused of obtaining the writings from Strasser during a secret conference at Prague.)

Italian People Pulling For Allies, White Hears

By WILLIAM L. WHITE, Special Correspondent.

ROME, Italy (Airmail).—The fashionable cocktail hour in Italy is 8:30 and there were four of us in the bar of the Hotel Excelsior, which is just down one of Rome's seven hills from the American embassy and across the street from the ministry of popular culture. There was the slender and charming Italian, his friend who was also a member of the party but not so charming, the very vehement young American newspaperman and myself.

The slender and charming Italian had just said he thought most of the Italian people hoped the French and British would win. "But how can you say that," said the American newspaperman vehemently, "when the Italian papers continue to be mildly pro-German?"

The slender and charming Italian smiled. "But what have the Italian newspapers to do with what ze people of Italy feel? Do you not think I am right, Angelo?"

"Yes," said the Italian who was not so charming. "Particularly the people of the north like the Allies and hope they will win. And you will notice that the circulation of the gov'rment's big evening paper has gone down by five hundred thousand, and instead people buy the Osservatore Romano, which," and here he looked at me, "is the 'Papal newspaper.'"

"But doesn't the government suppress it now and then?" "Not any more, but I have heard that in Turin last week the police buy up from all the newsstands every copy of one edition of the Osservatore which has something they do not like."

"So we can't send out a story saying they've suppressed the Pope's newspaper," said the vehement American.

"In the villages it is not sold," said this not-so-charming Italian. "People fear others will see that laying and the Hague convention. Then he added:

"None of these provisions has been observed by the German government in laying the mines which occasioned the losses I have mentioned. And this further outrage is only the culmination of a series of violations of the agreement where Germany has set her hand."

"The government is not prepared to allow these methods of conducting warfare to continue without retaliation."

"I may remind the house that in the last war, as a measure of justified reprisals for submarine attacks on merchant ships, the exports of German origin or ownership were made subject to seizure on the high seas."

Statement Cheered. "Many violations of international law and the ruthless brutality of German methods have decided us to follow a similar course now, and an order in council will shortly be issued giving effect to this decision."

Commons cheered the statement.

Heretofore, the British navy's detention of United States and other neutral vessels in the contraband control—control of imports to Germany—has been to they buy it instead of one of the government's newspapers. Only the priests read it who subscribe by mail."

"What is in the Osservatore?" I asked.

"Mostly news about beatifications," said the charming Italian, "but also sometimes interesting sings about foreign affairs. And, oh, I must tell you—Angelo, probably you also know this—we have a friend named Luigi who is verree, verree much for ze Franch and Brestish—he hope say will ween. So now, when he meet someone who is verree pro-German, Luigi listen while he talk and zen he say to him, very gravely, 'My friend, are you not afraid to talk as you do? How do you know what is today the policy of our government? Might it not be dangerous for you if someone hear you talk like zeas, and sink maybe you oppose the party?'"

"So zen ze ozzer man say queek 'Oh, no-no-no-no!—He mean nozing like zat,' and zen he shut up, because he sink maybe Luigi know somesing he do not. Because Luigi is for ze Franch and Brestish, he amuse himself in zeas way. It is very comick."

We agreed that it was.

"But both of you tell me this," I said: "What possible combination of circumstances could bring Italy into this war?"

The slender and very charming Italian thought a minute. "Zere is only one," he finally said. "Zat would be if it turn out that our government has made a misjudgment on who will be ze weeners of zis war."

"Yes?"

"In zat case, I sink Italee would come in to help ze Germans before ze end of it."

"I see."

"Zat is verree Italian, you would say?" and he smiled charmingly.

"I would not say anything. I am in Italy to write, not to say." And I smiled, too.

seize goods believed destined directly or indirectly for Germany. The new order is aimed at preventing Germany from exporting by way of the southeastern or Baltic countries and through these nations by neutral ships across the high seas.

Explaining the order, a government spokesman said that German exports in neutral ships go through the Suez Canal in large quantities. He added that Germany had consigned to South America machinery and other products which could "be transformed into local production and the proceeds sold in the United States for dollars."

ITALY MAY BALK AT BRITAIN'S MOVE. ROME, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Well-informed Italians said tonight Italy probably will not accept Britain's decision to extend the anti-German blockade to exports from the Reich.

The announcement of the British prime minister did not surprise Italy, the informants said, adding that Italians had expected such a move in London for some time.

The press attacked the British blockade program generally, asserting that it is certain to cause a spread of the European war.

National League's Vice President To Attend Colorful Ball on Dec. 14

By Sally Forth.

THE social spotlight trains today upon other prominent visitors who will add glamour to the Junior League's "Gone With the Wind" colorful and world-famous ball, to be staged so brilliantly at the auditorium on December 14. They are Mrs. W. H. Holland, of St. Petersburg, Fla., vice president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, who will be accompanied to Atlanta by Mary Stoney Gray, of St. Petersburg.

They will visit Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougald at their Andrews drive residence, Mrs. McDougald being the only sister of Mary Stoney Gray, who married Charles M. Gray, well-known citizen of St. Petersburg. She was born and reared here, is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Mary McGeehee Stoney, and is a founder and former officer in the Florida League.

As the former Mailand Weems, of Meridian, Miss., dark-haired, dark-eyed and fascinating Mrs. Holland made her debut in Atlanta in 1923 under the aegis of Mrs. Robert W. Crumley, her cousin. She sojourned that winter with Mrs. Crumley at her in-law circle home, and was introduced to society at an elaborate luncheon given at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Her sister debutantes in the social ranks of that winter included Mary Shadden Foreman, Louise Inman McNeil, Jennie Robinson Thornehill, Emily Davis Albert, Virginia Pegram Harrison, Margaret Nelson Williams, Martha Boynton Davis, Lucy Candler Thompson, Emmie Nixon Parker, Sarah Orme Huger, Anne Grant Owens, Douglas Paine Saffarans, Katherine Haverly Bellman, Arabella Dudley Walker, Mary Nevins Bradshaw, Eleanor Gay Lee, Isabel Howard Hulsey, Caroline Howard Lewis, Margaret Block, and others.

As regional director of the national association, Mrs. Holland paid an official visit to Atlanta last spring, when she visited Katharine Howland, daughter of the Chatham road residence and was feted at numerous social affairs. She is very lovely to look upon, very delightful to know, and is highly thought of and exceedingly active in the national body. While president of St. Petersburg League she demonstrated her executive ability and gained the admiration of her followers through her splendid leadership qualifications.

When her term of office ended as regional director, she was succeeded by Irene Thomas Warren, valuable and popular member of the Atlanta League, which will prove its worth in the staging of the most stupendous undertaking in its history when the "Gone With the Wind" ball takes place on December 14.

A VERY distinct honor has been bestowed upon popular Howard Perkins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Perkins, of Marietta. Howard, you know, is a senior at Randolph-Macon College, and has recently been named for the "Who's Who" in the list for American colleges and universities.

The attractive and versatile student is president of the Southern Intercollegiate Student Government Association and is head of the student government at Randolph-Macon. She not only excels in sports, but throughout her four years at the southern college she has maintained a high scholastic record.

Friends of Howard will be glad to hear that she will arrive in Marietta on December 1 and will attend the Georgia-Tech game here on the following day. Before returning to school, she will attend an executive board meeting of the Student Government Association which will be held in Rome.

SALLY has just been informed that a group of 12 of Columbus' most popular belles have organized a debutante club and have elected to make their bows together at a brilliant ball at Christmastime, instead of having their debut parties scattered throughout the fall and winter season. The affair will be held on the evening of December 23 at the Columbus Country Club.

Those to be presented to society at this time will be Katherine Averett, Janet Bowers, Ann Wynn Chancellor, Charlotte Golden, Ann Brown, Eleanor Key, Maude Williams, Mildred Miller, Elvie Scarborough, Beth Knight, Rebecca Knight and Ann Wade. Unlike the Atlanta debutantes, the type of club selected by these girls is patterned after the Big Eddy Club, because there are no officers. And probably the debutante with the loudest voice will control the policies, as a president without folio, so to speak.

TWO elated mothers were Mrs. Edward Dunnick and Mrs. Harry Stafford, who left yesterday for New York city, where they will spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their attractive sub-deb daughters, Elsie Dunnick and Eleanor Stafford.

Elsie attends Miss Sample's School in New York city, while Eleanor and her roommate, Marion Partridge, of Mobile, Ala., are students at Georgetown College in Washington, D. C., and will join the threesome in the metropolitan city.

The schoolgirls will return to their studies Monday, while their mothers will enjoy New York until the middle of December.

Ladies' Burns Club Will Meet Today.

The Ladies' Burns Club meets today at 11 o'clock with Mrs. Ted Ray at her home, 2515 Delwood drive. Mrs. John B. Guerry and Mrs. Guy Moore will be co-hostesses.

Mrs. W. F. Melton, the president, announces that Mrs. Ted Ray, who has visited Stirling Castle in Scotland, will tell of her visit to that historic castle, and give a comparison of her impressions with those of Robert Burns, who visited the castle on a tour of Scotland.

Quotations from Burns will be given at roll call by the members, and Mrs. Melton will read selected Burns poems.

Possesses Magnetic Personality

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS.

MISS ELIZABETH FULLER.

Charming Elizabeth Fuller, better known to her intimates as "Bungy," debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fuller, has the type hand that is an excellent blend of the spatulate or active, with the conic or artistic. This indicates "one restless, tireless and possessed of a brilliant, magnetic personality. She will always rest from one thing by doing something else.

The thumb shows her to be a good organizer and leader, tactful, sympathetic and quick to feel the reaction of others.

The length and shape of the index finger, called the finger of Jupiter, shows unusual executive ability, initiative and ambition. That the ambition is not selfish, however, is proved by the generous stretch between thumb and fingers. The well-shaped little finger, called the finger of Mercury, gives a fine balance to the other faculties and denotes an extremely strong mental force.

The line of head, well separated from the life line indicates splendid energy and self confidence, promptness of action and readiness of thought.

Little lines running into the hand and towards the second and third fingers promises an active life always.

A happy marriage and a long life are unusually well-marked in Bungy's hand.

On Friday Mrs. Jennings will analyze the hand of another Atlanta debutante exclusively for The Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds To Attend World-Famous Ball and Premiere

Not since the days of Metropolitan Grand Opera, when Caruso's golden tenor voice reached the topmost rafters of the auditorium, have so many important and distinguished visitors signified their intention of coming to Atlanta for the festivities attendant upon the "Gone With the Wind" Junior League's colorful ball and premiere. Added to the list of prominent visitors to attend the "Gone With the Wind" festivities, are the names of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynolds, of the famous tobacco family of North Carolina.

They will visit Mrs. William T. Healey Sr. at her residence on Andrews drive and will arrive in the city to attend the Junior League ball on December 14. Mrs. Healey recently returned from New York city where she was accompanied by Mrs. Reynolds, and plans were completed for the latter's visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will come here direct from their home in Winston-Salem. They own historic Sapelo Island on the coast of Georgia and usually spend their winters at this picturesque spot and they visit their Atlanta friends from time to time. Numerous social affairs will revolve around Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds' stay in Atlanta as guests of Mrs. Healey. Their hostess gives a dinner for her interesting guests preceding the "Gone With the Wind" ball.

Miss Evelyn Powell Becomes Bride Of James Rutan at Quiet Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. JAMES SCOTT RUTAN.

Miss Evelyn Davis Powell, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Powell, became the bride of James Scott Rutan, of Atlanta, formerly of Gary, Ind., at a quiet ceremony solemnized at 5 o'clock yesterday in the study of Dr. William M. Elliott Jr., pastor of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, with Dr. Elliott officiating.

Only members of the bridal couple's immediate families witnessed the ceremony, and there were no attendants. The bride chose for the ceremony a modish wine-colored costume which she wore with black accessories and a silver fox scarf. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of gardenias and valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutan left for a wedding trip to Gary, Ind., where they will spend Thanksgiving with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Rutan. Upon their return they will reside at 1018 Beecher street.

Mr. Rutan is instructor of instrumental music at Joe Brown Junior High school, and he and his bride will form welcome additions to the cultural ranks of society.

Miss Irwin and Miss Pretzfeller To Attend Thanksgiving Parties

The Thanksgiving season will be augmented by the presence of an attractive group of the college set for the holidays, and a number of visitors who will be in the city to attend the series of weddings, debut parties and seasonal affairs.

Miss Patty Irwin, a student at King Smith Studio school in Washington, D. C., arrives tomorrow and will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Irwin, at their home on Andrews drive.

Miss Irwin will be accompanied by her roommate, Miss Joyce Pretzfeller, of St. Albans, L. I., who will be the guest of Miss Ruthanna Butters and will be among attractive visitors attending the debut ball of Miss Butters on Friday evening.

Miss Alice Palmer, of Jacksonville, Fla., will also be the guest of Miss Butters as will Mr. and Mrs. Paulk, of Little Rock, Ark., the latter being the former Miss Frances Butters.

On Saturday Miss Irwin entertains at a luncheon at the Capital City Club for Miss Pretzfeller. Covers will be placed for Misses Pretzfeller, Butters, Alice Palmer, Frances Peace, Emmie Martin, Ann Harris, Mrs. Williams Mason and Mrs. Wright Paulk.

Adding luster to the rapidly swelling holiday visitors' ranks is Miss Gracye Cralle, of Tampa, Fla., who arrives today from National Park College, in Washington, D. C., to visit her classmate, Miss Barbara Indell, at the latter's home on Vermont road.

On Friday Miss Cralle will visit another classmate, Miss Jeanette Estes, who recently arrived in this city from the Washington college.

An interesting party planned for the visitor is the luncheon at which Mrs. Clyde King Jr. will entertain today at the Capital City Club.

Present will be Misses Cralle, Indell, Jeanette Estes, Patricia Poole, Marney Sampson, Helen Taulman, Barbara Broward and others.

Chi Phi Alumni Plan Dinner-Dance At Club Dec. 2

Outstanding among events of the season will be the annual Chi Phi Alumni dinner dance which takes place on Friday evening, December 1, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Given each year on the eve of the Tech-Georgia football game, the dance gathers prominent members of society and the college set from throughout the state. Alumni members residing here attend in congenial groups as do members from the Omega chapter at Tech, the Eta chapter from the University of Georgia and the Gamma chapter from Emory University.

Officers of the alumni association are: Judge Virlyn Moore, president; Clement Evans, vice president; Albert Howell, secretary and Stephen Crockett, treasurer. Charles Nunnally and Charles Winslow are chairmen of the committee for the dance.

Blue and gold, the fraternity colors, will be used throughout the ballroom for the decorations and the atmosphere will be charged with excitement and merriment in anticipation of the game the following day.

Brides-Elect Feted At Party Series

Miss Dorothea Blackshear, whose marriage to Frank Brady Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., takes place on November 30, and Miss Ruth Moore, who will become the bride of John Heyward Randolph, of Houston, Texas, on December 2, were honor guests last evening at the buffet supper and bridge party at which Miss Evelyn Fluker entertained at her home on Fairview road.

A color motif of pink and white was carried out in the decorations of the table, which were centered with a crystal bowl filled with pink roses and snapdragons, and white pompon chrysanthemums. Flanking the centerpiece were crystal candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Present were Misses Blackshear, Moore, Henrietta Gunn, Florence Garrard, Elizabeth Blackshear, Marjorie Carmichael, Mildred Boss, Bright Bickstaff, Jule McClatchey, Anne Scott Hartman, Mesdames James Frazer, Frederic Roberts, Elden Lindsey, J. R. McCullough, Mack Wynn and C. E. Drummond.

Miss Blackshear was honored yesterday afternoon at the dinner and kitchen shower given by Mrs. Homer Thompson at her home on Peachtree road.

The bridal motif of white and green was featured in the decorations of the dining room. The table was centered with an arrangement of white flowers flanked by candelabra holding lighted green tapers. Fall flowers in various shades were used throughout the reception rooms.

Mrs. Mefta Thompson poured tea, and assisting in entertaining were Miss Lois Thompson and Mrs. P. L. Blackshear.

Miss Moore was honored yesterday at the seated tea at which Mrs. Frederic Roberts entertained at her home on Golf circle.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. S. T. Douthett and Mrs. Harry C. Moore.

Present were Mesdames Ben Shute, Delkin Jones, Adna North, Randolph Whitfield, Mack Wynn, Ernest Abernathy, R. J. McCullough, Elden Lindsey, Misses Mary Pritchard, Mildred Boss, Louise Knox and the hostess and honor guest.

Tiring Muscles to Relax Nerves Is Good Weight-Gaining Trick

Posture Becomes Problem to Thin Nervous Girl

By Ida Jean Kain.

The hard-working thin girl is apt to think that having to get up in the morning is what blights her chances of trading nerves for curves. But it isn't so! In the first place, a well-toned musculature is the very foundation of a fine figure. In the second, a healthy use of the muscles tends to ease nervous tension. And, therefore, breakfast in bed isn't half as important as 15 minutes of stretching and relaxing exercise!

For proof that such an exercise plan is successful, we've only to look at Elsie Hitz. Miss Hitz is a sparkling star whose dramatic talent won a special niche for her in radio entertainment, but who is a little stubborn in her belief that nothing succeeds like hard work. A few months ago, "nerves" were beginning to be a threat to her career.

"Naturally, I pampered myself," she says. "I have a flexible schedule and I began to have breakfast in bed every morning. I enjoyed it, and I kept telling myself it was the wisest thing to do. But I couldn't seem to pick up, and I went to see my doctor. . . . That was the finish of breakfast in bed! What he ordered was a morning exercise program. For 15 minutes, every morning, I do special stretching exercises. Later in the day I take a long walk—40 blocks! He thinks everyone should walk 40 blocks a day."

Another startling request by Elsie Hitz' doctor may be worth consideration. . . . he told her to sleep with a board under the mattress of the bed! And since she has been sleeping on the board, she has noticed an improvement in the soundness of her sleep and in her posture.

Posture is always a problem to the person who goes on her nerves and is frequently overly fatigued. Miss Hitz makes a habit of checking her posture every now and then. Here's how it's done: Back up to the wall until the heels are only two or three inches away, and flatten the entire back against the wall. Then walk away without disturbing the perfect alignment of your body.

You can turn your posture check-up into a very effective exercise. Keep the back flat against the wall (being sure that the small of the back is pushed back), slide down the wall until the knees are flexed, and then try to slide up again.

Elsie Hitz has a 24-inch waistline—and her favorite waistline exercise is this one:

Sit on the floor, legs extended straight out and feet wide apart, and arms straight out, sides, shoulder-level. Pivot at the waist and swing around to touch the right hand to left toes, then swing around to touch left hand to right toes. Begin with 25 times, gradually increasing to 50.

A repertoire of exercises like the above-mentioned keep her figure lovely. Her hipline measures a mere 35 1-2 inches, but 34 1-2 inches. Five feet three inches tall, she weighs 110 pounds, and it would be difficult to find anyone with more sparkling vitality. She has almost forgotten what "nerves" are like!

Send a stamped return envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the leaflet, "Stretch the Fat From Waistline, Ribs, Wishbone" and do the exercises leisurely for the good of your figure and nerves.

Hints on Etiquette. Men never are invited to bridal showers, not even the bridegroom. The boys may come later, however, possibly to eat, and surely to see the girls home.

Jane Wyman painstakingly knitted herself a sleeveless sweater during the six weeks of filming "Kid Nightingale."

Three-Way Frock Is Practical

By Barbara Bell.

Three smart fashions for school-girls can be made with this easy pattern (1857-B). One is a collarless style with lots of braid, and there are two collared and cuffed versions—one with pointed collar and cuffs, and one with rounded. So you see you can make a whole school outfit for your daughter, just with this one design!

This three-way frock is just as easy to make as it is pretty. The only fitting is by means of darts at the waistline and pleats at the sleeve tops. Challis, jersey, flannel, as well as sturdy cottons like gingham and percale, are the most satisfactory materials for this design.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1857-B is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 requires 2 yards of 35-inch material; 3-8 yards contrast for collar and cuffs, either style. 3 3-4 yards braid to trim pointed collar and cuffs. 4 1-4 yards braid to trim frock with square neck.

What to give—what to wear? Our Fall and Winter Pattern Book gives more than 100 fascinating answers to these important questions! Send for it today! You'll be enchanted to see how easy and economical it is to make the smart clothes, by using these simple, accurately cut, beautifully styled patterns! Sew each with ease.

Stepmother Fails To Win Love of Family

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: For 15 years I have been doing my best to make a cheerful, comfortable home for my husband and children, with the result that not one of them loves me and I am the loneliest person in the world. God knows my record and He is to be the final judge of my deeds, which is a great consolation. But this doesn't make a happy home for us here. The children are disobedient and disrespectful and their father always favors them in any argument or disagreement. My husband's favorite topic of conversation with callers is the beautiful character of his first wife, his devotion to her and his grief when she died. I've had all I can bear and I want you to state what you think of such a man.

SECOND WIFE.

Answer: Unfortunately, nobody's opinion of your husband, however harsh, will help you one iota. A spanking administered by an outsider won't raise your stock, nor improve your position with husband or "steps." So let's get down to a practical plan that may enable you to bear and forbear with better grace.

No brief here for a man who doesn't realize that taunting a second wife with tales of a first wife is tops in cruelty. No brief for a man who lets children come to him with scurrilous tales about their stepmother. No brief for insolent disobedient "steps." On the other hand with all your sublime faith in your past performances as being 100 per cent fine and fair, you fell down somewhere, friend, or else some of the bunch would be on your side.

Too late perhaps for warm affectionate relations between you and any of them. But not too late for harmony in the home, provided you refuse to be drawn into arguments with the children, put the quietus on disagreements with them by leaving all matters of discipline squarely up to their father; bury your grudges against them and no longer look to them for affection such as you once expected to get.

Formal politeness, though not the pass key to ideal family life, will jimmie politeness out of housemates. Just so long as we hold on to our formal manners we may be sure other people will be mannerly with us. Whether it's a servant, a stepchild, a husband or a friend we are dealing with, we can get the "please" and the "thank you" in return for the "please" and "thank you."

Finally, my dear woman, instead of putting all your time and thought on homemaking, you should plan some social life which will take you away from the mare's nest. Instead of consoling yourself with the thought of a hereafter in which you will get a clean slate, be surrounded by angels playing harps you should make some healthy, happy, flesh and blood friends who haven't forgotten how to laugh and be gay.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Get the Most From Cards Dealt You

By Harold Sharpsteen.

It is not always a question of how much we win or lose at bridge, but how we win or lose. We may complain about our poor hands, how all of our finesses go wrong, how the other fellow gets all the breaks, until someone reminds us that a run of poor cards is usually followed by a run of good ones.

The important question to ask ourselves is: "Do we get the most out of the cards we are dealt?" We watched this hand being played recently and listened to South complain bitterly afterward that "everything went wrong."

The final bid was four spades by South. West opened the club deuce, East winning the ace and returning a heart. South let it run up to dummy's 10, not expecting to win the trick, but to give West a difficult return lead.

West returned a club, dummy winning with the king. The spade queen was led from dummy, South playing the 10, the queen holding the trick.

The finesse had succeeded, but South, by carelessly playing the low trump, was to discover later, he had blocked himself out of dummy. Another spade lead from dummy picked up East's king and South finessed the diamond jack, which lost to East's queen. East returned a heart and now South was compelled to lose a heart trick, for he was forced to trump to reach dummy hand, would have come in handy, for after clearing diamonds, South could have played the heart ace, led a diamond to the ace, played

What a Time We Had MY DAY When the Dishes Fell

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—The ceremonies at the laying of the cornerstone yesterday were very simple and very nice. Both Mr. MacLeish, the librarian of congress, and Mr. Connor, the archivist, spoke very delightfully. Except for the fact that the people outside had a very cold time, the laying of the cornerstone went off without a hitch.

Before the ceremonies, many people came into the house to shake hands with the President and have a word with him. Just as everyone was leaving the house, I heard a crash and discovered that one of the card tables around which some people were sitting, had collapsed and all the china had fallen to the floor! It was too bad to break the china, but I had to laugh, remembering the table which collapsed when the King and Queen were with us. We must have something collapse apparently when we are having parties! Much less china, however, was broken on this occasion.

The rector, Mr. Wilson, and his wife and little boys were with us for lunch. I was amused to have the one sitting beside me finish everything that he had to eat and then, having eaten a goodly portion of ice cream and cake, turn to me and say: "May I eat some of the crackers?"

A dish of crackers was on the table, destined for those who had begun their meal with chowder. The small boy had scorned that, but after everything else was over, I imagine he felt he must fill up with these, the only things left to attract his attention.

At tea time, a bust of the President, done by a French artist who had never seen him, was presented by Mrs. Cramer, who had bought it after it had been exhibited in the French pavilion at the World's Fair. It will go into the new library. Then Mr. Billings, the artist who is doing the decorations for the Wappingers Falls, N. Y., post office, came to tell the President about some of his ideas for the paintings. He brought an old painting, which I thought quite fascinating, showing the mills about the creek when Wappingers Falls was really an active industrial spot. These old paintings may not be remarkable as art, but they certainly are interesting.

After that, Mr. Bernard Kohn, who had been making a clock for the past six years, for the President, came with his son to present it. It is a double timepiece which registers both Pacific and eastern time. I shall be able to look at it and know just what time it is in Seattle and Los Angeles. This will probably be a relief to my children there, whom I might call at untimely hours. The President occasionally wishes that some of the people who call him up from Europe would remember the difference in time in this country.

We came down last night to Washington on the night train and found a gray and chilly day down here, with most of the leaves blown off the trees. This is a particularly full day with very little time to sit and think about world affairs, which give one a sense of depression in any case.

Doctor Isn't Sure Medicine Used Accounted for Recovery

By Dr. William Brady.

In the case of the little boy successfully treated for pneumococcus meningitis from ear infection with incision of the bulging ear drum to give vent to the pus in the ear and full doses of sulfa-pyridine for four days, as described here the other day, cultures of pneumococcus (pneumonia germ) type I were obtained from the boy's throat, from the pus that drained from the middle ear after incision of the bulging ear drum, and from the fluid taken from the spinal canal when the question of meningitis arose (because of the pain in ear, followed by complaint of dizziness and pain in back of neck when the child tried to raise his head from the pillow).

Whether the sulfanilamide or sulfa-pyridine accounted for the recovery, or whether the child would have made the same prompt recovery following drainage of the ear if no medicine had been given at all, of course must remain a conjecture. Eventually perhaps we shall find from accumulated experience in practice just what remedial value sulfanilamide or sulfa-pyridine has. At present the question is unsettled.

The practical point in the case cited, which should interest every one, is that from the bacteriological study of the case it is reasonable to infer that the boy first had a simple sore throat or perhaps it was called a "cold." Through sheer fate or neglect of proper treatment or wrong treatment or possibly poor immunity from faulty nutrition, the pneumococcus infection spread from throat to the middle ear, via the Eustachian tube, that air-duct between the middle ear cavity and the back of the throat. Or maybe the child had never been taught how to blow the nose and by improper nose-blowing forced some infected material from the back of the throat into the Eustachian tube and the middle ear space.

Well, how should one blow the nose, if at all?

The less blowing the better, in any circumstance. Gently, always. Never with one or both nostrils pinched. Only with nostrils unobstructed and handkerchief or paper napkin held under but not in contact with the nose. Never blow forcibly. Merely breathe out "through the nose a little more vigorously than ordinarily to favor drainage."

Where did the boy get the pneumococcus in the first place? Probably from some one who had "just a slight cold," so-called. One never knows what such indisposition may prove to be, in the stage when the ignorant or vicious individual who has it goes about spreading his infection among all who are so unfortunate as to come within his conversational spray range, for example. Ignorant or vicious people are encouraged in this spreading of infection by the teachings of many of our public health administrators. I've sounded off about this for years, but they're pretty thick-skinned to declare who blamed Lady Luck as being responsible for his defeat.

Til tomorrow.

One-Minute Test. 1. Why do we say "as poor as a church mouse"? 2. Where is the White sea? 3. What diplomatic representative ranks next below an ambassador?

One-Minute Test Answers. 1. Because old-time churches had no kitchen or larder, so mice got nothing to eat in them. 2. In northern Russia, near the Arctic Circle. 3. Minister (plenipotentiary).

New Rouge and Lipstick Give Added Beauty to White Hair

By Lillian Mae.

Time was when white hair denoted old age, and with old age, a woman considered it was her part to sit calmly in the corner with folded hands and let the world go by.

Now, when it is conceded that "life begins at 40"—and many beautiful women for one reason or another have white hair long before that age—silver locks no longer denote a life of inactivity and a sluffing off of style and skin care.

But every woman whose hair has lost its natural color, knows that she must dress and use make-up in such a way as to bring out the real beauty of her hair. Some colors for her are out, unless they have the proper touch of bright trim or accessories. And so, also with make-up. Just any color of rouge and lipstick won't do. There must be a tint which will put sparkle in the eye and really highlight the entire expression so that the silvery crown shows up in its own true light.

A famous designer of the better clothes for woman became disgusted sometime ago with the way in which so many women slap on make-up without regard to the suitability of it to their clothes. So she started designing make-up also, suitable to the season and the most popular colors and fabrics.

Accordingly, in designing clothes for the white-haired woman, she has also brought out for her rouge and lipstick in the loveliest shade! Though its name carries the word pink it's a vivid red with a soft, slightly blue undertone that adds just the right dash to call attention to the beauty of snowy hair in such a manner that there is no thought whatever of age.

And it's perfect for a blonde. Blue eyes become a bit bluer and golden hair looks its sun-spun best with this soft, yet vibrant complexion aid.

The rouge comes in both dry and cream, and, as in the case of the lipstick, is very lasting. When I first saw it the demonstrator—as demonstrators of cosmetics often do—put a little dab of it on my wrist. And though I bathed my hands three times with soap and water there was still a tinge of the rouge there. That's how lasting it is. But of course it's easily removed with cleansing cream.

May Robson, veteran moving picture actress, though years and years past the age when women once thought they should play the part of senility, dresses and uses make-up so deftly that she is considered by her colleagues as merely "one of the girls." She knows the value of make-up tints that emphasize her best features and show up her own coloring to best advantage.

There's no harshness in it, but it blends so softly and smoothly that, wearing it, you'll get credit for having a very beautifully tinted skin. Under artificial lights it's gorgeous.

Telephone me and I'll give you the name of this new rouge and lipstick, and I'll tell you where you may purchase them in Atlanta. If you do not live in the city, write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Teach Yourself Latest Dance Steps

To know lots of variations in such smart dances as the Westchester—to follow your partner smoothly from one step to the other—that's the way to make a hit at dances!

Yet many a girl will say "Yes, I know the Westchester" when she knows only a step or two.

Smart dances can easily be learned at home. Footprint diagrams show you how to take each step, how to combine variations. See how simple it is to go from the Westchester Two-step to the Open Two-Step Turn.

Other Westchester steps you learn the same easy way—other dances, too. Our 40-page booklet, Teach Yourself the Latest Dance Steps, gives diagrams and instructions for basic steps, new variations in the waltz, fox-trot, tango, rumba, Westchester, Conga and shag. Tells how to combine steps, lead and follow—be a popular dancer.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, TEACH YOURSELF THE LATEST DANCE STEPS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of your booklet.

Words of Wisdom. The proper means of increasing the love we bear to our native country is to reside some time in a foreign one.—Shenstone.

A Smart Bustle-Bow Accessory Frock

By Lillian Mae.

"Who is she?" they'll buzz admiringly when you make your entrance in this captivating dress. A quietly distinguished style—Lillian Mae's Pattern 4310—yet it will hold the center of the stage anywhere. Because fashion so enthusiastically "backs" the bustle, the sash, ties in a big, luscious bustle-bow in back. Without the sash just the high front pointed waist seam alone looks simply smart. And don't miss the six-paneled skirt and that very new back buttoning. Your gold jewelry will gleam against the high neckline, and the round young yoke holds in the soft bodice fullness below. Make the sleeves short, three-quarter or long length.

Pattern 4310 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 4 1-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to Lillian Mae, Pattern Department, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Roosevelt's Popularity Off Since War Settled Down

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 21.—

The sharp rise in President Roosevelt's popularity noted during September and October, when politics was temporarily "adjourned" and foreign policy held the nation's chief attention, has been halted for the time being, judging by public opinion samplings made by the American Institute. With domestic issues revived and New Deal opponents again taking up the cudgels, the Institute's surveys during November find a slight decrease in the number of voters who approve of Roosevelt as president today.

In spite of the decrease, however, the President still holds approximately the same majority as when he was re-elected in 1936 by the landslide figure of 62.5 per cent of the major party vote.

The Institute, in its interviewing of a cross-section of the voting population, put this question to voters in all states and in all walks of life:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove today of Roosevelt as President?"

Today's result compare with last month's as follows:

LAST MONTH.
Approve 64.9%
Disapprove 35.1%

THIS MONTH.
Approve 62.7%
Disapprove 37.3%

These results, while they measure Roosevelt's prestige in office at this point in his second term, do not represent a vote on the third term. Other studies by the Institute find that many voters who approve of the President today declare they would not be willing to vote for him if he seeks re-election. The last third term study, in October, showed 43 per cent willing to vote for a third term, 57 per cent opposed. New surveys now being conducted will reveal the trend since that time.

The rise in Presidential popularity during September and October emphasizes one interesting fact which has been brought out in earlier studies of public opinion.

This is that Roosevelt's popularity tends to increase during periods of acute foreign crisis.

At the time of Munich, when Europe seemed on the brink of war, and again this autumn when war actually came, there were sharp increases in public support for the President. This may be due partly to a desire among many voters for greater national unity in time of foreign crisis, and partly to the fact that the President's handling of foreign affairs has been found in opinion studies to be one of the most popular aspects of the New Deal.

President's chief support continues to come from voters in the younger age groups and in the lower income levels. While persons under 30 years of age approve him today by more than 2 to 1, the majority of those over 50 years of age disapprove him.

Majority of voters in the lower income levels. While persons under 30 years of age approve him today by more than 2 to 1, the majority of those over 50 years of age disapprove him.

U. S. RULES SEAS, MAJOR ELIOT SAYS

U. S. Rules Seas, Major Eliot Says

Major Eliot, military expert, told an audience of more than 500 last night at Georgia Tech.

Declaring that it is no longer safe for a "great and rich nation" to allow national defense machinery to break down following war (as the United States has always done in the past) Major Eliot told his audience that it is imperative for America to maintain a defense capable of coping with any possible attack. Unless this country can state to solve her social and economic problems, he said.

"Planned Navy Adequate." The present strength of the United States navy plus the ships now already provided for under recent naval legislation is adequate to protect this country, in the opinion of Major Eliot.

Major Eliot believes that the belated efforts of the navy are marking time and that probably no startling military developments will be forthcoming until spring, when he anticipates the formation of a new eastern front, probably along the Danube.

Ability of Russia to aid Germany with food and supplies to combat the British blockade is probably not great, he believes, because the Russian surplus is small and her transportation facilities are not very good.

Italians Want Neutrality. As for Italy, he said, the Italian people definitely do not want to get into the war, and that they particularly do not wish to ally themselves with Germany.

Possibility of attack upon the Netherlands by Germany could have serious consequences for this country, he pointed out, because there is the possibility that Germany would then attempt to take the Dutch East Indies. Should such an attack occur, the major said, America's ability to get rubber and several other important commodities would be materially affected, and in addition certain United States possessions in the Far East would be in serious danger.

Only the existence of an American navy sufficiently superior to that of Japan to make such an attack too risky for the eastern power could prevent trouble in the East Indies, should the attack on Holland take place, he said.

MISS DUBOSE DIES; SERVICES TODAY

Former Decatur Woman Lived at Moultrie.

Miss Louise DuBose, social worker and former resident of Decatur, died yesterday at a Moultrie hospital after an illness of 10 days.

Born in Pulaski, Tenn., in 1877, Miss DuBose was the daughter of the late Dr. John E. DuBose, evangelist for the Southern Presbyterian church. Recently she had done social work for a Moultrie mill.

Surviving are one sister, Miss Sarah DuBose, of Moultrie, and two half-sisters, Mrs. W. S. Featherston and Miss Fannie DuBose, both of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Presbyterian church in Moultrie.

FINAL RITES HELD FOR S. N. EVINS SR.

Interment To Be in Spartanburg, S. C.

Final tribute was paid yesterday to Samuel Nesbitt Evins Sr., prominent Atlanta attorney, who died Monday at a private hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral services were conducted at 2:30 o'clock at St. Luke's Episcopal church by the Rev. John Moore Walker. The body was sent to Spartanburg, S. C., for burial under direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

A resident here for more than 40 years, Mr. Evins was a former member of city council and the board of education, and was one of the founders of the Atlanta Art Association, which he had served continuously as trustee.

JURY DELIBERATES ON PEE-WEE BURNS

Atlanta Ex-Pugilist Charged With Hijack Robbery Complicity.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A superior court jury tonight deliberated the fate of A. T. Jeans, alias Pee Wee Burns, on trial here since Monday on a charge of complicity in the hijack robbery in July, 1936, of Pete Modena and his wife.

Judge A. M. Anderson delivered his charge to the jury and sent them to their room shortly after 10 p. m. (Atlanta time) after defense and prosecuting attorneys had argued the case for four hours.

Defense counsel opened the argument late today after declining to call witnesses to testify.

Burns attacked the dapper little Atlanta ex-pugilist took the stand in his own defense and made a lengthy unsworn statement in which he contended he was in Guthrie, Ky., when the Modenas' West Macon home was robbed of $95 cases of whisky, and more than $200 in cash, jewelry and other articles.

His attorney attacked the state's principal witnesses in their arguments, charging the Burns prosecution was a "legalized blackmail" scheme fostered by two men already serving prison terms for the robbery.

TRUCK FIRM HEAD REPLIES TO 'ICTES'

Says His Stand Is 'Dictatorial.'

William L. Swartz, of the Dixie Ohio Express Company, Atlanta, yesterday made public a letter in which William M. McGee, president of the express company, attacked Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes for statements he is alleged to have made in a speech concerning the congestion of highways by trucks.

Quoting Ickes as saying it was his desire to "bump these pests (trucks) from the road," McGee charged that Ickes was taking a dictatorial stand and said he believed few American people would agree with such views.

Advance ticket sales for the Tech-Georgia freshman game Thanksgiving Day at Grant field have now passed 14,000. Committee members have turned their tickets back and they may now be purchased only at George Muse's. There are still some tickets left in the east and west stands and plenty available in the south stands.

A special section of seats for colored fans has been reserved behind the north goal.

A handsome souvenir program, selling at 25 cents and including history, weights and numbers of players on the teams, will be sold outside and inside the stadium. Formerly, the program was given away at the half. This time, however, no programs will be given away. All proceeds of the game and program go to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

Starting at 2 o'clock, WGST and WATL jointly will broadcast proceedings. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30.

Columbia Deception Praised by Tulane

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(AP) Coach Lowell (Red) Dawson and his Tulane powerhouse returned to New Orleans from the 25-0 conquest of Columbia with a profound respect for the deceptive ball handling of eastern teams.

"They hid the ball better on their spinner plays than any team we've seen this season," the coach said. "You don't see teams in the south play like they did, or show such deception on their crossucks. It took our boys a while to stop them, particularly in the third quarter when they marched to our 20-yard line."

Fulton High Beats Richardson, 12 to 0

Fulton High scored a 12-to-0 victory over Richardson High last night on the Russell field. Myers ran 75 yards for the first Fulton score and Frazier bucked over for the second. The entire Fulton line played well and stopped every Richardson threat.

NEGRO TITLE GO HERE THURSDAY

The Clark University game Thursday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park will end the conference careers of four regular players of Morris Brown, namely, English, Walker, Brown and Rooker. English and Walker are first-string quarterbacks. Clifford Brown, the captain, is considered the best guard to ever wear the Purple and Black, and LeRoss Rooker was All-American end last year.

They will play their last game here on December 9 when Morris Brown meets Virginia State College in the "Peach Blossom Classic," which they will inaugurate this year.

The rivalry between Clark and Morris Brown has reached fever pitch. There will be pep meetings at both tonight. The classic annually draws one of the largest crowds of the season regardless of the relative strength of the two teams involved.

Coach Billy Nicks regards the Clark eleven as a dangerous foe and one that has a great chance to upset his team. Workouts that lasted until dark have been in order this week, and signal drill and tackling practice will be held today to taper off for this contest that will decide the city championship.

All in the Game

—by Jack Troy

Please allow me to be the first to congratulate Mr. Paul B. Williamson, whose scientific rating system today shows Georgia Tech ranked 13th among the nation's football teams.

Mr. Williamson, who has had one heck of a time reconciling his system to Tech's repeated successes because he started out the season with the idea the Rambling Wreck wasn't so hot, now has Coach Bill Alexander's team only one-tenth of a point behind 12th-ranking Notre Dame.

Usually, there is some explanation accompanying the system when a team jumps from 29th place to as high as 13th, but there was nary a word of explanation this time.

He talked about upsets and games which went against form, but he made no mention of why Tech was able to beat Alabama when he had picked Alabama as the logical winner.

Regardless of this, however, he moved Tech from 29th to 13th, and dropped Alabama, thrice beaten and once tied, from 13th to 16th.

One must give Mr. Williamson his due. His system is the only one out of five at hand which gives Tech just rating this week.

For instance, What's What ranks Tech 16th. Dr. Baker ranks Tech 21st. Azzi Ratem has Tech 22nd, and Poling also places Tech 22nd.

Only one system of the five gives Tennessee first rating in the nation. What's What chooses the Vols, Azzi Ratem takes Cornell, Dr. Baker nominates once-tied Southern California, and Williamson and Poling like Texas A. and M.

All's well that ends well, as far as rating systems are concerned, and if Tech goes on and beats both Florida and Georgia in two rather tough ball games, Mr. Williamson may move the Jackets into the nation's first ten. Certainly their record would justify it.

THE PURPLES CELEBRATE

Never saw such an enthusiastic bunch of boys as the Boys' High players and student body as they made away with turkey and all the trimmings at a victory luncheon yesterday at the school.

Somehow the mistake was made of establishing Tech High as the favorite in the annual battle. That is, it was made in some quarters. Not here.

And the Purples have been making the most of it since their victory. They have had a lot of fun at the expense of the wrong guessers.

It's one of the most deserving teams Coach Shorty Doyal and his assistant, Dwight Keith, have ever handled and the supporters are looking forward to them going to town tonight against Enslay High of Birmingham.

And on the Friday night preceding the Tech-Georgia game, the Purples will clash here with Red Barron's Monroe Aggies for the state championship. The Purples have a lot of talent and enthusiasm. They may win the title. Who dares to say they won't?

BUCKAROO SURVIVES SNAKE BITE

Ichauway Rambling Buckaroo, Bob Woodruff's fine pointer, found 10 coveys at Holly Springs' last bird season, but went unplaced.

Major Trammell Scott, handling the pointer, remarked at the time that "we must be snake bit. I can't understand how such a performance could go unrecognized."

You see, in a previous trial at Albany, Buckaroo won in both the Derby and All-Age.

Yesterday, Major Scott left for Ichauway plantation near Albany to check up on the health of Buckaroo, which last week end was struck by a rattlesnake.

At last reports, Buckaroo was doing nobly, and a dead rattlesnake had been found in a field near the plantation. Apparently, it doesn't pay for a snake to trifle with the big pointer.

Scott was not so much concerned over Buckaroo recovering. He figures any pointer to be harder than any snake. His only worry was how long the dog would be laid up.

The major intends to handle Buckaroo at Albany again and anticipates another sweep of the field.

Before leaving yesterday, he said: "It would be the luck of those setter people for Buckaroo to be indisposed."

The likeness of Buckaroo accompanying this article was snapped during a performance in Canada earlier this season.

Incidentally, officials of the Southern Amateur Field Trial Club have bought five acres of land at Albany and are working out plans for building a new clubhouse.

The Amateur each year attracts some of the best dogs in the United States, and a colorful gallery.

NOTHING SACRED TO ENGEL

The bird dog people of Tennessee are still chuckling over Joe Engel's "field trial" which was staged last week end in Engel stadium.

The irrepressible Engel, knowing the seriousness with which the bird dog people take their trials, invited prominent sportsmen from Georgia and Tennessee to bring their dogs.

They arrived at Engel stadium to find a regular course laid out. Corn stalks had been imported and planted. Coveys of birds had been secured from somewhere.

There were about 20 pointers and setters and a mad-cap trial was held in the rather limited confines of the baseball park.

Next Engel had rabbits released and sent a pack of toy hound dogs in pursuit. He followed up with hounds chasing rabbits. And last, but not least, he staged a coon hunt.

Engel had attendants plant a big tree in the park and put a coon in it. The hounds supplied the rest of the atmosphere. There has never been such a show before and may never be one again.

HARRY THOMAS WON'T CONFESS HE TOOK 'DIVES'

Fighter Learns There's a Law Against Throwing Boxing Matches.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, No. 21.—(UP)—Harry Thomas, the beetle-browed ex-pug who "blew the whistle" in Chicago, refused point blank to give off any musical notes in New York today. Hence his hearing before the New York State Athletic Commission developed into such a dud that it was adjourned to an indefinite date.

Thomas, who filed an affidavit in Chicago to the effect that he had "thrown" fights to Max Schmeling in New York and to Tony Galento in Philadelphia, declined to repeat his confessions at the open hearing because "I don't feel like I want to be sent up the creek."

His attorney, John F. Dailey Jr., calmly informed the commission that he had advised Thomas to keep his mouth shut. It seems that there's a statute in New York state which makes it a crime for a boxer to "throw" a fight. And that there's a big house called Sing Sing up the "creek."

That's why Thomas, in a gray suit and red necktie, kept saying "I refuse to answer that question on grounds that it might incriminate and degrade me." Harry withdrew into his legal shell every time.

CRACKER FIVE IN FREE GAME

The Atlanta Crackers, a strong professional basketball team which formerly played as the Warren Five, will play the Atlantic Steel team tonight at Sports Arena, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. There will be no admission.

Coach Shep Lauter plans several games with fast local teams in order that his talented squad may be in good condition for a schedule against outstanding teams throughout the country.

Atlantic Steel boasts a strong outfit, including Joel Tierce and Red Marion, in its lineup.

Newcomers to the Cracker squad are Gabby Greenberg, former J. P. C. star, and Bob Lieb, little All-American at Roanoke College last season, and Lamar Murphy, former Monroe Aggie ace who belongs to the New York Yankees.

NORTH FULTON CHAMPS FETED

Thirty-four members of North Fulton High's North Georgia Interscholastic Conference championship football team were guests of the athletic association Tuesday night at a banquet at the Biltmore hotel.

North Fulton last week closed its most successful season with eight straight victories and its first N. G. I. C. championship.

W. F. Dykes, principal of the school, was the toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Morgan Blake was the principal speaker. Others on the program included Marvin Roberts, president of the Northside Civic Improvement Club, and Coaches Weyman Tucker and Weddington Kelly.

Captain Buster Beall presented awards to Coaches Tucker and Kelly and also C. W. O'Rear of the athletic association on behalf of the team.

AGGIES RANKED AS TOP ELEVEN; TULANE SECOND

Cornell, Southern Cal, Tennessee, Ohio State, Clemson Follow.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

The going's getting rougher. Teams that didn't click so well at the start of the season have improved with experience and stepped into strides that have thumped many a proud noggin.

Paul Christianman and his Missouri Tigers nosed out undefeated Oklahoma, 7 to 6, to enter the 10 national leaders for the first time this season. But the score was so close, a point after touchdown, that Oklahoma managed to stay among the leaders just below Missouri.

Duke, defeated only once by a point after touchdown, tossed undefeated North Carolina out of the ranking 10 by a 13-to-3 score. However, Duke's schedule has been comparatively weak — triumphs over such teams as Davidson, Colgate, Syracuse, and V. M. I. Although it did topple North Carolina, Duke falls short of a national power due to its unimpressive schedule. In fact, had the North Carolina-Duke score been only a point's difference North Carolina would still be among the favored ten.

Georgia Tech made the system look bad again by beating Alabama, 6-0. Tech jumped from twenty-ninth to thirteenth in the ratings.

Texas A. and M., for thumping Rice 19 to 0—97.9.

Tulane, for smothering Columbia 25 to 0—97.7.

Cornell, for running over Dartmouth 35 to 0—97.1.

Southern California, idle after beating Stanford 33 to 0—97.0.

Tennessee, for blanking Vanderbilt 13 to 0—96.1.

Ohio State, for defeating Illinois 21 to 6—95.7.

Clemson, for taking Southwestern 21 to 6—95.2.

Oklahoma, for turning under Minnesota 13 to 9—94.1.

For the upsets last week list Duke over North Carolina among the outstanding. Of almost equal stunningness was Arkansas' 14-to-0 victory over Southern Methodist. Franklin over Evansville (10-14); Idaho Southern Branch over Omaha (6-0); Iowa State over Kansas State (10-0).

Other surprises, though not outright ones, were:

Long Island stopping Toledo (13-12); Florida beating Miami of Florida (13-0); Williams over Amherst (16-8); Syracuse over Colgate (16-0); Georgia Tech over Colgate (16-0); a game that would have been called differently had Manhattan's injuries been lessened earlier last week; Georgetown over N. Y. U. (14-0); Nebraska over Pittsburgh (12-0); the scoreless tie with strong Oklahoma A. and M.; Colorado over Brigham Young.

Bulldogs Displease Wally Butts; Tech Drills on Pass Defense

Vassa Cate Likely To Open at Wingback Post Saturday.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 21.—A threatened scrimmage developed into an after-dark drill on pass defense and blocking for Georgia's Bulldogs here this afternoon and Coach Wallace Butts announced after festivities had ended that he was thoroughly dissatisfied.

The Bulldog mentor started a "dummy" scrimmage, with only one side of the line "alive" at a time, but stopped it after a miserable exhibition and ordered more work on blocking assignments. Before he called a halt to the practice, street lights had been turned on and the backs were working on pass defense with a white ball.

"Dooley" Mathews, diminutive wingback who has started the last two ball games, pulled a leg muscle while running for a pass early in the afternoon, and while he is expected to be available against Auburn Saturday in Columbus, it is doubtful if he will be able to go full steam.

CATE WORKS OUT. Captain Vassa Cate, whose dazzling 95-yard return of a kickoff against South Carolina was his best offensive effort of the year, likely will open at the wingback post. He worked out today but did not have on pads and watched while the rough stuff was going on.

Coach Butts said there would probably be only one other change in the Bulldog starting lineup Saturday against the Plainsmen. Jimmy Skipworth, junior right end, and a Columbus boy, will replace

All U. S. Sportsmen Eligible For Pisgah Deer Hunt Nov. 27

Bringing home the venison. Scene during last year's big-game hunt in the Pisgah National Forest in North Carolina. This year's hunt opens November 27 and Georgia hunters will be permitted to hunt deer and bear in the 97,000-acre Pisgah national game preserve without purchasing nonresident hunting license. (U. S. Forest Service Photo.)

Revised Plans Eliminate Non-Resident Hunting Licenses.

By IKE NIMROD.

Georgia hunters whose trigger fingers itch for big game will welcome the announcement made yesterday by Regional Forester Joseph C. Kircher, of the United States Forest Service, of revised plans for the famous Pisgah big game hunt in North Carolina.

Dates for the hunt, postponed for over one month, were announced last night, as beginning November 27 and continuing for a four-week period. Georgia hunters, as well as those of other states, will be admitted to the vast Pisgah National Game Preserve in North Carolina without the necessity of non-resident state hunting licenses.

The opening of the hunt was delayed waiting the outcome of a federal court trial to determine the right of management of the wild life on the Pisgah national game preserve. As a result of the decision awarded the federal government in this case, forest service officials have announced that the only requirement to participate in the 1939 Pisgah big game hunt will be a special forest service permit which will be issued to residents of all states at a cost of $5.

Was Unfair. Sportsmen of states other than North Carolina have long contended that the requirement of a non-resident hunting license on a national game preserve which was financed by federal funds was an unfair imposition.

Opening November 27 the hunt will be divided into eight periods of three days each. The first 2,000 hunters to file applications for the hunt will be permitted to enter the area for a three-day period to secure either one buck or one doe. Officials of the Forest Service state that the objective of the large hunt is an immediate reduction of the excessive herd by at least 1,000 head. Conservative estimates on the present size of the deer herd is placed at over 5,000 head, with an annual increase of approximately 2,000 deer.

Hunting on the area will be divided into two types of activities. Wilderness areas have been established for hunters who prefer to pack their grub and equipment into the forest and camp for the entire three-day period. Other hunters will be checked in and out of the forest each morning and night for their three-day periods. Hunting areas will be rotated each three-day period in order that an area will be hunted three days and rested four, thus giving each hunter equal opportunities for game.

Limit Firearms. Firearms used in the hunt will be limited to rifles of 25-35 caliber or larger and shotguns using single ball slugs.

Applications for the hunt should be addressed to the Forest Supervisor, Pisgah National Forest, Asheville, N. C. Upon receipt of applications for the hunt, each applicant will be mailed the necessary papers for transmitting the $5 fee.

The Pisgah national game preserve, located in the Pisgah national forest of North Carolina, is one of the largest protected game preserves in the United States. Its entire history has a very spectacular background. Originally started almost 50 years ago by George Vanderbilt, the area was later purchased by the United States Forest Service, and converted into a national forest for the production of timber, protection of watershed and propagation of game.

Natural Habitat. The area is a natural habitat for deer, and the original herd of several hundred deer has increased by leaps and bounds until the size of the herd developed into a serious problem. Heavy browsing in recent years has proved injurious to the forest cover and the control and reduction of the deer herd has been carried out through regulated deer hunts, and the trapping and removing of surplus deer to other areas.

Located in the rugged terrain surrounding Mount Pisgah 25 miles south of Asheville, the game preserve provides a spectacular scene for hunting. Masses of laurel and rhododendron bushes cover mountainsides, and give the wary bucks and does a more than even break against the marksman.

One thousand four hundred hunters entered the area during the last year's hunt and kill-d a total of 677 deer. Forest Service officials predict a much larger entry of hunters from surrounding states during this year's hunt, in view of the revised plan for the hunt which eliminates the necessity of non-resident state hunting licenses.

Bulldogs, Alabama May Resume Play BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 21. (P)—A move looking to resumption of football games between the Universities of Georgia and Alabama was launched today by the newly formed University of Georgia alumni body here.

Georgia and Alabama played their last game in 1935.

Dr. Marvin A. Franklin, pastor of the Highlands Methodist church, was elected president of the Birmingham chapter of Georgia alumni.

Dr. Harmon Caldwell, University of Georgia president, came here for the organization meeting, and told Georgia alumni he favored a resumption of annual football games with Alabama.

JACKET COACHES PLAN SCRIMMAGE THIS AFTERNOON

Only Gibson and Wild Definitely Out of Florida Game.

Pass defense hogged most of the attention yesterday as Coach Bill Alexander sent his Techs through a lengthy workout in preparation for their game with Florida Saturday.

First scrimmage of the week was put off until this afternoon in order to allow players to fully recuperate from the terrific struggle against Alabama last week. However, no punches will be pulled in today's rough session. It will be the hardest of the week and every available man will serve his time under fire.

Another scrimmage is set for Thursday morning. The Jackets will work out in the morning and attend the Tech-Georgia freshman game in the afternoon. They will board a train that night and stop in Jacksonville, where they will work out and spend Friday night.

Dodd Passes. Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd did the passing in yesterday's drill against Gator aerials. Scout Roy McArthur reported that Tommy Harrison and Bud Walton are two excellent passers and "Fergie" Ferguson is a good receiver. So Tech coaches are taking no chances on Florida driving them crazy with passes. Dodd ran with the Bee team and completed several long tosses.

Alabama's passing attack was not very strong and the Jacket coaches fear the boys might have become a bit lax on defense.

The Jackets took a good look at Florida's defensive formation as coaches pointed out what to expect Saturday. Signals were run in a dummy scrimmage for about a half-hour.

FAIR CONDITION. The Tech squad is in fairly good physical condition. Only Billy Gibson, wingback, and John Wild, reserve tackle, are definitely out of the game. Both missed the Tide battle, Gibson with a bad knee and Wild with a hurt leg. Neither is expected to be ready before the Georgia contest.

Tech coaches are guarding against a possible letdown by the team, which has played Vandy, Auburn, Duke, Kentucky and Alabama on successive Saturdays. A tie for the conference championship and possibly a bid to some major bowl on January 1 is in the reach of the Jackets and they don't mean to let it get away.

However, Florida's defense is one of the strongest the Jackets will have faced and stranger things than a 'Gator victory have happened.

Canton Quintets Drop 2 Games, Win Another CANTON, Ga., Nov. 21.—Cage games at the Holly Springs gym Monday night resulted in two losses for the local quintets and one win. Lathamtown downed the Holly Springs Waco-Peppers 53 to 34 and Free Home school jumped on Holly Springs school with a 33 to 13 avalanche. Holly Springs Jr. Athletic Club managed to cop the only Springer victory of the night, an 18 to 14 tussle over Indian Knoll.

Old Teammates Clash In Freshman Struggle

Eight Boys on Each of Tech, Georgia Squads Face Former Prep Playmates.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

When the Tech freshmen meet the Georgia yeetlings Thanksgiving afternoon at Grant field, eight players on each squad will be playing against boys they worked side by side with in prep school.

Red Barron's Monroe A. & M. school supplied each school with three fine football players. Vernon Morris, center; W. Marcin, guard, and Tommy Anderson, tackle, are now members of the Tech freshman team. They will be playing against three former teammates, J. B. and Walter Ruark, guards, and Van Davis, end.

A couple of boys from up in Sandusky, Ohio, decided to come south to college. And, oddly enough, one decided to come to Georgia and the other to Tech. Both played for Sandusky High. R. W. Martin is the Jacket and Jim Anderson the Bullpup.

Jack Marshall, of Tech, will be playing against his former North Fulton teammate, Bud Davis—one of three Davises on Howell Hollis' squad.

Booker Blanton and Homer Passmore, two Georgia stars, will face their former teammate at Valdosta, Oscar Dalton.

Boys' High in Atlanta is the only other school to furnish both teams material. Harry Kuniyanski decided on Georgia while Bobby Sheldon and Bobby Gore chose Tech.

Keen competition developed in prep schools from Duluth, Minn., and Portland, Maine, to Miami plus the natural Tech-Georgia feud will make the annual charity game one of the most interesting of the seven-year-old series.

Both squads concluded heavy work for the game yesterday and will take it easy until the kick-off. Norris Dean, of the Baby Jackets, sent his charges through a long signal drill yesterday and announced most of today's practice will be along the same lines.

Over at Athens, the Bullpups worked on fundamentals and did a bit of contact work. They will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon. The Tech freshman coach let his hand down a bit yesterday and predicted the Georgia freshmen "won't run over us."

"I wouldn't be so bold as to say we'll beat them," he told scribes after the workout, "but I don't think they'll run away with us. We don't have the reserve strength to make us strong enough to be very potent but we do have some good players."

Improvement was noted in Wilbur Stein's shoulder and Dean said he would start the game. Jack Marshall and Paul Page will be at the ends, Bill Carden and Tommy Anderson, at tackles; Jack Herb and Hoyt Kilgore at guards and Jack Bradford, fullback; Bobby Dodd, tailback; Jack Hancock, wingback, will complete the starting eleven.

Tickets for the game are going fast and a record crowd is assured.

RIVERSIDE SEEKS TO UPSET AGGIES AT GAINESVILLE

Games Set Saturday; Benedictine-Savannah Clash Thursday.

By FELTON GORDON.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 21.—(P) Traditional rivalry will flare on three fronts this week when G. I. A. A. contenders move toward a settlement of the 1939 football championship argument.

Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, and Monroe Aggies will clash at Gainesville Saturday in the week's chief battle. The Blue Battalion will attempt to knock the Aggies from the running for the title in order to achieve revenge for last season's 18-0 setback.

Technically leading the pack with four conference triumphs and no defeats, the Aggies will try to bolster its title claims by trimming the Cadets.

The Thanksgiving holiday will draw seven G. I. A. A. teams into action with the Benedictine College-Savannah High school tilt at Savannah heading the list.

Coach Jack Thompson's Crimsons will be favored over the Blue Jackets of Savannah High. The B. C. eleven boasts a record of six victories and three defeats, including a 13-0 thrashing of Porter High (Charleston) last week end. Savannah's second straight disastrous season has netted only a tie with Richmond and seven defeats in eight games. B. C. won last year, 19-7.

HUNT LICENSES GO AT FAST CLIP

By The Associated Press.

Armed with greenbacks, not gunshells, a parade of Thanksgiving hunters streamed through the State Revenue Department yesterday to purchase licenses.

Commissioner Grady Head said 5,100 licenses were mailed Saturday, bringing the office up to date with every application received at that time.

"This was done without hiring any one in addition to the department personnel," Head stated.

He said the department sold 15,900 licenses in November through yesterday, yielding $28,353.25.

Wild Life Chief Charles N. Elliott asked hunters to obtain their licenses tomorrow if they intended hunting Thanksgiving Day. A receipt for a money order sent the revenue department will serve as a license for a period of ten days. Head said the department had not been and would never be that far behind on issuing.

Boys' High Will Battle Ensley Eleven Tonight

Purple-Aggie Title Contest Set Dec. 1

City Prep Winners 1938 G. I. A. A. Champs, Arrange Playoff for State Crown.

By ROY WHITE.

Monroe Aggies, Georgia's prep champions last year, and Boys' High, Atlanta's newly crowned city champions, will play December 1 at Ponce de Leon park for Georgia's 1939 prep football championship. Definite arrangements for the game were made Tuesday morning at Boys' High school at a conference between Coaches Red Barrow and Tobe Edwards, of Monroe, and Shorty Doyal, Dwight Keith and Principal H. O. Smith, of Boys' High.

It was first suggested that the game be played at Grant Field, but since Tech and Georgia battled Saturday afternoon, December 2, at Grant Field, it appeared unlikely that Grant Field could be secured for the game.

Boys' High closed its G. I. A. A. schedule with a victory over Tech High Friday night, ending its fifth undefeated G. I. A. A. season of the last eight years, a great high school record. The Purples have defeated six G. I. A. A. foes and tied one.

Monroe Aggies have won four victories and have Riverside left next Saturday at Gainesville. A defeat by Riverside would not impair Monroe's claim for state honors and would still leave the Aggies with the next best record to Boys' High.

Tickets for the championship game will go on sale early next week at the schools at 50 cents for students and ladies. All tickets at the gates will be $1 each.

Boys' High-Monroe Playoff Is Unofficial.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Boys' High school of Atlanta and Monroe A. and M. of Walker Park may go ahead with their plans to play a post-season game at Ponce de Leon park in Atlanta, but so far as billing the contest as a playoff for the G. I. A. A. championship, it will not mean a thing officially.

Marvin J. Jones, athletic director of Lanier High school here and spokesman for the G. I. A. A. executive committee through his office as secretary and treasurer, tonight issued a statement in which he pointed out that the committee, alone, under the constitution, has the right to select a champion.

The Monroe-Boys' High game will be counted as a regular season game and considered as such, with the probability that the winner will be designated 1939 football champion, since these two teams are yet undefeated.

Victorious Purples Feted at Banquet

Boys' High's city championship football team was guest of honor at a noon day luncheon Tuesday at the school cafeteria. Coach Shorty Doyal promised the boys a turkey dinner if they defeated Tech High.

Last week the Boys' High B team was guest at a chicken dinner, following its victory over the Tech High Reserves.

Tobe Edwards, coach of the Monroe Aggies; Ed Danforth, sports editor of the Georgian; Morgan Blake, sports editor of the Journal, and Jack Troy, sports editor of The Constitution, were other guests. There were no speeches.

G. M. A. BATTLES PINE BLUFF, ARK., THURSDAY NIGHT

Russell-Griffin Clash at East Point Thursday Morning.

By ROY WHITE.

Boys' High and Ensley High, of Birmingham, Ala., will battle at 8 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park in a feature of the stretch "drive" of Atlanta's prep season. Only a few games remain on the program after Thanksgiving's big rush of three games, which will officially close most of the seasons.

Tech High, Decatur, Commercial, Russell, Fulton, West Fulton, Hapeville and Richardson, all beaten during the year, will pack their uniforms until another season following Thanksgiving games.

Thursday morning Commercial and Decatur battle at Decatur, while Russell plays Griffin on the East Point field.

G. M. A. plays an undefeated Pine Bluff, Ark., eleven Thursday night at East Point in another outstanding game. West Fulton and Hapeville play this afternoon at Bankhead field.

Richardson and Fulton called it quits after their game last night at East Point.

Marist College plays Lanier High Thursday afternoon at Maccon, to round out a busy Thanksgiving Day for Atlanta's prep teams.

Boys' High faces its toughest game of the year tonight with Ensley High, a bitter foe from Birmingham.

The Purples defeated Tech High Friday night before a record crowd at Ponce de Leon park, and haven't had much time to get down to serious business for tonight's game.

A light scrimmage was held Monday in a surprise move by Coach Shorty Doyal, but it didn't prove of much value since the team was still rejoicing over the Tech High victory. Another light drill was held Tuesday, following a noonday luncheon at the school.

Boys' High defeated Ensley, 12 to 6, last year and Coach Doyal is very much worried over a let-down in tonight's game. Unless the boys settled down to some serious football, the visitors have a fine chance to spoil a fine season's record.

Most of the Purple cripples are back in uniform and ready to play tonight, and Coach Doyal is looking forward to some new star to take the leading role tonight against Ensley High.

SUICIDE INDICATED IN MARIETTA DEATH

Coroner's Jury Will Meet Today; Sister Lives in Atlanta.

Positive identification of the body of an Atlanta woman found shot to death near Marietta, as that of Miss Kate Johnson, location of her relatives, and discovery of a trunk carried away from her crew street residence shortly before she left last Thursday led Captain B. W. Seabrook of the Atlanta police identification bureau, to conclude last night that the death definitely was attributable to suicide.

The coroner's jury, which rendered an open verdict pending the outcome of investigations into the missing trunk, will reconvene at 9 o'clock this morning for a final verdict.

Miss Johnson has one sister in Atlanta, Mrs. Lessie Chalfant, of Pryor road. The sister was traced through a telephone call which came from Captain Seabrook yesterday from Miss Evelyn Smith, 696 Windsor street, who said she believed Miss Johnson had lived next door to her before moving to 307 Crew street.

Relatives Located.

After discovery of the Atlanta relative, Captain Seabrook said it was found the woman had two other sisters, Miss Lena Johnson, San Francisco, Cal., and Mrs. Minnie Connor, Milledgeville, and a brother, Byron B. Johnson, of the Veterans' hospital in Roanoke, Virginia.

Captain Seabrook quoted Mrs. Chalfant as saying she had been expecting her sister to commit suicide because she associated with few people and always seemed to be unhappy.

Mrs. Chalfant told Seabrook that the girl lived with her sister, Lena, before moving to Crew street. Because she feared for the girl to be alone, Mrs. Chalfant said she warned Lena not to leave her.

Brother Is Veteran.

Discovery of a brother in the Roanoke Veterans' hospital explained the arrival of several letters from the Veterans' Administration at the Crew street rooming house.

Captain Seabrook said the trunk which was carried away in a truck the day before the body was found in an uncultivated field near Marietta, was taken to the Atlanta Jewish Mission at 31 Trinity avenue.

He quoted George Winnman, the doctor, as saying Miss Johnson wanted to give the trunk and its contents to the mission, as she was "going back to Columbus."

BANKS WITHDRAW FOOD STAMP FEE

'Surplus' Plan in Rochester Will Continue for Relief Clients.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Withdrawal by banks of a proposed "service charge" assured tonight continuance of the federal government's surplus food stamp plan in this city of its birth.

Rochester grocers sighed relief as the bankers agreed to two meetings with the food merchants, deferred a 1 per cent charge on food stamps presented to them by grocers for redemption, scheduled to take effect December 1.

Relief clients purchase orange stamps in 25-cent denominations and with each two are given free a 25-cent blue stamp. The orange stamps will purchase anything on grocery store shelves, while blue stamps can be used only to buy commodities designated by the government as surplus.

The grocers paste the stamps on cards of $5 denomination, turn them in to the banks in lieu of cash. The bankers saw their work multiplied with no revenue to offset the increase and announced the 5-cent-a-card fee.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, hearing of the proposed fee, said the plan would be abandoned in Rochester unless the bankers recanted.

$15,000 IS SOUGHT IN CROSSING CRASH

Children of One of Two Victims File Suit.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Damages totaling $15,000 were asked here today as an aftermath of a railroad crossing accident north of Acworth, in which two Atlanta produce men were killed.

Bernice and Madeline Saylor, minor children of Albert D. Saylor, one of the victims, brought suit against the W. & A. Railroad, through an aunt, Mrs. Ophelia Smallwood, of Atlanta.

The suit charges carelessness on the part of the railroad, and declares no warning signal was given by the northbound freight which struck their machine. Aubrey T. Wade, of Atlanta, was the second victim.

FINAL RITES ARE HELD FOR AUTO VICTIM, 76

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—Services for Mrs. G. T. Whilden, 76, who was fatally injured Saturday night when struck by an automobile, were held today in the Presbyterian church. Dr. A. M. Pierce officiated, and burial was in Milledgeville cemetery.

Mrs. Whilden died two hours after being struck by a car driven by Morris Glassburner, local aviator. The accident was termed unavoidable.

Mercury Here Sticks 10 Hours at 44 Degrees

Temperatures in Atlanta remained perfectly constant for 10 hours yesterday, with the mercury in the downtown office of the Weather Bureau registering 44 degrees every hour from 6 a. m. to 4 p. m.

After that hour the temperature rose slightly, registering 45 degrees at 5 p. m. and jumping a degree higher at 7 p. m., which maximum it retained until 10 p. m.

Weather Bureau officials at the airport office predicted at 10 p. m. that the thermometer probably would drop one or two degrees before morning, but anticipated very little change in conditions, forecasting a minimum of 38 degrees and a maximum of 50 degrees for today. Cloudy skies will continue, but no rain is expected.

Though Weather Bureau officials termed it "very unusual," Forecaster George W. Mindling pointed out it was easily explained, in view of prevailing atmospheric conditions. Tuesday's high temperature, strangely enough, occurred at midnight Monday, when the mercury rose to 53 degrees. The low—44—was reached at 6 a. m., continuing through the day.

Ladies Garment Workers' Union Gives $235,000 for Refugee Relief

Donation, Mostly earmarked for Use of Those Suffering in Central Europe, Described as Largest Ever Made by American Labor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The general executive board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union today announced a $235,000 donation to refugee relief organizations.

The board described the donation, which was raised through half-day pay gifts by the union's membership, as the largest fund ever raised by an American labor union for humanitarian purposes.

The largest gift was made to the Joint Distribution Committee, the chief relief distribution agency in Germany, Austria, Poland and other points in central Europe, which received $110,000. Gifts also were made to Catholic and Protestant relief groups and the American Red Cross, including $15,000 for Italian refugee relief.

I. L. G. W. President David Dubinsky said the fund "was raised out of the half dollars and dollars of our workers, women and men of all ethnic languages and nationalities, who are bound together in a trade union which knows no distinction of race or religion."

The complete allocation of funds was as follows: Joint Distribution Committee, $110,000; American Red Cross, $25,000; the Committee for Catholic Refugees From Germany, $15,000; American Committee for Christian German Refugees (Protestant), $15,000; Italian refugees, $15,000; Jewish Labor Committee, $10,000; American Red Cross, $10,000; trade union groups and exiles, $10,000; other refugee relief groups, $5,000; Greater New York fund, 1939 campaign, $10,000.

GEORGIA TO CITE DR. MAX CUTLER

Tribute Will Be Paid to Native Son for His Cancer Control Work.

An official citation for "outstanding achievement in the realm of cancer cure and control" will be given Dr. Max Cutler, a former Georgian and now a well-known cancer specialist in Chicago, Governor Rivers announced yesterday.

The citation will be made by the Governor at a program sponsored by the Women's Field Army for Control and Cure of Cancer, of which Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, Athens, is state director.

Dr. and Mrs. Cutler are in Georgia this week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cutler, in Atlanta, and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Max Michael, in his home town of Athens.

Dr. Cutler will also be appointed an honorary lieutenant colonel on the military staff of Governor Rivers.

In announcing an executive citation for Dr. Cutler, the Governor's office stated: "He is the originator of the diagnosis of cancer of the breast by the method known as transillumination. With Sir George Lenthal Cheate, senior surgeon in King's College hospital, London, Dr. Cutler was awarded the Walker prize, given by the Royal College of Surgeons to the person or persons doing the best work on the causation and biology of cancer."

FORESTRY SERVICE ADDS THREE MEN

R. Bruce McGregor, Atlanta, Lands One of New Appointments.

Employment of three men as assistant district foresters for the state was announced yesterday by Forester W. C. Hamner.

They are R. Bruce McGregor, of Atlanta; Edwin K. Pittman, of Blackshear, and Edwin O. Brown, of Fort Gaines. All are graduates of the University of Georgia's School of Forestry within recent years.

Pittman began work November 18 as assistant to District Forester J. S. Cross, with headquarters at Baxley, working throughout the flatwood land use area.

All Pittman's time will be available to farmers and Hamner said this is the first time such a service has been rendered. This new service ties in with the 1940 AAA program, which gives additional benefits to farmers planting some acreage in seedlings.

McGregor will begin work November 27 as assistant to District Forester W. D. Young at Gainesville. Young recently was made forester, elevated from assistant. After graduating from the university in 1937, McGregor worked with the state division of parks in the Vogel and Pine Mountain parks.

Brown, who graduated from the forestry school last June, has worked as assistant nurseryman for six weeks at the Herty nursery at Albany. On November 16 he was advanced to assistant to Cross at Baxley. He also worked in the flatwood land use area at Waycross.

ACTRESS JEAN PARKER TO DIVORCE NEWSMAN

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Actress Jean Parker said today she will sue George MacDonald, New York newspaperman, for divorce within the next ten days.

"The fact that Mr. MacDonald must necessarily remain in New York and I must stay in Hollywood has ruined our marriage," said Miss Parker, who was born Mae Green in Deer Lodge, Mont. They were married in March, 1936, and separated six months ago.

EATONTON BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FIRE

EATONTON, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Flames believed to have started in a negro canteen here early today destroyed three buildings and threatened the main business section of the city.

J. D. Hudson, manager of the C. M. Hudson and Sons Lumber Co., reported the heaviest loss, about $10,000.

DUTCH ARE BITTER AT MOVE BY BRITAIN ON WESTERN FRONT

Warn Decision To Seize All German Exports Is 'Dangerous.'

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Dutch political and shipping circles were bitter tonight in condemning Great Britain's decision to seize all German exports, even those borne by neutral ships, and called it a "dangerous" action.

Answering British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement that the decision is a reprisal against the sinking of the Dutch passenger liner Simon Bolivar and other vessels in recent days by illegally-laid German mines, the newspaper Algemeen Handelsblad said:

"Holland will not be able to understand why this disaster of which Holland is the victim (the sinking of the Simon Bolivar) should be utilized to damage doubly the interests of a neutral."

The newspaper suggested, in inferential manner, that it might have been a British mine rather than a German one which sank the Simon Bolivar Saturday with a loss of at least 80 lives.

DECISION 'SERIOUS'

SAYS BRUSSELS CIRCLES

BRUSSELS, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Semi-official Belgian quarters said tonight that the announcement of Britain's intention to seize German exports was "extremely serious" in its consequences for neutral nations such as Belgium and the Netherlands.

BURDEN ON NEUTRALS SEEN IN DENMARK

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Danish circles, although admitting that Britain's orders for the seizure of German exports seemed to be a "logical" retaliatory move, said tonight that it will inflict heavy burdens on neutral trade.

FOLSOM PRISONERS ON HUNGER STRIKE

Uprising Is First Major Incident for 'Reform' Warden.

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Nine hundred Folsom prisoners staged a food strike today and prison authorities subsequently locked up all 2,900 inmates as a precaution against possible disorders.

Warden Clyde I. Plummer gave this account of the incident: The prisoners declined to eat breakfast because of sour mush and later refused dinner.

About 800 convicts assigned to the rock quarry also refused to work or to return to the mess hall for lunch after they were locked up.

Plummer, confronted with the first major incident since he became warden two years ago of the prison for recidivists, said he tried to placate the striking convicts by offering them other food. Some ate prunes and bread and had coffee, but others beat on the tables with cups and yelled at the guards.

The warden said the prison cook tried to prepare the mush in a different way and it turned out sour and unpalatable. He took steps to correct the situation and reported the situation under control.

Plummer has instituted such innovations as music with meals, entertainment, holiday refreshments, and other "reforms."

TALMADGE TO SPEAK AT BREWTON DEC. 15

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. BREWTON, Ga., Nov. 21.—Ex-governor Talmadge will speak here December 15 at the dedication of the community's new school building and gymnasium.

The new school and gymnasium were built without issuance of bonds, insurance on the old building, burned in November, 1938, being supplemented by donations from patrons and friends of the school.

$100,000 RED FUND FOR BROWDER MISTAKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Elizabeth Gurley Flynn said today she was misunderstood yesterday when she was reported to have said the Communist party had raised $100,000 to defend Earl Browder, the party's general secretary, against charges of passport irregularities.

"Our goal for the defense fund is $100,000, but we have raised only $20,000 up to the present time," she said.

Three Nazi Planes Downed; Artillery Stage Duel in Saar and Vosges.

By RALPH FEINZEN.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Sharp fighting broke out on the western front today, during which artillery fire was heavy and the French shot down three German planes, the official French war communiqué said.

The communiqué, one of the few of the war describing real action, said: "The day was marked by an artillery duel in the region east of the Saar as well as the East Vosges. There was activity by both air forces. One enemy reconnaissance plane was shot down in our lines and two pursuit planes were brought down in flames behind the enemy lines. All our planes returned to their bases."

Nazis Agree on Activity.

(The German war communiqué issued in Berlin also spoke of heavy artillery fire by both sides but said German planes had carried out systematic reconnaissance flights "without opposition.")

Land patrol operations were concentrated chiefly in the sectors on both sides of Saarbrücken. A high official of the French war office said the French general staff has reason to believe that an attack against Holland and Belgium originally had been scheduled to start November 12 to 14, coincident with pressure on the entire western front, but that the signal for its start never came from Adolf Hitler's office.

Army Ready to Strike.

The official said the German army still holds positions to attack at any moment. Weather conditions, however, continue unfavorable, and all possibility of taking advantage of the element of surprise has been lost because the Dutch and the Belgians, as well as the Allies, are prepared to meet invasion.

French sources said the attack signal failed to come from Hitler because he still was unable to decide whether to heed the advice of Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Paul Joseph Goebbels to smash all along the western front and at the same time to blast Britain and France with air raids—or the advice of his general staff, and limit winter operations to a comparatively simple campaign against Holland, much more likely to succeed than any attempt to crack the Maginot line in winter weather.

GERMAN ENGINEER AFRAID TO GO HOME

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A 35-year-old German aircraft production engineer testified today he would be shot if he was forced to return to his homeland.

The engineer, Hans Dietrich Heinrich Detjen, was ordered held under $500 bond, pending disposition of his case by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

KENTUCKY FOREST FIRE EXTINGUISHED

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 21.—(AP)—State Forester Kenneth G. McConnell said today the last of the southeastern Kentucky forest fires had been extinguished.

"Everything is out now, but a few crews are still 'mopping up,'" he added. "We have had half an inch of rain in the fire area since Sunday and believe we are safe at least for another week or so."

The fires burned over about 6,000 acres, with timber loss estimated by McConnell at $15,000.

Neyland Says 2 Toughest Games--Kentucky, Auburn-- Ahead

Williamson 'Weakens' On Old Slippery Rock

Noted Prognosticator, Suggesting Bowl for Minor Teams, Likes San Jose State.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Paul B. Williamson, nationally-known football prognosticator, tonight suggested "one or more" post season games to settle supremacy among the minor gridiron powers. "Some of these so-called minor teams have enviable records, some undefeated and untied and would be tough opposition for their big brothers," Williamson said. "They are teams that have large followings, teams that draw crowds up to 40,000."

It would be obviously impractical, he pointed out, to lump the teams below the "majors" in one classification.

For instance, it would be impossible to get a fair contest by matching Pop Warner's San Jose State and Slippery Rock, both undefeated and untied in their own leagues.

San Jose State and Fresno State, out on the west coast, are football powers for reckoning in any man's appraisal," Williamson said.

"San Jose, in 11 of its scheduled games, has run up 234 points against 22 for the opposition—or an average of 21-to-2 per game."

"In eight of 10 games scheduled, Fresno has piled up 178 points to 50 for its opposition, with an average of 21-to-6 per game."

These teams, just outside the realm of the "majors," meet at Fresno Thursday night.

"Both teams have some of the best players on the coast, regardless of leagues," Williamson said. He suggested that the winner be matched in a "bowl" against some eastern teachers' college—such as Maryville (Mo.) Teachers' or Louisiana Normal, both undefeated and untied.

Louisiana Normal meets Hattiesburg (Miss.) Teachers Thursday.

Slippery Rock completed its season last week undefeated and untied, after beating California (Pa.) Teachers, 54 to 0.

Williamson said, however, that Slippery Rock had trounced opponents much weaker than those defeated by San Jose, Fresno, Louisiana Normal and Maryville Teachers.

GEORGE CAFEGO WILL BE READY FOR WILDCATS

Tennessee Coach Fears Great Kicking of Auburn's Dick McGowan

By DON WHITEHEAD.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(P)—Tennessee's thoroughly chastised Volunteers poked their heads out of the storm cellar today and began a determined preparation to regain the prestige lost in the Vanderbilt breeze—that-became-a-cyclone.

Almost swept from the field by the fury of a rejuvenated Vandy eleven—and barely able to salvage a 13-0 victory to maintain their unbeaten, untied and unscathed record—the Vols primed their offensive weapons for two tough foes, Kentucky on Thanksgiving (November 30) and Auburn in the season finale, December 9.

A decisive win over Kentucky was about the last chance for the Vols to clamber back in the Associated Press poll as the nation's No. 1 team, a spot from which they were ousted this week by Texas A. & M.

DARK FUTURE.

And Major Bob Neyland was looking at the future darkly, as Rose Bowl rumors floated around. "I figure out two hardest games lie ahead of us," said the Tennessee mentor. "Kentucky has demonstrated it is one of the best teams in the Southeastern conference. The boys are fast, alert, and well-coached. Auburn is coming fast in the last part of the season, has a fine defense, and one of the best kickers in the country in this boy Dick McGowan."

There's cause for the major's misgivings. Kentucky has beaten this season only by Georgia Tech and in the past has proved a jinx to undefeated Neyland teams, knocking them out of a Rose Bowl bid in 1929 with a 6-6 tie.

STAGE COMEBACK.

Auburn, after losing four of the first six games, has come back strong to whip Villanova, 10-9, and Louisiana State, 20-6.

"The boys realize what they are up against," Neyland said. "That close call with Vandy did them good."

George (Bad News) Cafego, Neyland's ace tailback who was out of the Vandy game with a sprained knee, will be back in the lineup to lead the Volunteers on their final drive for a second consecutive "perfect season."

The odds are in their favor—but the nerves of the homefolks are still fluttering over the Vanderbilt scare and there's the fear it might happen again with more disastrous results.

Tech Is Ranked 13th By Paul Williamson

(12 to 6); Iowa over Minnesota; Notre Dame over Northwestern (1-0); Michigan State over Indiana (1-0); Wisconsin over Purdue (1-0); and, V. P. I. over Virginia (13-0).

Only four major teams remain among the undefeated and untied: Texas A. & M., Tennessee, Cornell and Duquesne. So-called minors with the unblemished records include San Jose, Fresno State, Colorado Mines, Slippery Rock (Pa.), Louisiana Normal, San Diego Marines and the Maryville (Mo.) Teachers.

San Jose, by the way, is the highest ranking so-called minor in the nation—a team that should be able to take any squad in its class of ranking and cause plenty of trouble for many rated higher.

The Williamson system emerged from that week of rough going in 231 games reported, or 83.4 not with an over-all efficiency of 82.2 counting eight upsetting ties.

There were 35 upsets against the system, 12 called upsets, and five called ties.

Good picks last week were:

Emporia Teachers over Oklahoma City (7-0); Chattanooga over Centre (12-0); San Jose over Loyola L. A. (19-0); Fresno over Whittier (47-13); Cedar Falls over North Dakota State (19-0); Baylor over Centenary (13-6); Cincinnati over Citadel (14-7); Tulane over Louisville (25-0); Washington over Columbia (25-0); Fordham over St. Mary, Cal. (13-0); Georgia over South Carolina (32-7); Kentucky over West Virginia (13-0); Michigan over Pennsylvania (19-7); Clemson over Southwestern Tennessee (21-6); Texas Mines over Louisiana Tech (21-0); Marshall over Xavier (20-6); Bowling Green, Ky. over Ypsilanti (28-0); Creighton over Washington (47-0); Hardin-Simmons over New Mexico State (28-13); West Texas over Sul Ross (25-6); Auburn over Louisiana State (21-7); Tennessee over Vanderbilt (13-0); and many others.

M'ADAMS FACES CORBY ON FRIDAY

Bob Corby, who has lost only one out of 20 matches in Atlanta, last week proved beyond all doubt that he is a big timer by tossing Joe Gunther in straight falls, the first time the Tennessee star ever had been beaten in this city.

Promoters have matched Corby with Jack McAdams in Friday night's feature at Sports Arena. McAdams has been gunning for the former Red Shadow and his recent showings indicate he will make things interesting for the Oklahoman.

Dynamite Joe Dillman, the wild Greek from Indianapolis, who last week toppled Jack Purdin, will meet Jack (Man Of) Steele, another toughie, in the semi-final.

At 8:30 o'clock Larry Tillman will oppose Dick Simmons, newcomer from Syracuse, N. Y.

ENTRIES POUR IN FOR STOCK CAR RACE THURSDAY

Fast Track Expected for Holiday Events at Lakewood.

Entries for Thursday's "Turkey Day" stock car auto races billed for Lakewood starting at 2:15 o'clock continued to pour in with Hugh Adamson, Atlanta; Bert Bardwell, Chattanooga; and Fred Lewis, Opelika, Ala., the latest to sign.

Following out a system which had to be used at the recent October 29 regulation race-races, the steering committee of Thursday's events have taken means to attempt to groom the field for Thanksgiving down to some reasonable proportions, and have notified numerous out-of-the-state drivers of the large field and tentatively have promised a future stock-car race at the track.

The three drivers who entered Tuesday have never competed at Lakewood before. Adamson will drive a 1938 Ford sedan, Bardwell a Chrysler Imperial, and Lewis a LaSalle.

Local owners who are hopeful of making first runs this afternoon at Lakewood are Johnnie Scarra, Bill Milam Jr., Raymond Parks and Adamson.

Tuesday's light rains only added to the possibility that the track would be "lightning fast," in fact, the fastest that it has ever been. Arrangements have been made so that one-mile, three-mile, five-mile and six-mile world's records can be hung up under ISCR sanction.

PLANS COMEBACK.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The management of the St. Louis National league baseball club announced today that Bill Delaney, catching star of the 1934 World Series, will attempt a comeback with the team next season.

S. Cal in Sugar Bowl! Practice for Irish Tilt

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(P)—The news from Los Angeles today was that Southern California is coming to the Sugar Bowl. The Trojans, en route to meet Notre Dame at South Bend, will pause here Thursday (Thanksgiving to some) for a practice session.

Pitt Puts Missouri On 1940 Grid Lineup

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Turning westward in a re-alignment of its football relations, the University of Pittsburgh announced tonight that it had added Missouri to its football schedule and will open its 1940 season with Ohio State University.

Besides its traditional rivals, Carnegie Tech and Penn State, Pitt will play Fordham, Duke, Southern Methodist, Ohio State and two schools in the Big Six, Missouri and Nebraska.

Pitt meets Ohio State September 28 in the opening game for both teams.

Capital City Opens Winter Golf Course

Howard Beckett, professional, announced last night that the winter course had been opened at Capitol City. The winter greens and tees are reported in unprecedented good condition for this time of year.

BASKETBALL GAME.

DOOLY MATHEWS HURT AT ATHENS

John Stegeman in the starting lineup.

Skipworth, one of the hardest workers on the team, has been showing improvement lately, especially on pass receiving, and he, Stegeman and Knox Eldredge have been playing almost equal amounts of time this season.

Stegeman has started every game at the post, however, since the Bulldogs battled Kentucky on October 21.

McCASKILL AT END.

Alex McCaskill will be at left end, Charley Williams and Wyatt Posey at the tackles, Smiley Johnson and Walter Wilfong at guards, Tommy Witt at center, Bobby Nowell, blocking back; Cate, wingback; Jim Fordham, fullback, and Cliff Kimsey, tailback.

The one bright feature of today's workout was the work of Kimsey and his number one rival, little Heyward Allen, who, between them, are expected to take care of the tailbacking duties against the high-flying Auburnites.

The two sophomores were running harder than usual and showed marked improvement in handling the ball behind the scrimmage line.

GAMES WANTED.

Hapeville Aces would like to arrange a series of basketball games with any team within a radius of 75 miles of Atlanta. Call or write E. E. Brown, Calhoun 2743, Hapeville, Ga.

ENTERS STOCK RACES

Bert Bardwell, Chattanooga stock car demon, will compete at Lakewood Thursday afternoon.

Because it's "Double-Rich!"

YOU'LL LIKE THIS STRAIGHT BOURBON IF YOU'RE THIS JOVIAL TYPE

A THINNESS of bridge of nose and upper lip.

B FULLNESS of ear lobe, cheeks, chin and jawline and at center of lower lip.

This combination of "thick and thin" features is associated with a light-hearted, whole-souled type bubbling with good nature and animal spirits... grand company at Thanksgiving dinner!

If you're this cheerful type, we'd like to talk Turkey with you right now! There's a "double-rich" Kentucky Bourbon just too good for a fellow like you to miss...the largest selling straight Bourbon in the world! Say "Make mine Cream!"

Atlanta Spot Cotton Closed Steady Middling, 9.80.
Average Price.
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(P)—The average price of middling 15-16th inch cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 2 pounds; average for the post; market days 9.20 cents a pound; middling 7-8th inch average 9.44 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(P)—The cotton futures market turned its back on buoyant foreign prices today and closed 7 points lower to 1 higher.
The market came to life with a bang in the last hour when the day's highs and lows were established.
After a slightly lower slant most of the session, a leading spot interest stepped into the ring with a buying order for 5,000 bales of March cotton. Prices rose 2 to 7 points. Just before the close, however, brokers sold more than mill connections sold and July and 10,000 bales of spot house actively disposed of December contracts.
The market slipped.
Brokers said most of the liquidation seemed inspired by growing anxiety over

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady middling, 9.90.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(P)—The average price of today's 15-16th-cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 2 points lower at 9.64 cents a pound; average for the day 39 market days 9.20 cents a pound; middling 9.20-cents average 9.44 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(P)—The cotton futures market turned its back on buoyant foreign prices today and closed 7 points lower to 1 higher.

The market came to life with a bang in the last hour when the day's highs and lows were established.

After a slightly lower slant most of the session, a leading spot interest stepped into the ring with a buying order for 5,000 bales of March cotton. Prices rose 2 to 7 points.

Just before the close, however, brokers with southern mill connections sold more than 10,000 bales of May and July and another large spot house actively disposed of December contracts.

The market slipped. Brokers said most of the liquidation seemed inspired by growing anxiety over the increasing damage being inflicted on Allied and neutral shipping and its possible effect on freight space for shipping cotton.

Exports Monday, 24,977 bales; season's far 2,163,118. Port receipts, 39,883; month stocks, 2,026,561.

FINAL HOUR RALLY FAILS IN COTTON

CONTROL SUPPORTED BY BURLEY GROWERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(P) Early returns in today's farmer referendum gave the New Deal's crop control program for burley tobacco a top-heavy margin.

Incomplete reports from five of the 16 states where farmers voted gave 1,230 votes for marketing quotas on the 1940 burley crop and 107 against—a favorable majority of 91 per cent. States represented in these returns were Kentucky, Georgia, Arkansas, Alabama and South Carolina.

SUGAR AND COFFEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Another cut in refined sugar forced the price close to the level prevailing before outbreak of hostilities in Europe boosted the quotation.

One leading refined posted a price of 4.35 cents a pound, accepted considerable business and then withdrew from the market. Other refiners trimmed their bids in points to 4.80 cents a pound.

In September, when an epidemic of kitchen-hoarding swept grocery shelves bare of the staple, sugar was priced as high as 5.75 cents.

The futures market in the domestic contract unwatched developments in the sugar market, however, and the price was stimulated. Final prices were unchanged to 1 point higher on sales of 7,450 tons.

World prices were 3 points up to 1/2 cent on sales of 1,400 tons, December 6.34, March 6.14, May 6.34, July 6.30, September 6.34. New Rio closed unchanged 4 points down, December 4.18, March 4.18, May 4.18, July 4.18, September 4.18, November 4.18.

LIVERPOOL COTTON

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 21.—Cotton, limited demand for spot, prices 14 points higher; futures, 10 points higher; 15-16th-cotton, 14 1/2, May 1.46. Noted by traders were the increasing number of trans-Atlantic cotton futures contracts being sold.

The spot market received a boost from the raw material, Puerto Rico and Philippines were held at 3.10 but no interest was shown.

TARZAN—By Edgar Rice Burroughs

PANIC-STRIKEN SAILORS RUSHED FOR THE LIFEBOATS OF THE SINKING SHIP.

"GO DOWN AND BRING UP TARZAN!" ZALIM
SHOUTED. BUT THE SAILORS REFUSED TO RISK BEING TRAPPED BELOW.

WHEN MARIKA STARTED DOWN TO HELP HIM, MIGUEL SEIZED HER AND FLUNG HER INTO A BOAT.

SO THE SHIP WAS ABANDONED AND
